Sweeping Defence Cuts Hit Personnel, Spending

GLEAMING NEW $10,000,000 airport was opened this week at Edmonton, 16 miles south of the city, and murals in the 10-storey building have touched off a controversy. ## Naval Reserve Cut Back Here

(Times News Services)

OTTAWA—Defence Minister Paul Hellyer today announced plans for a sweeping cutback in Canada's defence spending and manpower.

He said the reserve forces of all three armed services would be reduced from 57,200 to 22,640, mainly by attrition."

There also will be reductions in the regular forces, he said, but details could not be disclosed at this stage because of commitments to consult allied nations.

The reduction in manpower, along with cancellation of other programs and establishments, will cut more than $40,000,000 from the defence department's $1,600,000,000 budget.

The main casualties will include the army's prized Bobcat armored vehicle program, under development for the past 10 years at a cost of some $8 million. Hellyer said the Bobcat had not met test requirements and would be dropped in favor of its United States counterpart, the M-113.

Militia Will Be Cut By 20,000 Men

The militia will be reduced to 30,000 from 51,000.

This would necessitate a major reorganization of the militia, better known as the reserve army, and a group of militia officers would examine the problem and recommend the best way of accomplishing it.

The naval reserve will be reduced to 2,700 from 4,000. Reserve squadrons at Toronto and Victoria will be disbanded as well as seven other reserve units at Prince Rupert, B.C., Victoria, Edmonton, Regina, London, Ont., Charlottetown and Halifax. The tender at Kitchener, Ont., will also be closed.

The RCAF reserve will be reduced to 860 from 2,200.

Other bases to be closed or moved include:

NAVY

Ammunition depot at Kamloops, B.C.

Armament depot at Longueuil, Que.

Fort Pepperell, Nfld.

Ten of the navy's 160 auxiliary vessels will be taken out of service.

The navy's two utility squadrons at Victoria and Halifax will be reduced.

RCAF

The air force will be withdrawn from Fort Churchill and Resolute Bay on Cornwallis Island.

RCAF Station Calgary and No. 10 Repair Depot, Calgary, to be closed.

No. 107 Search and Rescue Unit, Torbay, Nfld., to be disbanded and RCAF Station Torbay closed.

RCAF Stations Vancouver, Saskatoon and Hamilton to be closed. Vancouver Search and Rescue Unit at Vancouver to be transferred to Comox, B.C.

Annual savings will be $16,000,000 a year in the army, $8,000,000 in the RCAF and $7,750,000 in the navy.

Church 'Sit-Ins' Next?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Negro leader said today after meeting with President Johnson that church sit-ins might be the next course of anti-discrimination demonstrations if a Senate filibuster occurs over civil rights legislation.

A. Philip Randolph, fifth Negro leader to be invited to the White House to see Johnson in less than a week, told newsmen of possible "people's education filibusters" in churches, with round-the-clock meetings, in event a talkathon stalled the legislation.

Johnson breakfasted earlier with House Republican leader Charles A. Halleck who predicted House passage of the civil rights bill next month.

AID PLEDGED

This was the second successive day that Johnson had held a secretive session with a Republican congressional leader and got a pledge of help toward passage of the rights bill.

Randolph, who organized the "March on Washington" by more than 200,000 Negroes in August, told newsmen he did not mention the "peoples' filibuster" in his talk with Johnson.

He said these demonstrations would be sponsored by the overall committee of the Washington march and would be conducted in most major cities.

He said the sit-ins would be staged in churches by white and Negro supporters of the civil rights bill.

The signal for them to start, he said, would be a filibuster on Capitol Hill.

Randolph said he had a comprehensive discussion of the legislation with Johnson and added, "President Johnson has left no doubt of his recognition of the urgency of adoption of civil rights legislation and has given it the highest priority."

LEAVING HOSPITAL in Dallas today, accompanied by wife Nellie and brother Merrell, right, was Texas Gov. John Connally. He was to make air trip to Austin, Texas, to continue recovery from wounds suffered during assassination of President Kennedy. Connally was hit by one shot that passed through his chest, right wrist, and lodged in his thigh. (AP Wirephoto.)

Columbia River Deal By Year End—Martin

OTTAWA (UPI)—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin today expressed hope that Canadian-American negotiations on the Columbia River treaty will be completed this month.

He hinted that the final outstanding issue — the price for disposal of Canada's downstream power benefits — might be settled at a negotiating session here next Monday and Tuesday.

Final agreement between the two governments would open the way for the three-year-old treaty to be submitted to parliament for ratification. It was ratified by the U.S. Senate in 1961.

Martin told the house external affairs committee he had discussed the Columbia treaty in Washington Wednesday with U.S. interior secretary Stewart Udall.

"Subject to meetings here Monday and Tuesday, I would think you can anticipate progress on this matter," he said. "In fact, I am hopeful we can reach a conclusion at least on the executive level of government by the end of year."

Pearson Going

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson will visit Paris Jan. 15, 16 and 17 to confer with President de Gaulle, External Affairs Minister Martin informed the Commons external affairs committee today.

Home Coming

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Douglas-Home will visit Canada for talks with Prime Minister Pearson, Feb. 10 to 12, it was officially announced here today.

U.S. Accepts 12-Mile Limit 'Right'

The Canadian foreign minister told the committee he also had discussed this country's plans to proclaim a 12-mile fishing limit next spring during his Washington visit.

"There is now an acknowledgement by the United States of our right to establish this 12-mile limit," he said.

He said Canadian-American negotiations to protect "historic" U.S. fishing rights within the 12-mile area probably would be completed in January. "Similar discussions then would be held with France, Spain, Portugal and Norway," he said.

Martin, opening the committee's examination of his department's 1963-64 spending estimates, also made these comments on current international problems:

Developments such as the Moscow - Washington "hot line," the limited nuclear test ban treaty and the ban on nuclear warfare in outer space represented positive evidence of a new "detente" in East-West relations. Optimism over these developments should be tempered, however, by the fact that the 1954 "Spirit of Geneva" quickly faded into new disagreement and disillusionment.

Hopeful About Disarmament Talks

There are grounds for hope that the 18-nation Geneva disarmament conference, scheduled to resume Jan. 21, might reach some agreement on such specific issues as non-dissemination of nuclear weapons, creation of nuclear-free zones, steps to guard against accidental war, and the establishment of limits on national military budgets. Real progress toward a general disarmament agreement, however, must await settlement of other outstanding political issues.

While it is impossible under current circumstances to obtain United Nations' agreement on a permanent UN police force, Canada hopes to join with other interested nations, including the Scandinavian countries, the Netherlands and an unidentified Asian country, to co-ordinate existing standby units on call for use by UN Secretary-General U Thant.

Canada has a moral obligation to assist Latin America economically whether or not it joins the Organization of American States.

"We have got to take an increasing interest in Latin America," Mr. Martin said. It is an area vital to the peace of the world and it is wrong to postulate that Latin America is an area of less consequence to Canada than other regions of the world.

Raid on Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI)—The Cambodian news agency charged today that 100 South Vietnamese soldiers invaded 600 feet into Cambodian territory and attacked a provincial guard post.

ROWDIES WANTED

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Wainborn, deputy chairman of the Vancouver Parks Board, wants to meet the 319 rowdies arrested in Grey Cup mob scenes in the city last weekend to see what can be done to prevent a recurrence.

Wainborn, a member of the Grey Cup committee which planned week-long festivities here preceding the B.C. Lions - Hamilton Tiger - Cats football classic last Saturday, issued his invitation today.

"I want to find out from the young people themselves what they have on their minds," he said, referring to the 319 persons who faced police charges of drunkenness, unlawful assembly and fighting.

Crop Failure In 'Virgin Lands'

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A disastrously low grain crop in the "virgin lands" in the Kazakhstan district were underlined today by figures issued by the local Communist party secretary.

The figures showed a harvest of only 5,000,000 tons—less than the area needs for itself in an average year.

Harvests in the territory, which was plowed up after Soviet Premier Khrushchev came to power, have fallen steadily since the best year of 1958 when 14,300,000 tons of grain were produced.

The crop failure in the "virgin lands," mentioned in more general terms in earlier Soviet statements, is thought to have been a main reason for Russia's decision to buy grain abroad.

Western experts attribute the failure not only to this season's bad weather but also to the one-crop economy and erosion

26 Miners Die In Blast

BUDAPEST (AP)—Twenty-six Hungarian miners were killed in an explosion Wednesday night at a coal mine at Tatabanya, the Hungarian news agency MTI reported today.

Four other miners were injured.

The agency said the blast was a dampfire explosion.

Briton to Stand Trial For Threat on Queen

LONDON (Reuters)—A 45-year-old London man today was ordered to stand trial for sending a letter threatening to kill the Queen.

George William Mead, now in custody, will be tried at London's Old Bailey central criminal court, a magistrate's hearing decided.

The chairman of the magistrate's court also asked prison medical authorities to keep Mead under observation so a report could be made.

Mead was alleged to have handed a letter to a clergyman at St. Paul's Cathedral here Nov. 17 threatening to kill the Queen by shooting her.

Prosecutor Philip Radcliffe said the letter was handed by Mead to the officiating clergyman at holy communion.

That same afternoon, Mead visited another clergyman and gave him a copy.

Rev. Joseph Robinson of St. Paul's Cathedral said he was administering holy communion when Mead handed him a piece of folded paper as he approached to give him communion.

After taking the paper he gave Mead communion.

At the end of the service Robinson said he read the paper, showed it to some of the cathedral clergy and then handed it to a cathedral official.

He read a statement alleged to have been made by Mead in which the defendant said that about five years ago he lived with a woman named Mrs. Chattaway who was the mother of his son.

The statement went on to say that later Mrs. Chattaway returned to her husband. About three weeks later people in her area were saying she was a prostitute.

"I made a promise that I would give my life if she was ever involved in trouble," the statement added.

The letter which contained the threat to the Queen was also read in court.

It said:

"O Heavenly Father, this nation has now forced me into a position whereby I have to openly commit myself in your name to shoot Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth The Second and shoot to kill.

"Because of the 'cowardice' of this nation in facing this issue between Mrs. Chattaway and myself. If I do not see Mr. and Mrs. Chattaway and their two children this year, 1963, according to your covenant, O Heavenly Father, this nation shall be destroyed."

Taxpayer 'Happy' He Says To Foot Bill for Colleges

VANCOUVER (CP) — James Cairnie of Victoria, president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, says that in California taxpayers foot almost the entire cost of two-year colleges and are happy to do it.

Just returned from an inspection tour of California junior colleges, he told interviewers Wednesday night that California taxpayers pay 100 per cent of capital costs and 75 per cent of operating costs.

Junior college boards in that state could assess up to five mills of local taxes for college capital costs, plus 3½ mills for operating costs. If they need more they go to the people and "never have any trouble getting voter approval."

He said glowing reports he heard about two-year colleges made him tend to view them with some suspicion that they couldn't be "that good."

But he said he came back convinced that everything he had heard was true—that "two-year colleges offer a range of dreamed of a few years ago, educational opportunities unequalled in any other province."

(Vancouver voters will be asked to approve a two-year college for the city at next Wednesday's municipal elections).

Duncan Carols Earn Food

A festival of Christmas carols which will be heard in Duncan will be enjoyed even more by the children in Korea.

Warm response means food for the hungry.

The Mount Prevost Festival Singers, a group of Grade eight and nine students who are presenting a Festival of Carols next Wednesday in Mount Prevost Junior Secondary School have asked that the silver collection taken at the concert be donated to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund."

Concert will also include Duncan Elementary School Choirs and Queen Margaret's School Chapel Choir.

It is donations like this that help to swell the Times-sponsored campaign fund for Korean children, as well as the $200 anonymous donations and the contributions from old age pensioners who include one, two, five and ten dollar bills and then say, "sorry I can't send more."

And then there are the children who donate their piggy bank savings like Brian, Gregory and Ellen Dowell who donated $1.05, and Suzanne, Jennifer and Michael Rowland who gave $3.

All donations, no matter how small, should be sent to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund," care of the Times, 2631 Douglas. Contributions will be acknowledged in the paper and official receipts for income tax purposes will be sent later from USC headquarters.

Donations are also being accepted at the Bank of Montreal, main branch, Yates and Douglas.

HOW CHAMPIONS DRIVE

Give Police Co-Operation

By BOB VEITH

You've been hearing a lot from us about safety on the road — about how to drive courteously, with an alert mind and with a car in good running condition.

Veith

I think it's high time to mention the work of the men who make it their business to protect our highways from motorists who don't practice these safety precautions — our traffic police and highway patrolmen.

In travelling to high schools all over Canada and the U.S. for the Champion Highway Safety Program, I've visited police officers and discussed their problems. In fact, a lot of them have attended the assemblies in schools where I've presented the program.

It's no secret that a patrolman's main purpose is to make our roads safe for all motorists. But it seems as though many of us forget this. When we are stopped for traffic violations, or when we see others who have been pulled to the side of the road, too many of us feel that the police are people to avoid, out-wit — yes, even to out-race.

This is an unfair — and a very wrong impression to hold of these men who risk their lives every day to maintain your safety on the highway.

The next time you see a car pulled to the side, don't grumble about what a bunch of killjoys the police are— how unfortunate the poor sucker is who was caught— what a smart guy you are.

Look at it another way.

That officer out there is protecting YOU. By reprimanding the motorist for careless driving, he is really bettering your own odds for a safer trip. Every arrest he makes is a necessary one— one that forces the motorist to be a more cautious driver in the future.

And remember this: Our patrolmen protect you in other ways, too. They are trouble shooters. They guide you when you are lost. They secure help for you in case of mechanical failure. They promote safety by making car checks, advising motorists of short cuts, detours and better routes. And in case of an accident, their knowledge and training in first aid may save your life.

Let's all remember to give them our consideration and respect in helping them to further better, safer driving on our highways.

COMEDIAN Bob Hope planned to enter a San Francisco hospital today to undergo treatment for a blood clot in his left eye. Hope said there was a possibility he would be forced to cancel his annual Christmas tour of U.S. military bases abroad. Hope also was forced to cancel his Dec. 13 television show. His longtime friend Bing Crosby, has agreed to take over.

Mayor Views Two Aspects

Mayor R. B. Wilson says he was sorry to learn that the Moore-Whittington sawmill operation had been sold but was happy to see that a "good citizen company" such as B.C. Forest Products made the purchase.

"It's always sad to see a firm go the way of all flesh, but if it has to be then at least I'm glad to see it taken over by B.C. Forest Products because they have proved to be a good citizen company.

"The sawmill division particularly has been very co-operative with the city in reducing the smoke nuisance."

The mayor said he was pleased that the Moore-Whittington name would not disappear from the city because the firm had retained its woodworking and retail plant.

Dentists Win Appeal Against B.C. Cabinet

A Supreme Court judge Wednesday ruled the B.C. cabinet went beyond its powers in regulations concerning dentists.

The ruling concerning a fine technical point, is not expected to have any effect on the power of the cabinet generally, a government constitutional expert said today.

But it is part of a long-waged battle between B.C. dentists and dental technicians with the government caught in the middle.

REGULATION HIT

Chief Justice J. O. Wilson of the Supreme Court ruled in favor of the B.C. College of Dental Surgeons, declaring the cabinet had wrongly repealed regulations disciplining dentists who deal with technicians.

The judgment wipes out the complete slate of regulations concerning dentists contained in cabinet order 1641.

The Dentistry Act gives the dental college full power to draw up and to change the regulations.

The cabinet can only approve the regulations. It can't change them or repeal existing ones.

HISTORY OUTLINED

The college this year prepared a complete new set of regulations and submitted them to the cabinet; the cabinet approved all but two sections.

The cabinet acted on advice of the attorney-general's department that the sections in question conflicted with the Dental Technicians Act.

A spokesman said the dentists' submission would have blocked technicians from dealing with the public.

The law at present is that technicians may make false teeth and deal with the public if they receive a certificate from a professional dentist authorizing the work.

The two sections in dispute were intended to give the dental college disciplinary powers over any dentist who violated these rules. In fact they prohibited any dealing with technicians.

The cabinet asked the college to submit newly-worded sections, but instead, the dentists went to court.

The health official said it will now be up to the dental college to present a new set of regulations for cabinet approval, including the disciplinary sections.

The legal spokesman said only a few "professional acts" allow groups to make up their own regulations for cabinet approval, and he anticipated little effect as a result of the court decision.

Doctors and lawyers would not be affected, he said, chiropracters and chiropodists would be.

Federalist Council At Ottawa

Professor C. S. Burchill will meet next week in Ottawa with MPs and senators of all parties who are joining the Canadian World Federalist Parliamentary Council.

At least 30 and possibly 50 MPs and senators will be involved in the movement," he said.

Purpose of the parliamentary association is to work for world order and peace through establishment of world law and institutions to interpret and enforce this law.

NON-PARTISAN

"Foreign policy in Canada is a matter of non-partisan concern," the professor stated.

"Formation of a group of this kind will be most helpful to the Canadian government and such a group will be able to accomplish a great deal in maintaining contact and understanding between the electorate on one hand and the federal departments concerned with foreign policy on the other."

Officers of the Parliamentary council are Senator Arthur W. Roebuck, honorary chairman; Miss Pauline Jewett, Northumberland, Ont., chairman; Esquimalt-Saanich MP George Chatterton and Georges Lachance, LaFontaine, Que., vice-chairmen, and J. Gordon Dubroy, second clerk assistant, House of Commons, secretary-treasurer.

Prof. Burchill also announced today Canadian World Federalists plan to submit a brief to the cabinet proposing Canadian sponsorship of changes to the United Nations charter designed to give the UN more power for world peace.

POSTHUMOUS MEDAL

Chief Mungo Martin Awarded Rare Honor

The Canada Council has announced that next March it will award the late Kwakiutl chief its special medal for contributions to culture.

However, the award has created considerable confusion in Victoria.

Nobody knows who will receive the medal or what will happen to it.

"I would presume one of the family will accept it," said deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace.

DIFFICULT DECISION

But a provincial museum official said it will be difficult to decide which member of the family it should be.

"There could be as many as eight people involved," he suggested.

DISPLAY MEDAL

Mrs. Hunt said it would be "a marvelous idea" to display the medal in the park.

The medal is to be presented at a dinner in Ottawa next March 31.

Nobody in Victoria has so far been invited.

Mrs. Hunt said the award is "a great honor."

"Mungo fought to keep the Indian culture alive, and now this has been recognized," she said.

FIRST INDIAN

Mungo is the first Indian to win a Canada Council Medal, and only the second person to receive it posthumously.

A total of 17 people have been awarded the medal, which includes $2,000 in cash, except in the case of posthumous awards.

Mungo( whose real age was not known, carved for the provincial museum from 1952 until his death in 1962.

WORLD'S TALLEST

He designed and carved the world's tallest totem pole — standing 127 feet six inches in Beacon Hill Park — in 1956 as a special project promoted by the Times to provide him with work when provincial funds ran out.

For B.C.'s centenary in 1958, he carved a totem presented to the Queen.

Other medals to be presented in March will go to conductor Sir Ernest MacMillan, painter Frederick Varley and economist Esdras Minville.

Police Suspect Addict Colony

Police officers investigating the current wave of break-ins in Greater Victoria suspect an unusually large number of drug addicts in this area may be partly responsible.

There have been almost 50 burglaries or attempted burglaries reported in the last two weeks. Police say this is more than the usual upsurge that they expect at this time of year.

Part of the cause may also be a heavy pre-Christmas release of prisoners from jails. It is customary at this time of year for many criminals to be paroled in order to spend Christmas with their families.

YOUTHS INVOLVED

It has already been found that some of the breakings and enterings are the work of juveniles.

But some police officers are inclined to think drug addicts are mainly responsible. In the last two weeks about 10 known drug users have come to the attention of police in Greater Victoria.

Most experienced police officers are highly sceptical that drug addicts reform in prison. Usually they say, an addict released from jail starts taking drugs again as soon as he begins to mix with old associates.

NEED MONEY

Burglaries are one of the principal means by which drug users obtain the money they need to keep them supplied with narcotics.

Some of the drug users who have recently appeared in this area were jailed several years ago, all at about the same time, after police cracked a ring of addicts.

They were suspected of being responsible for an outbreak of burglaries that occurred at that time. Police say a confirmed addict may spend between $50 and $100 a day on drugs and to get the money some of them will break into half a dozen places a night.

Dealers Get Kickback On New Car Financing

TORONTO (CP)—The select committee on consumer credit was told Wednesday that car dealers get a kickback of up to one-third of the cost of financing a new car.

W. E. Matthews, president of General Motors Acceptance Corporation of Canada Limited, said General Motors dealers receive $117.50 of the total $400 finance charge on the balance of $2,000 financed over 2½ years by GMAC.

Mr. Matthews described the rebates — which are increased for volume sales—as the dealer's "participation" for his expense in completing the credit transaction and for the risk he may assume in the event of repossession of the auto.

Currently, the repossession rate is "very, very good" although it normally runs at three to five per cent of sales, he told the legislative committee.

Donald MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party, said: "I have a suspicion this one-third is really a gimmick to get dealers to deal through GMAC."

"I wouldn't say that," replied Mr. Matthews, "we don't do more than others in the trade."

He told the committee "dealers consider the income from this participation an essential part of the business."

William Noden (PC — Rainy River) asked why this part should be included as income and an essential part of the business.

"Because he's giving a service. Some customers can't get this service from other institutions. I'm thinking of banks," replied Mr. Matthews.

MEET JAN RUBES

On Screen, on Stage And in Operatic Role

A personal appearance was made Wednesday night at the Capitol Theatre, when a member of the cast of the film "The Incredible Journey," Jan Rubes, was introduced to the audience.

The event was a premiere sponsored by Victoria branch of the SPCA, of the movie made from the famous best seller by Canadian author, Sheila Burnford.

Mr. Rubes, a widely known singer of radio, television, and the operatic stage, is in Victoria as a member of the cast of the Mozart opera, "Cosi fan tutte."

The Canadian Opera Company production is being presented Friday night in Duncan, and Sunday afternoon and Monday night at the Royal Theatre by Victoria Symphony Society with the Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Otto-Werner Mueller.

This is the second visit to Victoria by the Toronto-based company. Last season, Puccini's "La Boheme" was presented with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra and proved one of the outstanding successes of the symphony season.

DISCOUNTS ELECTION

Pearson Aims For Full Term

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson today had set his sights on a full-four-year term for his minority government and placed the responsibility for an early election squarely on the oppositoin.

In a surprise statement to Parliament Wednesday, the prime minister said he had no intention of interrupting his "program for a parliament" to go to the country. The normal course of a parliament is four years.

"If there is an election before that time it will be the responsibility of other parties in this house," he said.

The statement, although a surprise to those who expected another campaign within two years, was in keeping with Pearson's pledge when he took over from opposition leader John Diefenbaker last April.

At that time he assured Canadians that, even if his party lacked the voting strength to hold its own in the Commons, he intended to proceed as though it had a majority.

FULL STRENGTH

The Liberals have 129 of the 265 seats in the House and could be defeated by a united opposition at full strength. By law a federal vote must be called once every five years.

Although it has been generally conceded that no party is seriously eager for an immediate election after the financial burdens of two campaigns in less than a year and four elections in seven years, Diefenbaker sparked renewed speculation this week when he asked his party to unite and prepare for an early battle.

At present there is a measure before the Commons to set up independent commissions to redistribute Canada's constituency boundaries by the fall of 1965, but Diefenbaker said he felt the government would call an election before that time under the existing distribution.

LEADS PARTY

The opposition leader has also made it clear that he intends to lead his party to the polls, in spite of speculation that he may be replaced before another election.

Pearson's program for a parliament contains enough proposals to keep the Commons busy for four years, provided it does not run into an insurmountable blockade by the opposition.

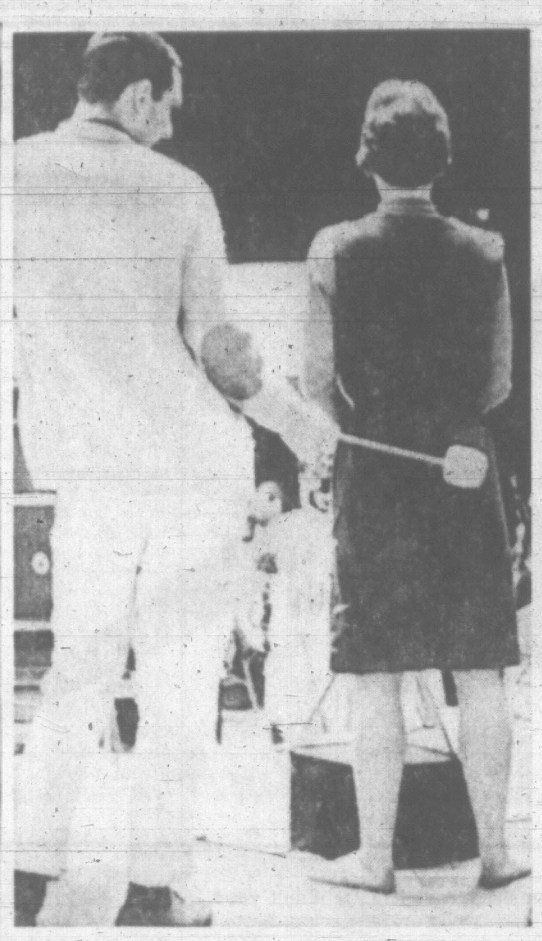

If this happened many observers have felt the prime minister would dissolve parliament rather than risk a defeat on the floor of the house.

Wednesday Pearson sounded as though he was prepared to push his legislation to the limit and left it up to the opposition to decide what that limit was.

Dominion Sugar Profits Decline

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada and Dominion Sugar Co. has reported a net profit of $2,669,000 for the year ended Sept. 30 compared with $3,306,000 for the previous fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1962.

G. B. Foster, company president, said profits were adversely affected by the spectacular rise in world sugar prices from $3.50 a 100-pound bag, London, in October, 1962, to $13.60 in May, 1963.

Pearson, Johnson Seek To Firm Good Relations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Canadian Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson and President Johnson will meet next month with a far different task than faced Pearson and the late President Kennedy at Hyannis Port last May.

At the Hyannis Port meeting May 20-21, the job was to patch up Canadian-U.S. relations that had gone sour and restore communication between the two governments, the observers said.

At the Jan. 22 meeting between Pearson and Johnson here, the job will be to retain and continue the communications that have been built up, observers said today.

Although many of the same problems that faced Pearson and Kennedy still remain—and some new ones have been added—the whole tone of Canadian-U.S. affairs has changed in the little over six months since the Hyannis Port meeting.

Cabinet-level conferences on a variety of matters have been frequent, and lower-level communication has been even more constant.

Meetings of the joint cabinet-level committee on economic affairs have resumed, and although the joint cabinet committee on defence has not met as a group, the cabinet officers involved have gotten together separately.

Canadian Defence Minister Paul Hellyer said after a meeting with U.S. Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara Oct. 11, "I think we have pretty well eliminated the outstanding areas of differences which existed" between the two countries on defence matters.

Soldiers Get 'Ransom'

BRAZZAVILLE, Congo Republic (AP)—Congolese soldiers of this former French colony were paid their back wages Wednesday. In turn, they released their chief of staff, Maj. David Monsaka. The soldiers seized him Monday and vowed to hold him until the republic's provisional government paid them last month's salaries.

'He Acted Like Wild Animal'

QUEBEC (CP)—A jail guard testified Wednesday he was attacked and bitten in the thigh early one morning by Leopold Dion in his cell here.

Emmanuel Fregeau, 26, was testifying at the seventh day of Dion's trial on a capital murder charge—for the slaying of a boy—as the defence began its case.

The Crown finished with the last of its witnesses earlier Wednesday.

Defence lawyer Guy Bertrand, 25, said he would attempt to show that Dion, 43-year-old cabinet maker, is mentally ill and that because of his illness "He acted like a wild animal."

Mr. Bertrand said he would attempt to introduce Dion's past record and that it includes convictions on sexual offenses.

"The horror and monstrosity of these crimes has a direct link with the gravity of his illness," Mr. Bertrand said.

The defence lawyer said Dion was twice freed on parole, had spent about 20 years in jail and should have had medical treatment. He should never have been freed and he should never have been sent to prison, the lawyer said.

TAX MEASURE APPROVED

Reluctant Senators Back Bill

OTTAWA (CP)—The minority Liberal government won a close vote in the Commons Wednesday and another not-so-close one in the Senate.

In the Commons, Speaker Macnaughton cast the deciding vote to sustain his own ruling rejecting a motion put by Creditiste House Leader Gilles Gregoire.

All four opposition parties lined up against the Liberals to produce a 106 to 106 tie vote. Mr. Gregoire's motion attempted to have the Commons instruct the mines committee to examine boundary questions in the Northwest Territories involving provincial claims to ownership of off-shore islands in the North.

The tie vote marked the fourth time since Confederation that the Speaker has been called upon to cast a deciding vote. It happened before in 1870, 1889 and 1925.

In the Senate, government supporters—some of them admittedly reluctant—beat down a Conservative motion to kill a key portion of the June 13 budget dealing with withhold taxes paid by corporations. The vote, the first recorded in the upper chamber in 2½ years, was 38 to 23.

Mr. Gregoire said in the Commons that Liberal members of the mines committee had broken a pledge given by two cabinet ministers that ways would be found to have the committee investigate provincial claims to the off-shore northern islands.

After the vote, State Secretary Pickersgill offered to appear before the committee to discuss any commitment he might have made. Committee Chairman Osias J. Godin (L—Nickel Belt) indicated that the minister may appear before the committee Friday.

Senator Wallace McCutcheon (PC — Ontario), former trade minister and a business executive, led the fight in the Senate against a provision in the budget which gives a tax concession to companies with at least 25 per cent of their stock owned by Canadian residents, and increases taxes for companies that don't qualify.

Senator McCutcheon said the legislation would discourage foreign investment in Canada.

Senator T. A. Crerar (L—Manitoba) said he was voting for the bill only because he was confident the government would correct in its next budget the "blunders, abuses and errors" of the last one.

In the Senate's first recorded vote since July 7, 1961, 61 of the 97 senators turned out. Senate standings are Liberals 60, Conservatives 34, Independents 2, Independent Liberal one and vacant five for a total of 102.

The Senate gave third and final reading to the income tax bill. It needs only royal assent to become law formally. But it has been enforced since June 14.

Magazines Banned

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)—The Cambodian government banned the American news magazines Time and Newsweek Wednesday, charging they had committed "critical acts of injury against the Cambodian government." The announcement did not specify which stories in the magazines were considered objectionable.

Good Man, Wrong Job

MR. KENNETH KIERNAN HAS enjoyed an excellent reputation as one of the soundest, most stable and most conscientious ministers ever appointed by Mr. Bennett to his cabinet.

The premier shows recognition of that fact by his selection of Mr. Kiernan to fill the vacancy caused by the defeat of Mr. Earle Westwood, who was minister of recreation and conservation and minister of commercial transport.

No one doubts Mr. Kiernan's abilities for the job. But the appointment must be questioned for two distinct reasons.

In the first instance there is a virtually unavoidable conflict between the two departments he now heads. As minister of mines and petroleum resources Mr. Kiernan has an inherent obligation to stimulate mining and oil and natural gas well development in the province wherever minerals or petroleum can be found.

Opposed to this is the obligation of a minister of recreation and conservation to see that miners and oil interests do not invade our present park lands and potential park lands to the point where these recreational areas are either destroyed or rendered much less desirable for public enjoyment because of mining or oil well development.

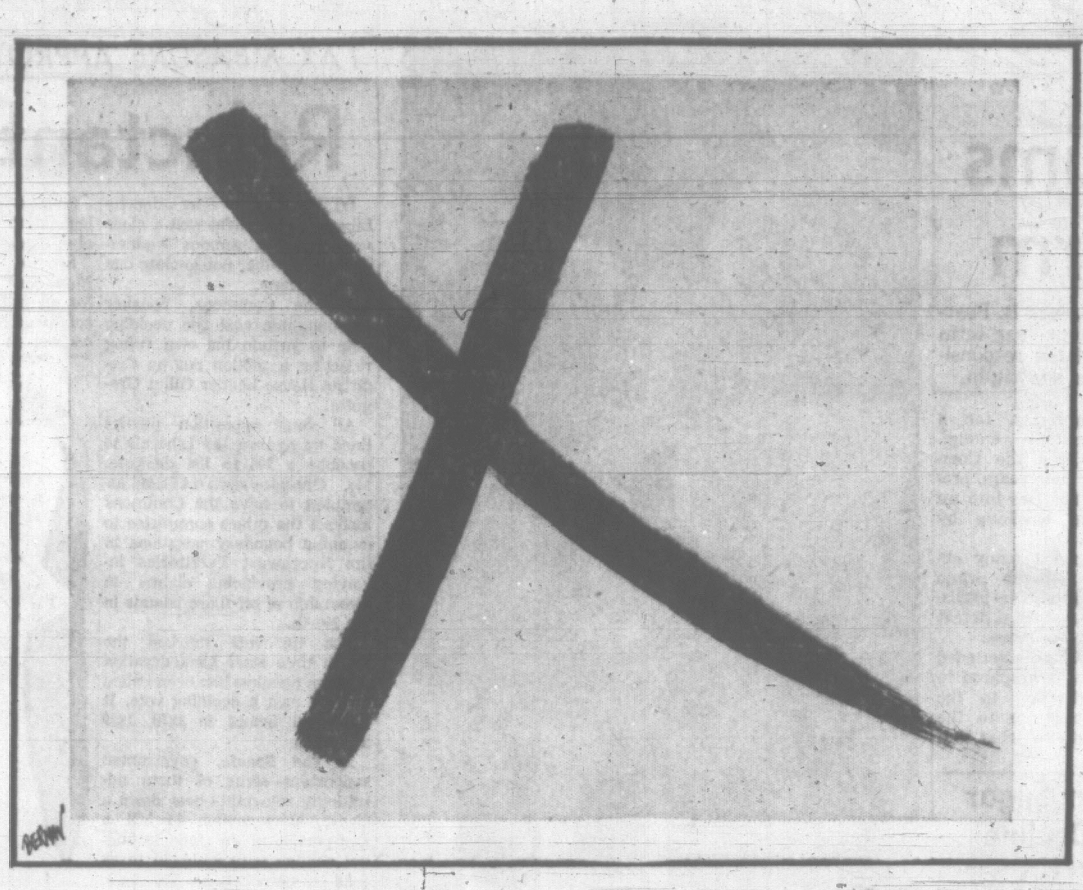

The second obvious objection involves the burdens placed on the minister himself. If he is to carry out his duties as head of the mines and petroleum resources department, as well as being a director of British Columbia Hydro, he has a full time job. He should not be loaded down further by the extra and onerous responsibilties of looking after the parks and the tourist and recreational elements for which they cater.

The cabinet is already under intermittent criticism—and it is justified—because of dual portfolios. Mr. Leslie Peterson, whose work as minister of education was enough for one man before he was saddled with the portfolio of labor, is a frequent target for charges that he is trying to do too much—trying to do, in fact more than one man should be expected to do.

Mr. Kiernan's position will be even less comfortable. He is being asked to mix oil for the productive machine with water for the tourist's visual delight—an experiment which does not work.

There are two other points which will rouse public concern. One is the apparent admission made by Mr. Bennett, when he doubles up on cabinet appointments, that his followers in the legislature are grievously lacking in ministerial ability. Some individual ministers, it appears, have to do the work of two because the government side of the house cannot produce an adequate supply of competent men.

The other issue is of direct interest to Vancouver Island. Through Mr. Westwood's defeat and retirement, the Island's representation in the cabinet is cut to one, Mr. Chant. Voters from here to the top reaches of Comox constituency must draw their own conclusions from that.

Bierman, Victoria Daily Times.

Simple, wasn't it? Or didn't you?

Not Much Progress for Alliance

AMONG THE FACTS OF INternational politics which must be faced by President Johnson is the threat of collapse confronting the Alliance for Progress, the program launched just two years ago by the late President Kennedy to bring prosperity and stability to Latin America.

The difficulties of the Alliance were emphasized just a week prior to President Kennedy's assassination at the second annual meeting of United States and Latin American delegates in Sao Paulo, Brazil. This meeting brought out the sharp difference in opinion between the United States and the Latin American countries over control of Alliance funds.

Under Secretary of State W. Averell Harriman had to tell the delegates flatly that the United States could not consider relinquishing control of the funds, an obvious result of past experience with American aid dollars, some of which have been sent to Latin American countries only to end up in the private bank accounts of government officials, rather than being spent to help the people.

While Mr. Harriman continued to reiterate his country's position that economic reform in Latin America is the first essential in economic progress, many of the delegates professed to believe that their troubles rested on trade imbalance resulting from low world prices for their goods. Brazil's President Goulart proposed increased trade with the Soviet bloc as one way out of the trade imbalance difficulty—a proposal which could hardly have pleased the Americans whose hope for the Alliance is at least partly that it will work against Communist influence in Latin America.

What emerged from the Sao Paulo meeting was less of a sentiment for "pan-Americanism" than for "pan-Latin Americanism" with Brazil obviously aiming for leadership. President Goulart was even successful in having a committee appointed to represent Alliance countries at the United Nations' Trade Conference in Geneva next spring with the United States relegated to the position only of "observer" in the committee's deliberations.

Thus, to a considerable degree the offer of the United States to help stabilize the Latin American economic situation—a generous offer even though it was made partly in the self-interest of the United States—has been rebuffed. Many of the countries concerned have apparently decided that if they cannot have aid without reforms, then they will get along without aid.

This attitude poses tremendous dangers for this hemisphere. The contrast between the grinding poverty which is the lot of the bulk of Latin American peoples and the staggering wealth and privilege of a relative handful of people at the top is bound to continue and increase the social unrest which provides a fertile breeding ground for extremes of right and left in politics.

Canada so far, and it would seem, wisely, has avoided direct involvement in Latin American political affairs despite the urging of the United States and other members of the Organization of American States to take an active role in that organization. This country, however, must be prepared to play a more decisive part in affairs of the Western Hemisphere for reasons of defence and trade.

Canadians are generally well-liked in Latin America and in no small measure because they are free of the taint of "Yanqui imperialism." The opportunity to serve both Latin America and North America as an intermediary may well be offered to Canada and it would be difficult to refuse, despite the reluctance of Canadians to be drawn too much into the politics of that area.

The Traffic In Guns Goes On

THE CONSCIENTIOUS EFFORT of well-meaning people in the United States to secure legislation enforcing stricter control over firearms has won wider public support as the result of the Dallas tragedy. But the support, it seems, may not be wide enough.

The range of proposals to keep guns out of irresponsible or criminal hands is broad. One suggestion, for instance, calls for an outright ban against the importation of war surplus foreign weapons and ammunition for resale. Another would limit control of firearms to their registration, with the understanding that registration would make the gun traceable.

But while concern is growing over the ease with which guns can be obtained—often by juveniles—a proposed ordinance restricting possession of firearms in the city of Dallas has in recent days been declared "unconstitutional" by the county.

Constitutionally, citizens of the United States have the right to keep and bear arms. Government control, it is argued by some, would infringe this right.

In the meantime, criminal elements and young people can acquire guns virtually as easily as they can buy other merchandise through the mails and no adequate check can be made of where the weapons go or who uses them.

In Canada, a different arrangement exists. Hand guns, which are among the "concealed weapons" listed in Canadian law, can be kept only by those who have permits from approved authorities. Other types of firearms, rifles and shotguns, can be owned and kept in the home, but cannot be taken out unless the possessor of the gun has a licence for its use.

NATO Conference—Test for Johnson

THE Atlantic defence controversy has been thrown wide open by the death of President Kennedy. A number of major issues have been coming to a head in time for the NATO ministerial conference opening in Paris on December 16, as shown by the planned attendance of such unusually high figures as U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk and British Foreign Secretary R. A. Butler.

Purser

Now the meeting takes on added significance as the first international conference test of President Johnson's administration. The broad issues are those of U.S. leadership vs. French recalcitrance, the distribution and control of NATO nuclear strength, and progress toward an East-West understanding. While Mr. Johnson has inevitably said he will pursue Mr. Kennedy's policies, NATO awaits to see where the emphasis will fall and how capably they will be presented.

Chief Actors

There are four chief national actors on the NATO stage: (1) The United States, anxious to maintain its own leadership and nuclear control to support itself as chief Western negotiator with the Soviet Union, but beset by fears and feelings of inequality from its European allies. (2) France, whose President de Gaulle hopes eventually to substitute a French nuclear shield for the American in Europe, making France the leader in a Europe of nation-states. (3) Germany, anxious above all for its own long-term security and national unity, looking to U.S. leadership but strongly wooed by Paris. (4) Britain, complicating all issues by insisting on its own independent nuclear deterrent for purely national (i.e., non-Atlantic and non-European) purposes.

One of the best-known specific issues emerging from this alliance-threatening web of conflicting interests is that of the multilateral force, or MLF. This was proposed by Mr. Kennedy as a fleet of ships manned by international crews drawn from several NATO nations and carrying Polaris missiles.

Politically Motivated

The MLF was politically motivated. It was devised as a scheme to give the European allies, notably Germany, a nuclear force in which they could genuinely participate and not feel left out. They will be able to participate in deciding whether to fire the missiles, which they cannot do with the giant, unilaterally-controlled U.S. deterrent. But even in the MLF the U.S. will have the veto.

The MLF, ramshackle proposal that it is, has been having a hard time. The Germans and some smaller powers have nibbled strongly at the bait. France will have nothing to do with it. An unhappy Britain is taking part in talks on the MLF, not because it thinks the force may have great military value but because it fears being cut out of any development that brings closer U.S.-German political ties or increases European unity.

Britain's moral dilemma is that the MLF is intended to prevent proliferation of national nuclear forces within the alliance at the same time that Britain is determined to develop its own such force. A more practical dilemma is political: Britain would prefer not to make a public decision on joining the MLF until after the election. These confusions have sharply set back the MLF timetable but this is par in NATO. A complete review of NATO strategy (quite unco-ordinated with the MLF discussions) is also well behind schedule.

NATO parliamentarians meeting in Paris in November in a purely talking-shop capacity took a dim view of the MLF. Some small NATO nations unable to participate fear lowered status, some military circles favor submarines to surface ships, and some British circles are even trying to shift the concept to one of an air rather than sea force (because they are trying to peddle the controversial TSR-2 aircraft).

The U.S. has been plugging on gamely, most recently with an offer to provide a pilot mixed-manned ship. But there are mixed opinions even at high levels in the U.S., and it remains to be seen whether under Mr. Johnson the U.S. will press the MLF as vigorously as before, or will let it lapse, or will come up with something better, or will adopt a new concept.

Present Concept

The present concept is one of ultimate U.S. retention of all NATO nuclear control, whatever MLF or other facades of joint control may be offered. In the long run, will this really resist the appeal of Gaullism in Europe? Powerful voices suggest not.

Some of these voices are in the Republican party in the U.S. This will not make it any easier for the administration to establish a viable long-term alliance leadership policy. France is the only major NATO power which has not undergone a recent change of leader, and does not face the threat of an imminent change of government.

It may be that only a new type of U.S. initiative, recognizing the new Europe for what it is, will save the alliance by countering the position of strength in which fate has left de Gaulle.

Changing Tides in German Labor

By NEAL ASCHERSON from Bonn

DOWN in the Saar, a small family quarrel among businessmen has sent out shock waves which have alerted all German trades unionists. The Saar, that little box of rich industries and mines which was only with difficulty taken back from France some years after the war, has a textile and leather industry. Its bosses struck a deal with the Textile and Clothing Union, agreeing to pay holiday money but only to union members. When they heard about this, the Saar Employers Association threw the textile manufacturers out of their group.

This incident has two meanings. First, it is a sharp slap in the face to the "liberalizing" element in the West German Trades Union Congress (DGB), who are working to convert the congress to the idea of long-term collective contracts with the employers. Secondly, it is a depressing reminder of the inner rigidity and arrogance of the West German industrialist.

The Saar quarrel falls all too closely on the heels of the special DGB congress in Dusseldorf, on Nov. 21 and 22. This congress saw a cautious step forward in the liberalizers' campaign to wean the unions from the philosophy of class warfare and attach them to the idea of "social partnership" between boss and worker, on the American model.

Compromise

The congress was called to discuss the new "fundamental program" of the DGB. An attempt at the Hanover congress last year to push through a "partnership" declaration of aims had failed. This year, the platform fell back on the rather English expedient of offering the delegates a draft which contained both points of view.

The program states that the unions will be "the decisive instrument of social integration in democracy." This phrase is for the consumption of the left-wing. But the new charter also revalues the old intention of public and workers' ownership of industry. In the old program, public ownership was an "end." Now it has become a "means" to an end. And, of course, a "means" need not be used if the circumstances are unsuitable.

This document was only passed after fierce argument. The main counter-attack from the "class-war" unions came from the leader of the chemical workers, Herr Gefeller, who failed to pass an amendment to the phrase: "The old-style capitalist economy tried to deny the employee social advancement." Herr Gefeller, significantly, wanted the qualifying words "old-style" struck out.

In the DGB, the strongest advocate of the new "partnership" style for long-term bargains and co-operation with the employers is Georg Leber, head of the building workers. In a country where the builders are desperately short of labor, he has achieved some remarkable money benefits for his members. But his speech at the Dusseldorf congress was so violent and provocative that it upset some of the waverers in the hall. He is supported by the intellectual Ludwig Rosenberg, chairman of the DGB and one of the rare Jews left in German public life. In May this year, Rosenberg explicitly came out and defended Leber and his ideas against the attacks of Gefeller.

An unexpectedly soothing part was played at Dusseldorf by Otto Brenner, leader of the gigantic metalworkers' union and usually considered the representative of Marxian extremism in the DGB. Earlier this year, he brought out his members in Baden-Wurttemberg in a strike and lock-out contest which became the biggest labor war since the Weimar Republic. But now Brenner, who has been doing some hard thinking since the strike, surprised his audience by mediating between Leber and Gefeller and by asking them to give the new program a chance.

German public opinion deeply fears the alternation of strike and pay rise which Britain, for instance, accepts as normal. This is regarded as "social warfare," a betrayal of national unity, and the hopeful word "tarifpartners" has been coined to describe the (theoretical) oneness of boss and worker around the negotiation table. The employers are not ashamed to use the language of patriotism to urge docility on their workers.

Beyond this struggle in the DGB lies something fundamental in trade union development. The success of European socialism was founded on the alliance between organized labor and a political party, although the unions were mostly striving for the syndicalist goal of workers' control of society through control of industry, and the socialist parties for popular democracy plus public ownership—a far less revolutionary idea.

Now, that alliance is busting up. In West Germany, there is no longer a formal connection between the DGB and the Social Democrat opposition, which now fears that if the unions do not abandon their old ideas, the party will be smeared as "revolutionary" and never win the middle-class vote they need to gain power. The remains of syndicalism have become a nuisance to the Social Democrats (the same is true of the British Labor Party), who implore German unionists to accept the mild "Leber" line.

Given the startling failure of the Social Democrats and the Labor Party to achieve a popular majority for more than a few years, if that, one can understand this process. Yet the alliance gave both partners strength and confidence. When it is dissolved, as in West Germany, unions and party alike seem to falter and to lose their sense of purpose.

Hard to Believe

I could hardly believe my ears yesterday when I listened to a British Columbia politician lamenting the fact that the heavy water plant would be built in one of the have-not provinces of Canada.

One of Canada's richest provinces should be rejoicing that at long last an industry has been found that might well improve living conditions in the smaller, poorer provinces.

Unless Canadian politicians actually believe in "togetherness"—we have a "fat chance" of ever getting anywhere, and our most thriving export will still be Canadian applicants for American jobs and citizenship.

Effective For Peace

In a letter to the Times, Nov. 21, H. G. Howard states the UN was founded on impractical idealism and has proved itself to be nothing more than a nest of interfering chatterboxes, incompetent to deal with world disputes.

The UN was in fact founded on an acknowledgement of the reality of power politics, with the expectation that the big powers would keep the smaller powers from warring on each other. No effective machinery was established for settling disputes between the great powers; this was thought not possible.

However, the UN has exceeded original expectations concerning control of the great powers.

Now it is the smaller powers who, to a significant degree keep the big powers from war — in the Suez crisis, by the General Assembly resolutions which prevailed over the British and French vetoes in the Security Council; in the Congo crisis, by the General Assembly resolutions which prevailed over vetoes of Russia and the opposition of Britain and France.

Effective power for peace has come about through the application of the "Uniting for Peace" resolution of 1950 which gives authority for action to the "interfering chatterboxes" of the General Assembly when the Security Council is made impotent through use of the veto.

Admittedly, no UN power is effective if either of the super-powers, Russia or the United States, feels its vital interests are threatened by the other. However, prompted by the General Assembly and in a spirit of self-interest for survival, the U.S. and Russia have each detailed and are now negotiating plans for complete and supervised disarmament to be enforced when accomplished by UN controlled armed forces.

This is progress. There is no absolute or magic solution to the problems of peace other than absolute dictatorship or the magic of everyone's disappearing before you can say, "The bombs are coming."

Whose Water?

As an interested resident of Central Saanich, I would like to know the real right to Elk Lake water.

It would seem that Victoria, no longer using the water has forfeited all rights.

The provincial government through the water rights branch says so, and can grant to Central Saanich any justifiable right.

God Almighty sends the water and while it is assumed that He needs middlemen this would appear to be not a case in point. The water rights branch takes no cognizance of property right, and grants water at discretion to whomsoever needs it.

Has Victoria gone into the gangster business?

What Degradation?

The most astounding definition of the term degradation was heard recently from a speech of the minister of health and welfare.

Criticizing the mayor of Courtney for his very sane idea that where possible the recipients of welfare should earn such benefits—if such it can be termed, the minister of welfare stated that such a request would be degrading.

Obviously, the minister is out of touch with human nature for there are many seeking work and wages—preferable to the dole—that cannot get same due to the upheaval that automation has caused.

Many too would much prefer to obtain a position where it would be possible to increase their own emolument, and procure security, with the hope that "degradation" would not besmirch their own conscience.

A Case of Need

In your recent editorial on the new Atomic Plant to be located in Nova Scotia you mention the political necessity for providing employment in this depressed area. When one has worked in and around Sydney and Glace Bay, as I have done, and come to know the families who have suffered from the closing down of mines and other industries, one does not think of politics but of hard-hit, hungry people, and their need for the ordinary necessities of life.

Gerald Waring ...REPORTING

OTTAWA—If you hear a horn tooting in the distance, that'll be me.

And if you wonder what's Waring tooting about, the answer is that after 12 years, nine months and 22 days of writing three columns a week from Ottawa and places like Pnom Penh, Madrid, Tokyo, Washington and Tuktoyaktuk, I have arrived at column number 2,000.

And if you say, so what?—well, just put it down as one of Waring's foibles. Years ago Senator Nancy Hodges told me proudly that she'd written 2,000 columns when she worked for the Victoria Times, and that figure became to me what Maurice Richard's 544 goals were to Gordie Howe.

There's no record involved — just a great satisfaction. A million or so people read the papers from New Brunswick to British Columbia that carry this column, and that makes me a millionaire in a way that is more important to me than money.

Now, don't some wise guy come along with a million bucks . . .

I'd even forgotten what I wrote my first column about, on Feb. 13, 1951, until I looked up no. one in the files:

"War criminal Kurt Meyer, who is serving a life sentence for the murder of Canadian soldiers, will not walk out of the Maritime Penitentiary a free man," I wrote. "What may happen, however, is his transfer to a prison in the British zone of Germany . . ." That of course is what happened.

The files bulge, a chronicle of current history, of events, ideas and people, a distillate of the strivings and yearnings of a maturing nation . . . six Parliaments, three administrations, innumerable individuals in a melange of more than a million words . . . maybe I should write a book!

A columnist is an odd duck among his fellow journalists. He's a combination of reporter, editorial writer, humorist and essayist. He can have all the qualities of a good newspaperman — sources, knowledge, understanding, judgment, perspective, insight, writing ability, honor—but that doesn't make him a columnist unless he also has a point of view, something to say that comes from within himself, and a willingness to say it. I remember one colleague who tried to write a column called, modestly, "This Man's Opinion." Trouble was, he had no opinions.

Why write a column? I suppose because of the journalistic freedom of this format, and the satisfaction of putting forward your own ideas as a contribution towards public understanding. This is power, part of the "power of the press." And besides, no editor in his right mind would think of ordering a columnist out of his comfortable sanctum to "cover that fire at Main and Elm!"

The worst days in the life of a columnist are those when he stares bleakly at fresh paper in typewriter, dismayed at the realization that he has nothing to say and 500 words in which to say it.

Those are the days he sweats. Deadlines are inexorable. But in this business somehow the column gets written, because writing is nine parts work and only one part inspiration.

So much for this milestone—but don't go away. I've just begun to write!

GOULART

Brazil Totters On Brink Of Revolution

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—President Joao Goulart is headed for a worried Christmas.

His foes say he won't last in office until the new year. His nation is near bankruptcy. Congress is suspicious of him. His political alliances are shaky. Workers are threatening strikes. And a military crisis may be brewing.

In a recent interview, Goulart admitted the Brazilian economy is on the verge of collapse. He placed much of the blame on falling world prices for Brazil's products. But he offered no solutions.

Now Goulart's government is faced with the payment of the so-called 13th month salary—a Christmas bonus equal to a month's salary—to all federal employees.

The 44-year-old chief, who once prided himself on being the working man's best friend, is also faced with demands from all kinds of workers—from gravediggers to school teachers—for 80- to 100-per-cent wage increases with guarantees for cost-of-living adjustments within six months.

GOVERNORS HOSTILE

Two influential governors, Carlos Lacerda of Guanabara state (the city of Rio de Janeiro) and Adhemar de Barros of prosperous Sao Paulo, continue their assaults on Goulart's government.

Lacerda has predicted the Brazilian military will remove Goulart soon from the office he succeeded to in September, 1961, after the resignation of Janio Quadros as president.

Military unrest began frothing up with the jailing of a well-liked officer who complained he was transferred for political reasons.

The implication was that Col. Francisco Bonaventura was transferred fom the crack Brazilian paratroop regiment to a post in south Brazil because he refused to take part in an alleged attempt to arrest Lacerda. Lacerda claimed that an army squad tried to arrest him duing a political crisis early in October.

The uneasy coalition between the Social Democrats and Goulart's Brazilian Labor party is reported in trouble. Goulart also is reported running into some opposition in his own Labor party.

This opposition began building up when Goulart unsuccessfully tried to impose a state of siege in October.

BRAB to the Rescue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The complexities of modern life are demonstrated in many and varied ways, some of which are rather bewildering.

Nothing along that line has bewildered me quite as much as a press release someone passed along to me recently. It was captioned thusly:

West

"BRAB announces appointment of ad hoc committee on performance characteristics of sanitary plumbing fixtures."

A caption like that doesn't just grab your attention. It seizes your attention with a double hammerlock and throws it to the mat.

When I had recovered my equilibrium, I came to grips with two piercing questions: (1) Who, or what, is "BRAB?" and (2) How does an ad hoc committee go about determining whether sanitary plumbing fixtures are performing characteristically?

For instance, some of the sanitary plumbing fixtures at my place will occasionally stop up and at other times overflow.

But I haven't the vaguest notion as to which of these performances is characteristic.

Seeking enlightenment, I plunged into the text of the press release where I learned that "BRAB" is the abbreviation of the Building Research Board of the National Academy of Sciences.

On the second point, however, the release was something less than lucid. It said merely that "the committee's work will be made possible by joint government-industry support."

Then it added that "with such support, BRAB will be able to bring to bear, on the problems of identifying and measuring physical and functional characteristics essential to the performance of sanitary plumbing fixtures, the collective knowledge of government, industrial, and academic scientists and engineers."

By the time I finished reading that, I was thoroughly alarmed. BRAB obviously was dealing with a problem of the first magnitude. And yet there was scarcely a hint as to its nature.

Fighting off panic, I called a chap in the information office of the National Academy of Science and asked him to tell me all he could about it without violating security.

He replied that he had not been completely briefed but understood it had something to do with a reluctance on the part of builders to accept new developments in sanitary plumbing fixtures.

That relieved my anxiety somewhat, but whetted my curiosity. I am determined to get to the bottom of this, and when I do I'll let you know.

Black Muslim Aide Ousted For Remark

CHICAGO (UPI)—The leader of the anti-white Black Muslim sect Wednesday suspended Malcolm X, his militant second-in-command, for expressing joy at the assassination of President Kennedy.

Elijah Muhammad, self-styled Messenger of Allah and head of the black supremacy sect, said Malcolm did not speak for Muhammad when he characterized Kennedy's assassination as an instance of "the chickens coming home to roost."

Malcolm was quoted as saying Kennedy had been "twiddling his thumbs" at the slaying of South Vietnamese President Diem and his brother Nhu.

War Crimes Suspect

LUDWIGSHAVEN, West Germany (AP) — Dr. Georg Fleischmann, chief of the Ludwigshaven criminal police, was arrested Wednesday night as a war crimes suspect. Fleischmann, 57, is suspected of having been on the staff of "Einsatzgruppe B," a Nazi extermination command that killed hundreds of thousands of Jews in the Smolensk region of German-occupied Russia, justice authorities said.

Are you the one person in three who might benefit from a low-cost Seaboard Mortgage Loan?

Borrow up to $10,000- as long as 10 years

What is a Seaboard Mortgage Loan? It is a low-cost loan for people who own, or are in the process of buying a home. The money you have invested in your property is excellent collateral for a Seaboard Mortgage Loan. And this means you get one of the lowest rates of interest to be found anywhere, because real estate offers such excellent security. A Seaboard Mortgage Loan has the added advantage of letting you borrow up to 80% of the value of your property, as compared to approximately 66% for most conventional mortgages.

When should you take out a Seaboard Mortgage Loan? Only when it's to your advantage. This can be worked out between you and your Seabord manager. You and he may find that a Seaboard Mortgage Loan can help you, as it has other people:

- To reduce your monthly mortgage payments.
- To pay off high-cost charge accounts and loans for furniture, car, clothing, etc. Often articles which you think you are buying at a saving are actually costing you an unnecessarily high price because of the variety of service and interest charges.
- To put your children through university or to make home improvements.
- To help you purchase a new or older home if you are having difficulty in raising the necessary mortgage money.
- To assist you in selling your home if a prospective buyer has difficulty in raising cash to your mortgage.

How much can you borrow? You can take out a Seaboard Mortgage Loan up to $10,000 or 80% of the fair valuation of your home. What's more, you can take up to 10 years to repay, with monthly payments planned to fit your budget and leave you with extra cash each month.

FILE NO. 32—4709
HOUSE MARKET VALUE $12,500

| Present Obligations | | | Present Monthly Payments |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1st mortgage | — $3,200 | | $ 70 |
| Personal loan | — 900 | | 42 |
| Balance on auto | — 700 | | 50 |
| Total: | $4,800 | | $162 per mo. |
| Extra Money Required | 500 | | |
| Total Obligations: | $5,300 | | |

New monthly payments with a Seaboard Mortgage Loan—$80 per month for 120 months at approximately 12% a year.

Total obligations consolidated into one Seaboard Mortgage Loan reduce monthly payments from $162 to $80—a 50% reduction in monthly payments, or $82 extra in your pocket each month.

- Your contract can be renegotiated anytime.
- Special low-cost life insurance available that pays your contract in full in event of death.
- Contract can be repaid ahead of schedule at no extra cost.
- No hidden charges—no brokerage fees.
- No "balance" or "balloon payments".
- Minimum registration, appraisal and legal fees.
- All terms fully explained so that you completely understand your contract.
- Interest rates computed monthly on unpaid balance—reducing interest on each payment.
- Seaboard's years of experience in the mortgage loan business.

Phone or write for all the details about the low-cost Seaboard mortgage loan. Or, better still, call in for a personal interview with your Seaboard manager. Evening appointments can be arranged.

Electronic Hand To Take Over Cheque Signing

An electronic hand starts writing Greater Victoria school board pay cheques next month using a tiny fraction of the time and effort now required.

Trustees Wednesday night agreed to send data to International Business Machines Co. Ltd. electronic processing centre in Vancouver for preparation of teachers' and school baord staff cheques.

The computer will be expanded to include a Victoria operation by about February, trustees were told.

The board decision will result in some 17,700 school board cheques a year being prepared and written at a cost of less than $3,000.

Secretary-treasurer T. L. Christie said payroll clerks now start preparing their monthly cheques about 10 days ahead of payday.

LESS THAN A DAY

This time will be reduced to far less than a day by electronic means, releasing the board's business machines to full-time accounting work.

Trustee George Curran opposed acceptance of IBM's offer and fee schedule.

He said it would be unethical to take up IBM when another firm, Westcoast Electronic Data Processing Ltd., a Victoria firm just starting, had made the original offer.

Both firms were asked to look over the school board payroll setup and stated their charges. IBM was higher but was allowed to resubmit, with the result that the cost differential became negligible.

Mr. Christie pointed out there had not actually been specifications issued, therefore no formal tenders.

Trustees followed the advice of the board's chartered accountants, who said Westcoast were getting a new Burroughs machine from California, the first of its kind in B.C., and it could be delayed. They said inexperienced operators could cause further delay in issuing the payroll.

Furthermore, the slightly higher cost of IBM would come down with growth of the payroll, trustees were told.

Mrs. Oswald Fund Ends At $6,000

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Mrs. Shirley Williamson said Wednesday she has collected about $6,000 for Mrs. Lee Harvey Oswald and has ended her fund-raising campaign.

"I started out with a $2,000 goal and we have reached that more than twice over," said Mrs. Williamson, a housewife.

"Mrs. Oswald is highly intelligent and would have no trouble finding a job. According to the secret service men and everybody, she is very personable."

Mrs. Williamson said she started raising funds for Oswald's wife after she and her husband discussed what they could do as a memorial to President Kennedy.

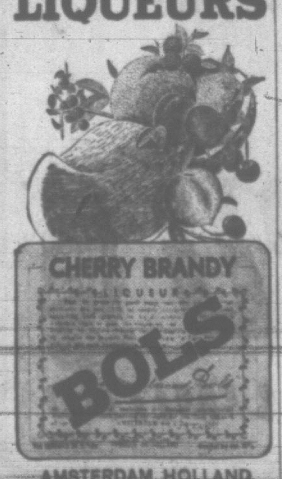

She said they concluded Kennedy was such a kind man he would not want even the widow of his supposed assassin to be left without food and shelter.

None of the money will go to Oswald's mother, Marguerite.

Ottawa Plans To Thin Out Attache Posts

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department plans a thinning of ranks among Canadian military attaches abroad, informants say.

It is reported that Defence Minister Hellyer was appalled when a manpower study he had ordered showed that Canada's 39 senior military attaches abroad draw annual living and rental allowances totalling $343,200.

Most of these embassy posts are filled by colonels or their equivalent in the navy and air force—captains and group captains.

Officials said there appears no reason to maintain a Canadian military attache at the Canadian embassy in Bonn, for instance, when a more senior Canadian officer commands the Canadian brigade in West Germany with headquarters only 90 minutes' drive from the West German capital.

DOZENS SENIOR

A military attache is maintained in Paris though dozens of Canadian senior officers serve at Supreme Allied Headquarters there. He draws a monthly living allowance of $609 and a rental allowance of $247 on top of a monthly salary of nearly $1,000, excluding marriage and subsistence allowances.

Besides the military attache, there is also an "assistant Canadian representative," a wing commander, and a "joint staff liaison officer," a lieutenant-colonel, in the French capital.

Canada has seven military attaches behind the Iron Curtain—four in Moscow, two in Warsaw and one in Prague.

The naval, military and air force attaches in Moscow each draw a monthly living allowance of $795.

The attaches abroad include the Canadian joint staffs in Washington and London. There is apparently no intention of abolishing them though the number of personnel may be reduced. There are nine senior officers in London, eight in Washington, including a colonel who acts as "staff secretary."

The attaches also may be paid "club fees" not exceeding $100 a year and education allowances for their children not exceeding $400 a year for each child. Many attaches in Europe send their children to private schools in England.

Fuel Short For Planes Of Red China

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist China's air force is reported to be caught in an aircraft fuel shortage—arising out of the split with the Soviet Union—so serious as to be causing drastic curtailment of operations.

A highly-based military officer who has returned from several years duty in the Far East used the term "paper tiger" when asked the current status of the Communist Chinese air force.

Red warplanes are now seen only rarely in coastal waters of the mainland, this officer said.

Since Russia pulled out her technicians and stopped shipments of equipment and weapons into Red China, Chinese military forces have had to rely heavily on fuel stockpiles accumulated from Soviet sources earlier, both for operating aircraft and military vehicles.

LACKS PETROLEUM

China, almost entirely lacking petroleum sources, now must depend on what fuel it can get from neutral and Communist countries other than Russia—in the South Pacific or in Balkan regions.

In addition, planes and other weapons originally given the Chinese by Russia are wearing out, Pentagon sources said today. They said spare parts are being used up and the Red Chinese military presumably is being compelled to "cannibalize" parts from one plane, tank, truck or artillery piece to keep another in operation.

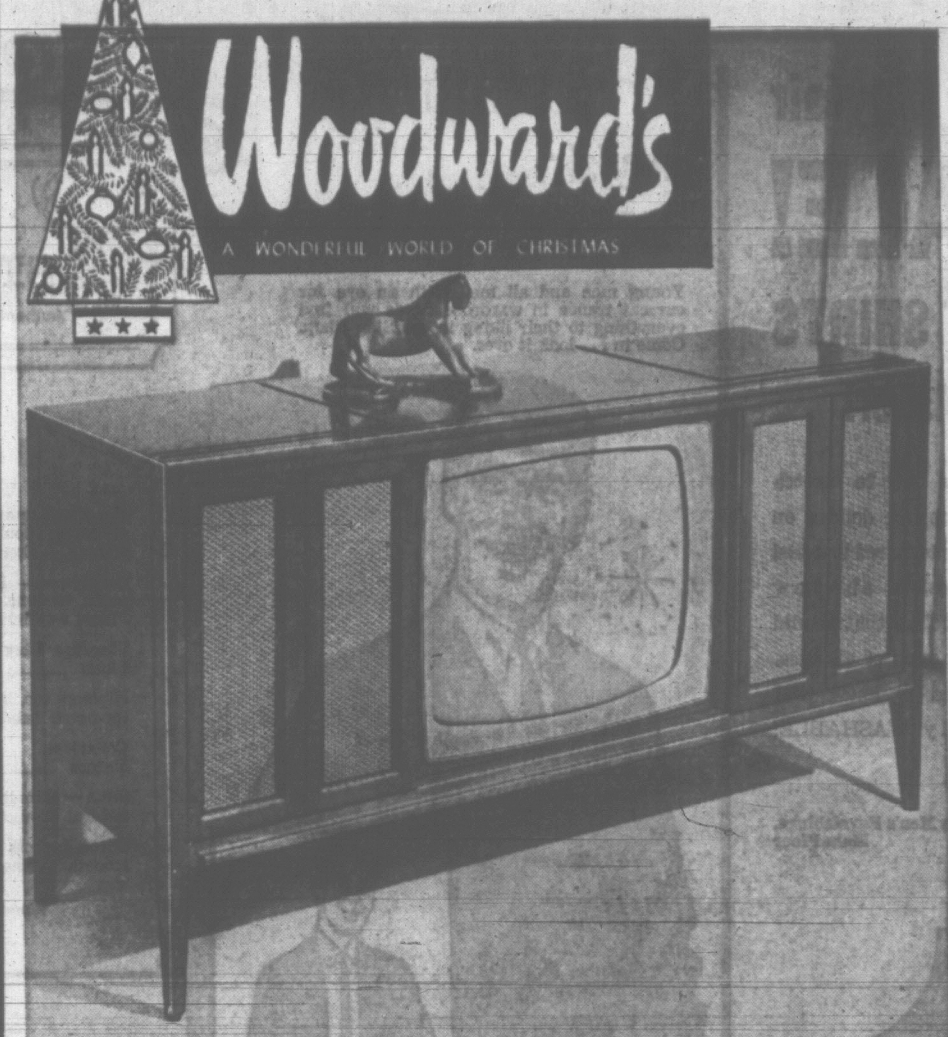

Red China does not now have nor may not have for many years an industrial complex able to mass-produce such precision equipment as jet engines or electronic gear.

But it is now confronted with a need to maintain about 2,500 aircraft.

Russia Jails Israeli

JERUSALEM, Israel (Reuters)—An Israeli tourist visiting Russia was sentenced to 10 years in a Russian labor camp on charges of treason dating from 1945, the foreign ministry announced here Wednesday. The statement said the Israeli ambassador in Moscow was told Yehouda Kogan, formerly a Soviet citizen confirmed he committed treason while serving in the Russian army in Germany in 1945.

RED SALES CRITICIZED; RED SALES APPLAUDED

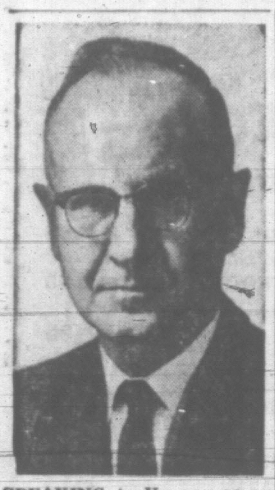

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Wheat sales to Communist countries, scorned by the Liberal party in opposition, have now become the cornerstone of the Liberal government's financial policy, Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker said here Wednesday.

He was commenting in an interview on a remark Tuesday by Finance Minister Gordon that Canada might be in "serious difficulties" in its international balance of payments if it hadn't been for the "very lucky break" of the recent wheat sale to Russia.

Liberals severely criticized the sale of wheat to Red China by the former Conservative government. "However, the stone which these builders rejected has now become the cornerstone of their financial policy," said a smiling Mr. Diefenbaker.

APPEAL TO CABINET

Truckers Want CNR Shut Out

SPEAKING to Vancouver Island Section, Chemical Institute of Canada, Wednesday will be Dr. Ira E. Puddington, director, division of applied chemistry, National Research Council of Canada. The meeting will be held at Royal Roads starting at 8 p.m. Dr. Puddington's subject will be "The Agglomeration of Suspended Solids." Much of his work has been done in the field of lubricating greases.

A delegation from the Automotive Transport Association of British Columbia has asked the provincial cabinet to upset a Public Utilities Commisison decision which gave hauling rights to a subsidiary of the CNR.

The PUC ruling last spring also awarded the subsidiary, Canadian National Transportation Limited, a motor carrier licence to haul freight and express between Vancouver and the B.C. interior.

The Transport Association contends that the service, already in operation, constitutes unfair competition in that the railway enjoys federal subsidies.

SERVICE ADEQUATE

The delegation also argued that several independent truckers were providing adequate service along the routes involved: between Vancouver and Kamloops, Kamloops and Penticton, Kamloops and Blue River and Prince George and Smithers.

Three of the independent truckers — T & H Cariboo Transport, Pacific Inland Express and Hunt Transport — joined the ATA in the cabinet appeal Wednesday.

CN transportation has argued that the truck lines all parallel CNR tracks and are a substitution to preserve business that has always been the railway's.

ONE LESS TRAIN

The trucking service had been designed to compensate for elimination of one transcontinental train a day into Vancouver. The switch to road hauling was expected to save the railway $1,500,000 a year.

The truckers' delegation was headed by Vancouver lawyer Rod Macdonald, a specialist in transportation law.

Sabotage Of Wheat Ruled Out

OTTAWA (CP)—Stories about glass in wheat shipments to Russia have been magnified, Transport Minister McIlraith said Wednesday in the Commons.

He said in reply to a series of opposition questions that there has been no suggestion of sabotage or of a conspiracy.

The matter appeared one of pure carelessness by persons who had to work in dusty conditions. Soft drink concessions on wheat-shipping docks had been ordered to switch to paper cups from bottles.

Justice Minister Chevrier said in reply to Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) that there is no indication to indicate industrial sabotage by the FLQ (Front de Liberation Quebecois).

Mr. McIlraith added that glass has been found in two boxcars from Ontario points, one of them a shipment of soya beans.

Kaiser-Jeep Hits Free Entry Total

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) —Kaiser Jeep of Canada which has achieved up to 55-per-cent Canadian content on some of its models has become the first auto manufacturer to provide a sufficient export credit to claim free entry for all parts.

H. Gordon Munro, manager of the Windsor-based Canadian plant of Kaiser Jeep, said in an interview the company expects to import free parts worth about $2,000,000 during the next year.

ENVISIONED 100 YEARS AGO

Work Well Ahead on Huge Saskatchewan Dam Project

By RON MacDONALD

OUTLOOK, Sask. (CP)—Reduced to insignificance by the size of their undertaking, 1,000 men are toiling with heavy equipment 20 miles south of here to close off the wide valley of the South Saskatchewan River.

If all goes well, by January or February the sluggish old river will be turned from its normal course and rerouted through five gigantic diversion tunnels, each 25 feet in diameter.

Then the final millions of cubic feet of earth fill will be placed to create a dam a mile wide, three miles long and 210 feet high—one of the largest of its kind in the world.

By 1967, almost 10 years after the project began, a reservoir 140 miles long will have been created — visual evidence that an idea first mooted 100 years ago by explorers could be turned into reality.

Cost of controlling the river's flow will total about $96,000,000 when all work is completed. Another $50,000,000 is to be spent on hydro power development. So far expenditures have totalled $58,000,000 and contracts awarded $77,000,000.

NINE KILLED

Shape of the final dam structure is beginning to emerge and the river, at this point normally 800 feet wide, has been squeezed down to a width of 350 feet. The two ends of the dam are almost completed.

The construction work, which in simple terms involves moving piles of dirt from river-bank sites to the dam site, is putting great scars in this rolling sandhill country 60 miles south of Saskatoon.

When the South Saskatchewan dam is closed and backs up the river, it will create a reservoir stretching back to a low point in the height of land between the Qu'Appelle and South Saskatchewan river valleys. At this low point work is just starting on another big earth-fill dam to contain the reservoir.

The Qu'Appelle dam, sitting atop a watershed, will be 100 feet high, 9,000 feet long and 2,000 feet wide at the base. It will contain 17,000,000 cubic yards of earth fill and be completed in 1965.

IDEAL LOCATION

Purpose of the entire project is four-fold. It will provide water to irrigate eventually as much as 500,000 acres of now-arid land, making it suitable for cattle-raising in particular, and a lake with miles of sandy beaches for recreation.

It will provide hydro-electric power by 1969 from three and possibly four turbines.

It will control the river to allow a good year-round water supply for Saskatoon and other points on the South Saskatchewan, and Regina and Moose Jaw, which get their water by a system of pumps and canals bringing it over the hump between the Qu'Appelle and South Saskatchewan valleys.

The site is at the centre of a 150-mile radius within which about 50 per cent of the population of Saskatchewan lives. This makes it an ideal spot for a power development.

At present work on the big diversion tunnels—one of the toughest jobs on the site—is nearing completion. The tunnels account for a large part of the 280,000 cubic yards of concrete so far used at the site.

MOUNTAINS OF FILL

A dike and coffer dam, which will be used to close off the river while the big dam is completed, are nearing the final stages of development.

Tenders for contracts to fill in the final central portion of the big dam are to be let this winter. To date 60,000,000 cubic yards of fill—about 60 per cent of the eventual total—have been moved.

The 60,000,000 cubic yards would be enough to build a standard grade highway from Regina to Quebec City.

Total cost of the entire project will be between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000.

Construction of the dam has changed life somewhat in this area, bringing about a mild boom in Outlook and forcing the dismantling of a rail and road bridge and abandonment of a railway line.

The Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration is handling construction of the dam, which is being paid for largely by the federal government. The provincial government will bear the cost of power development and irrigation.

BOTANIST PROPOSES

Make Wine From Salal Berry

A provincial botanist suggests that B.C. wineries make wine from berries of the wild and abundant native salal plant.

Dr. Adam Szczawinski said today an excellent wine can be made from salal berries.

He was commenting on a report that salal is now "big business" on Vancouver Island.

Two U.S.-owned companies are collecting the broad-leaf evergreen plant and shipping it south and to eastern Canada where it is sold as decorations.

One dealer estimated that 1,000,000 pounds of salal will have been shipped from the Island by the end of the year.

A branch of salal in Montreal is said to sell for about 25 cents, and sometimes as high as 50 cents.

Large shipments of salal are now being shipped by air to Ontario and Quebec for the Christmas season.

Dr. Szczawinski said salal as a decoration is already a big business in the state of Washington.

But he felt additional uses could be found for the plant.

He recalled that the berries played an important part in the daily diet of B.C. coast Indians.

He said they made the berries into a syrup or they dried them in cakes.

The berries, he added, are pleasant in taste when ripe.

"The berries are plentiful and are found everywhere on the coast," he said. "Wine could be made from them."

Utilities Urge Tax Exemptions

OTTAWA (CP)—All electric utilities should be free of corporate income tax and sales taxes, the royal commission on taxation was told Wednesday by the Canadian Electrical Association.

Provincially-owned utilities are not subject to income tax, and the association, which represents all Canadian electric utilities, said removal of the tax from investor-owned utilities is "the only practical method of solving this sorely discriminatory situation."

The brief pointed out that customers served by investor-owned utilities — which comprise about 15 per cent of the total industry — actually contribute about 13 per cent of their bill to the federal government in the form of corporate tax, while no such contribution is made by customers of publicly-owned utilities. Since rates were set to cover the cost of tax, the elimination of such tax would be of direct benefit to the consumer.

So far as sales tax is concerned, the brief said that since electricity itself is exempt from tax, it is "a violation or contradiction" of that policy to force utility companies to pay sales tax on items used to produce that electricity.

STIMULATE GROWTH

Such tax exemptions for electric utilities would stimulate efficient economic growth more than in any other industry, the brief said.

"The tax saving would of necessity be reflected in lower rates which would reduce costs and stimulate the creation of new industries. Most of our largest and most efficient industries could be expanded in this way. The ultimte impact would be significant." With more electric power being used, new generating plants would be required and the production of electrical equipment would be increased. The brief said that for every dollar spent on construction in the electrical industry, two dollars go into manufacturing plants, and for every employee engaged by power companies, 50 find jobs in secondary industries.

Food Canning Firm Charged

VANCOUVER. (CP)—Charges have been laid under the food and drug act against Famous Foods Limited for allegedly selling food containing dead insects.

The charges, heard in magistrate's court Wednesday and adjourned one week, allege the firm sold pork-flavored beans containing dead insect lavae and dead adult insects.

It was alleged to have sold chilli concarne and spaghetti and meatballs which were mouldy and sausage in various stages of putrification.

KIERNAN DOUBLES UP

Island Losses Post In Cabinet Shuffle

By FRANK RUTTER

Vancouver Island lost a cabinet minister Wednesday when Premier Bennett reallocated the jobs held by Earle Westwood of Nanaimo.

The premier cut the cabinet to nine members when he gave Mr. Westwood's two portfolios, recreation and conservation and commercial transport, to Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan.

The move sparked immediate fears that there will be a conflict of interests between the mining industry and the conservationists.

Some fish and game officials also complained that the load will be too heavy for Mr. Kiernan.

The Island now has only one cabinet minister Works Minister W. N. Chant of Victoria.

Traditionally there have been two, but Mr. Bennett ignored the rank and file Social Credit MLAs, five of whom come from the Island, when he made Mr. Kiernan a triple minister.

Mr. Westwood, who held the recreation portfolio from 1956, was defeated in Nanaimo in the Sept. 30 provincial election.

SPECULATION

There had been speculation that a new cabinet member would be appointed after the coming session of the legislature, starting Jan. 23.

Mr. Bennett refused to say whether Mr. Kiernan's appointment would be temporary, but referred to him as "a full-fledged minister."

He said Mr. Kiernan would be able "to handle the two portfolios very well."

"He is a keen fisherman and particularly interested in tourism."

Mr. Kiernan was sworn into office by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes after a cabinet luncheon at Government House.

NEW PARK PLANS

He pledged "a very aggressive" program of new park development and predicted the forest and mining industries would be more co-operative in providing access.

However several Islanders interested in the field disagreed.

"Mr. Kiernan apparently is a first-class man, one of the better men on a not very strong cabinet, but it is ridiculous to suggest these portfolios be combined," said Roderick Haig-Brown of Campbell River, well-known author and conservationist.

"The interests often are conflicting," he said.

Brian Roberts, president of Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association, agreed there is definitely conflict between people out for minerals and people who want recreational resources preserved.

He said the B.C. Federation of Fish and Game Clubs this year passed a resolution opposing any commercial development in any provincial park.

But Mr. Kiernan said he believes the two can go hand-in-hand.

If an economic mineral deposit exists in a park, then its development should include a road to be used for public access, he suggested.

He said he believes the mining industry is "anxious to co-operate" and fully aware of the need to preserve recreational areas.

But Syd Watts of Duncan, a climber and member of three outdoor organizations, said that mining and logging allowed in Strathcona Park have done nothing to improve it.

Tourist spokesman Sam Lane of Victoria, chairman of the tourist group of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island, said Mr. Kiernan is "a brilliant man" but recreation and conservation should have a full-time minister.

Mr. Kierman's appointment is "a retrograde step" which has relegated recreation and tourism to a second-rate position in the government, Mr. Lane said.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan agreed that recreation is a heavy job, and predicted Mr. Bennett will appoint a full-time minister after the session.

French Air Firm Pressured Gov't

OTTAWA (CP)—George R. McGregor, president of Trans-Canada Air Lines, said Wednesday France's Sud-Aviation Company departed from normal business practices by making "approaches at the government level" in a bid to sell TCA the Caravelle jetliner.

Mr. McGregor told the Commons railways, airlines and shipping committee that Sud-Aviation was the only manufacturer to use government-level approaches during the "intense sales pressure" before TCA made up its mind on the Douglas DC-9.

However, Mr. McGregor did not explain how the French firm made its approach via government, nor did he say whether it was the federal or Quebec government.

Mr. McGregor said TCA had full authority to purchase the DC-9 without referring to the government at all. He said he regretted the fact that the government was consulted because a whole month of "altercations and rumor" could have been avoided if TCA had gone ahead and placed its initial order.

The government had been consulted because of the political implications that had been stirred up by exaggerated press speculation, he said.

Asked whether TCA would consult the government on future aircraft acquisitions, Mr. McGregor replied:

Italy Socialists Join New Four-Party Coalition

It was Italy's 25th post-Fascist government.

Formation of the four-party coalition ended a political crisis that began last April when the ruling Christian Democrats suffered a setback and the Communists gained 1,000,000 votes in the election of a new Parliament.

NENNI FORMS ALLIANCE

For 13 months before the election, Christian Democratic Premier Amintore Fanfani headed a centre-left government supported by the Socialists but the latter stayed out of the cabinet. The election results strengthened a Socialist faction that wanted the party to return to its traditional alliance with Italy's big Communist party. But Nenni finally brought the Socialists back into alliance with the Christian Democrats.

Other parties in the coalition are Saragat's Democratic Socialists and the Republicans. They were the other two members of Fanfani's coalition.

The new government is pledged to support the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in foreign affairs and to begin new economic planning.

MORO
... takes office

The four parties together hold 385 of the 629 seats in the Chamber of Deputies, a majority of 141. But Socialist defections may reduce the majority.

The Christian Democrats—Italy's largest party—dominate the 26-member cabinet with 16 posts, including the premiership. The Socialists have six members, the Democratic Socialists three and the Republicans one.

One key economic post, budget minister, went to Socialist Antonio Giolitti, a former Communist party functionary. The Socialists also got the ministry of public works.

However, the Christian Democrats took the ministries of industry and commerce, state participation in industry, foreign trade, labor, agriculture and forestry, and the treasury.

Christian Democrat Giulio Andreotti was reappointed defence minister, a post he has held under five governments since 1959.

Segni accepted the resignation Wednesday night of Premier Giuseppe Leone, who formed a caretaker government last June to steer the budget through Parliament.

Mixed-Manned Atom Fleet Rejected by Europe Union

By HAROLD KING

PARIS (Reuters)—An American plan for a mixed-manned NATO nuclear fleet was viewed as being as good as dead by diplomatic circles today.

They expressed this opinion after Wednesday's session of the seven-nation parliamentary assembly of the Western European Union here voted to reject the American plan.

The vote by legislators from the six Common Market countries and Britain marked the second time parliamentary representatives of leading West European nations have turned down the American concept of continental defence.

Early in November, the NATO parliamentary assembly voted against the idea.

The diplomatic circles said they doubted that the NATO ministerial council meeting, set for Paris in mid-December, would produce a real opportunity for U.S. representatives to revive the multilateral force concept.

ATTACKED BY BROWN

The WEU assembly voted after George Brown, deputy leader of Britain's opposition Labor party, made a strong attack on the mixed-manned fleet proposal which the U.S. has asked its NATO partners to approve.

Voting 32 to 29 with five abstentions, the assembly adopted an amendment proposed by Brown blocking approval of the proposal. Brown was supported by representatives of other socialist parties in West Germany, France and other market countries.

Brown declared the proposal was "politically meaningless." The plain fact, he said, was that crucial decisions concerning the fleet would remain "entirely with the Americans."

"If it is really such a good idea we might ask our American friends why the Pentagon has always turned down the building of such a fleet for themselves."

But West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder firmly backed the U.S. plan. He said his government remained faithful to the idea of European integration, adding that Western Europe and the U.S. must be allied closely in defence.

Mystery Surrounds Crash of Spy Plane

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Air Force investigators have ruled out the possibility that a U-2 reconnaissance plane was shot down over the Gulf of Mexico Nov. 20.

However, they still have not pinpointed what caused the U-2 to crash 40 miles northwest of Key West, Fla., apparently after completing a high altitude photo reconnaissance mission over Cuba.

The pilot, air force Capt. Joe G. Hyde Jr. of La Grange, Ga., has been declared dead, although his body has not been recovered. The wreckage of the U-2 has been retrieved from waters 100 feet deep and has been examined by members of an accident investigation board set up by Strategic Air Command.

The air force told The Associated Press today the remains of the plane showed no evidence of rocket hits or rents from bullet, cannon or other gunfire

Norm Has Beer With Blessing

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

HEMER, West Germany—German taverns are open till 1 a.m. and all day as well.

Does this make for drunkenness? Certainly not among German civilians, for you never see a drunk on the streets. But what about Canadian soldiers, accustomed to restricted hours of drinking.

"Some of them go hog-wild the first week or two," said Cpl. James Hayward of Victoria, now stationed with the First Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry at Fort MacLeod.

"After that they settle down and don't drink any more than they would at home—perhaps less. My own belief is, the harder it is to get something the more people want it. That's human nature for you."

MORE CIVILIZED

"The German attitude to drink is much more civilized," says Sgt. Peter Farrell, also with the PPCLI.

"Out in B.C. we have a prissy puritan attitude. Drink is something not quite nice—something you don't talk about. That's why people drink on the sly—in lavatories and behind trees.

"In Germany all kinds of people go into taverns—priests, doctors, lawyers and most other types. They take a drink when they feel like it—at almost any time of the day. Yet you couldn't call them alcoholics.

"They just don't hit the booze the way Canadians do. Perhaps that is because they're more relaxed."

This afternoon I visited a 17th-century Lutheran church near here. Inside I met the minister—a grey, ascetic-looking man, who told me something of the church's history in rather haltering English.

Two hours later, after considerable walking, I turned into a picturesque red-roofed tavern for a glass of beer.

'Delightful' Music Program

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

The art of music marking was delightfully explored in the December concert of Victoria Musical Art Society, held Wednesday night at Oak Bay Junior High School.

From family group performance, to the professional and mature renderings of Victoria Choral Society and pianists Richard Proudman and Lynne Dougan, musicianship was generally of a high order.

Bulk of the program was provided by the Choral Society and soloists under direction of Rodney Webster. But a distinctive and completely enchanting opening sequence of nine numbers introduced the Patterson Family, four youngsters ranging in age from six to 12; singing, and playing a variety of instruments.

They are the two sons and two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. M. Patterson, 2801 Tudor Road.

It is a joy to note that here is no precocity, no forcing. Qualities of ingenuousness and simplicity preserve the charm of childhood. Yet these young performers exhibit poise, excellent pitch, a fine sense of rhythm.

FOLK SONGS

Their selections of folk songs, carols and two numbers specially written for them by the National Film Board's Robert Fleming, were well chosen and sung with admirable diction.

In several groups of songs the Choral Society performed well, producing a fine tonal blend and balance. Under Mr. Webster's direction, rhythmic structures were firm and dynamic range was considerable and astutely judged.

CRISPNESS

There was some fuzziness, due mainly to lack of crispness in diction but this did not detract seriously from the pleasure of good texture and interpretation.

Choral Society accompanist Richard Proudman, with Lynne Dougan, provided some well executed two piano numbers and vocal soloists were Faith Webster (who sang two numbers written by Mr. Webster to words by Margaret Keifer), James Mainguy and Pamela Paver, the latter most impressive in her "Rejoice Greatly" from the "Messiah" group.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

". . . I was driving along, see, testing my new spark plugs when all of a sudden a fellow in a red coat came along and . . ."

There is a dash of Gaglardi in Robert James Veith, 39, a visitor here this week from Fort Bragg, Calif. Mr. Veith (like in "Fayth") is also fond of low altitude flying. Here the similarity ends. He didn't know a spark plug from a Mountie 18 years ago when he climbed into his first racing car.

Since then he has flirted with death across the face of North America, driven in racing's Holy Grail—the Indianapolis "500"—seven times, and had a whirl in Italy's Grand Prix.

Quick Ones Prepare for Accidents

None of this would have happened, he was saying, if it had not been for Joe Huffaker.

"I was 21, just out of the Merchant Marine, and Joe was 17 or 18. He had a car he wanted to race but they wouldn't let him until he was 21. So he talked me into driving it."

So you won first time out and decided to follow Sir Malcolm Campbell?

Veith laughed. "All I did was spin out the first few races," he said. "But I liked it and knew it was what I wanted. One thing led to another—I had my time on dirt—and then Indy and now this."

Today Veith looks more like a field representative for a spark plug firm than a Champion driver.

Soft-spoken and well-tailored, Veith travels the country ("40,000 miles by car, another 60,000 by plane every year") preaching the gospel of safe-driving to high school students.

Isn't it incongruous that a man who lives by speed and may one day die from it should lecture on safe driving and the need to curb speed impulses?

"A woman came up to me on the prairies," Veith said, "and asked me the same question. In different words. 'How can you—a race driver—teach my boy to drive safely'? she asked.

"Madame," I said, "speed is my business. So is staying alive. Who is better equipped to talk safe driving than the man who does it professionally? We prepare for accidents. Do you?"

School Is How You Look At It

Veith's motor boils when it is suggested that high school driver-training programs are a frill.

"Nearly every boy and girl in high school will be a driver. Isn't it better to teach them properly, when they are keen and impressionable?"

Veith makes a point, maybe misses one. There is a school of thought (to which y'r operator subscribes) that school is to teach people how to read and reason. If they attain these objectives there is no reason they cannot cook and sew and plumb and drive an auto.

On stage, talking to the high school set, Veith scores.

The girls may not know him from Uncle Clem, but breathes there a boy who doesn't know more about the "500" than he does about Math 91? Even the eggheads come alive when you talk about Rodger Ward and A. J. Foyt and Jimmy Clark and Dan Guerney.

"They not only protect you but they help you to drive. If a bus or a large truck passes you on a windy day, your car will often whip a little. If you're wearing a belt you are in control. Without one you're moving around and fighting the wheel.

"At Daytona, Fla., once I flipped at 165 miles an hour. Skidded 900 feet upside down. The belt saved me. With my arms free I shut off the spare gas valve, turned off the ignition.

Somehow the Message Was Clear . . .

"At Monza, Italy, in 1957," he said "American drivers were outperforming the Europeans who lost time on the turns banked at about 48 degrees.

"We asked them why they didn't use belts and they said they preferred not to. Maybe they had harder heads; maybe they heal faster.

"Finally one of the Italians agreed to try one after I had argued that he would add 10 to 15 miles an hour to his average speed.

"He put it on and beat me out by half a mile an hour." Veith paused. "He also beat me out of $1,500."

His talk is split by a film of the 1961 "500." In it a fellow driver, Jack Turner, was involved in a spectacular crash. He lost his pot, as they call them in the trade, but not his marbles.

In 1962, Veith adds, Turner stood upside down. This year, in front of 200,000 people, Turner and his car did 12 complete flips down the main stretch.

Where did they send the pieces?

"Oh, Jack was fine," Veith says. "A little burn on his back. But when he got back to the pits you know what he said? 'I think somebody's trying to tell me something. I'm going to quit.' And he did."

Skrien Tackles Renfro With Smile, Fat Wallet

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Lions' coach Dave Skrien is in Eugene, Ore., with an endearing smile on his face and a wallet in his hand talking to Mel Renfro, a do-it-all halfback with the University of Oregon.

Renfro is a prime signing target for the Lions—but also the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League and the Oakland Raiders of the American Football League.

Skrien left for Eugene Tuesday when he heard that Dallas had claimed Renfro as their second choice in the NFL draft. Initially they claimed him in the first round, hesitated and picked him up in the second round.

Football experts feel that Renfro wouldn't give Dallas a firm commitment so they wouldn't risk their first choice on him.

Lions' general manager Herb Capozzi said that of the 12 U.S. college players the team had on its signing list, "almost all were claimed in the 20 rounds of the NFL draft and all but one was claimed in the AFL draft.

Capozzi said that no players on the Lions' list have yet been signed by American professional teams.

Catchers Can't Use Baskets Any Longer

The playing rules committee of the major leagues set a limit Wednesday of 34 inches circumference for the glove.

Paul Richards, then of the Baltimore Orioles, was credited with originating a glove almost twice the size of the 34-inch model to help his knuckleball artist, Hoyt Wilhelm, several years ago.

Baseball's secretary, Charles Zegar, said the limitation was not aimed at any particular pitcher. It was just aimed at the big glove.

The big mitt was an effective aid in handling the erratic throws of the knuckleball specialists. There are regulations governing gloves for other positions but before Wednesday there was none for catchers.

CONTROVERSY OVER CARLTON

Would Hamilton Accept Lark Pair for Faloney?

MONTREAL (UPI) — Post-season rumor mills are buzzing over trade talk involving Grey Cup hero Bernie Faloney and the quarterbackless Montreal Alouettes.

Alouettes have been loking for a capable signal caller ever since they unwittingly handed Sam Etcheverry his release and flubbed a deal that was to have brought Faloney here from Hamilton.

Despite the fact that Faloney was the standout performer in the Tiger-Cats 21-10 victory over the British Columbia Lions last Saturday, it would not be surprising if Hamilton was willing to part with the veteran of six Grey Cup teams, including three winners — one with Edmonton and two with Hamilton.

Reports circulating in Vancouver during Grey Cup week had Montreal owner Ted Workman scheduled to talk trade with Hamilton general manager Jake Gaudaur next week or the week after.

Workman denied this and said the Alouettes weren't even interested in dealing with Hamilton Wednesday but he has a history of making startling post-season deals — startling both from the view of the names involved and his coach who wasn't informed until it was too late.

MADE HEADLINES

Three years ago Workman made headlines by trading Etcheverry and end Hal Patterson for Faloney and defensive end Don Paquette. All the Als got out of that deal was Paquette, an indifferent performer who has yet to give Montreal a full year of average football.

Within hours after the Alouettes were eliminated by the Ottawa Rough Riders in the Eastern Conference semi-finals last month, Workman levelled a blast at his team that also was heard around the country.

He accused head coach Jim Trimble of failing to maintain proper control of his players, particularly off the field. Workman, a converted teetotaler, said some of the players drank too much, smoked too much, went to bed too late and were guilty of other social indiscretions.

WELL PROTECTED

If the youthful owner follows the same pattern he has in the past it means he's ready to deal off such established stars as halfback Don Clark, end Marv Luster, linebacker Jim Reynolds and tackle Bobby Jack Oliver. They were the major casualities during the season.

Hamilton is the only team in the CFL that has three proven quarterbacks in Faloney, sophomore import Joe Zuger and veteran Canadian Frank Consentino. Coach Ralph Sazio told UPI before the Grey Cup game he was unwilling to part with any of them, particularly Zuger. But it is felt that Faloney, who at 31 is already at or passed his peak, would be the most available of the trio.

Adair Selected To Pilot Denver

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Milwaukee Braves announced today that Bill Adair has been named to manage Denver Bears of the Pacific Coast League, a Milwaukee affiliate.

Last season Adair managed Toronto to a second place finish in the International League.

DETROIT GETS SPEED

Tigers Swap Ace Battery to Phils

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Detroit Tigers traded pitcher Jim Bunning and catcher Gus Triandos to Philadelphia Phillies today for outfielder Don Demeter and pitcher Jack Hamilton.

It was the fourth trade of the winter baseball meetings and the first inter-league swap.

Bunning, 32, had a 12-13 record last season and Triandos, 33, batted .240 and hit 14 home runs.

Demeter, 28, batted .258 and hit 22 homers. Hamilton, 24, a righthander, had a 2-1 record with the Phils before being farmed out. He was 9-12 with Philadelphia in 1962.

Bunning, a righthander who has pitched in several All-Star games, has been with the Tigers since the 1955 season. He pitched a no-hit, no-run game against Red Sox July 20, 1958 and has compiled a 118-87 record.

JIM BUNNING

Demeter came to the Phillies from the Dodgers with infielder Charlie Smith for pitcher Dick Farrell and infielder Joe Koppe May 4, 1961. He has hit 72 homers the past three seasons and enjoyed his best season in 1962 when he hit 29 home runs, knocked in 107 runs and batted .307.

It was the second trade for the American League Tigers in recent weeks. They traded outfielder Rocky Colavito and pitcher Bob Anderson to Kansas City Athletics last month for second baseman Jerry Lumpe and Ed Rakow.

EVERYBODY HAPPY

"I think we've got a better lineup and more speed," Dressen said. "And we're looking better up the middle. We've got Demeter in centre, Lumpe at second and Dick McAuliffe, who is really improving, at shortstop. From the time you're born they tell you to start building down the middle."

Said general manager John Quinn of the National League Phils: "We've given up good ballplayers to get men we believe to be of equal importance to us. This gives us fine balance in our catching and an accomplished pitcher, I think one of the best in the American League."

Bunning admitted last summer he and Dressen didn't see eye to eye. Dressen said before the season ended that Bunning and Colavito might be traded.

MONEY, MONEY EVERYWHERE

Oh, to Be a QB . . . !

DETROIT (CP) — The bidding for star college quarterback Pete Beathard was too rich for even a millionaire like William Clay Ford, owner of Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

Beathard, star at Southern California and first draft choice of the Lions and Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League, signed Wednesday with the Chiefs.

The Lions reportedly went as high as $20,000, but according to Ford this is what the Chiefs, bankrolled by oil millionaire owner Lamar Hunt, offered Beathard:

1. A bonus in excess of $15,000 for signing.

2. A no-cut contract calling for more than $20,000 a year.

3. A paid-up life insurance policy.

4. Option on shares of stock in a West Coast pay-TV corporation, cost of which would be financed by Kansas City.

5. A new car.

6. Free rent in an apartment for an unspecified duration but presumably for no less than a year.

Hope They Let Me Play 581 More . . .

Hebenton Cracks NHL Record For Durability

CHICAGO — Andy Hebenton acknowledges, with typical humility, that the setting of a new National Hockey League "iron-man" record has given him "the thrill of my career."

The Victoria, B.C., veteran set it Wednesday night in Chicago's spacious Stadium, stepping on the ice for a 581st consecutive NHL game.

It began in Victoria late in the 1951-52 season. It will end, probably, with the election of Hebenton to hockey's Hall of Fame in some year to come.

That was the supposition tendered by teammates and various hockey executives who stepped around to the Boston Bruins' dressing room to congratulate the 34-year-old Winnipeg-born athlete.

FANTASTIC STREAK

"He's a cinch for election," said one player.

It started in Victoria's Memorial Arena back in 1952. He played 225 consecutive games in the Western League, including 10 playoff games. Then came the stretch of eight straight seasons without a miss in the rugged NHL, plus 21 games this year — 603 games, including 22 playoff appearances.

It adds up to 828 games!

THANKS VICTORIA FANS

"I guess it (the record) has to be the thrill of my career," said Andy after the game in which Boston tied Chicago Black Hawks 2-2.

"I hope they let me play 581 more.

"I feel good," he added. "Naturally, I wish we had won, but the game got away from us."

Hebenton also had to say thanks to fans in Victoria, where he now makes his home.

Through telegrams, about 300 fans in Victoria sent congratulatory messages. Included was one long telegram with 265 names. Another was sent by Mayor R. B. Wilson.

He also received one from his 10-year-old son, Clayton.

TRADED TO BRUINS

Hebenton, obtained by the Bruins last summer from New York Rangers, said the key to endurance is simple.

"First you have to have a lot of luck. Second, you must avoid major injuries. And third, you have to stay in condition."

An injury Hebenton picked up Sunday in Boston's 3-1 loss to Montreal Canadiens didn't bother him Wednesday night. He was struck on the foot Sunday and a toenail had to be pierced to relieve pressure on the resulting bruise. But Hebenton was on the ice as usual.

CLOSEST CALL

He said the closest he came to missing a game was when he was hit by a stick three years ago. An eye was blackened.

"The trainer finally got it open in time for me to take my regular turn," he said.

Hebenton turned professional with Montreal Canadiens 13 years ago, but tore knee ligaments in training camp and was sent to Victoria.

GAMBLE PAID OFF

His move into the NHL resulted from the first deal Muzz Patrick made as general manager of the Rangers. Patrick paid $10,000 to Victoria for Hebenton. The purchase was regarded as a gamble, since Hebenton was 26 years old.

He played in his first NHL game Oct. 7, 1955, at Chicago. In eight seasons with the Rangers he scored 177 goals, his best season being 1958-59 when he scored 33.

In 1957-58 he won the Lady Byng Trophy, awarded to the NHL player who best combines effective play with a high order of sportsmanship. In his trophy-winning year he scored 21 goals and had 23 assists and spent only 10 minutes in the penalty box.

ANDY HEBENTON . . . hockey's new Iron Man.

Slumping Hawks Might Lose One

By The Canadian Press

Hawks until just recently had been cruising through the National Hockey League schedule with victory after victory. But in their last two games they have been held to draws.

Furthermore, both ties were on home ice.

Still further, these embarrassing stalemates have been at the hands of the two least likely teams, New York and Boston.

Hawks have lost two games this season, but they always won at least every second game. Now they haven't won in two straight games and they have barely escaped losing twice in a row.

CLOSE SHAVE

On Sunday it took two goals by Red Hay in the third period to salvage a tie and Wednesday night Hawks had their closest shave. But Bobby Hull saved the day.

The blond bomber scored his 16th goal of the season with just 31 seconds remaining in the game to earn Hawks a 2-2 tie with the upstart Boston Bruins.

The game produced the new iron-man of hockey. It marked the 581st consecutive game for Boston's Andy Hebenton, breaking the old mark of 580 set by Johnny Wilson with Detroit, Chicago and Toronto between 1952 and 1960.

In the other game played, Toronto Maple Leafs got outstanding goaltending from substitute Don Simmons to blank Montreal Canadiens 3-0 and move into second place.

CREDITS DEFENCE

"Give all the credit to the defencemen," Simmons said modestly after recording the first shutout by a Toronto goalie this year with a 26-save effort. Simmons was called in to replace Johnny Bower, sidelined with 'flu.

"Anyone could have played goal for us and got a shutout."

Even coach Punch Imlach was pleased, especially with Frank Mahovlich. The Big M has been target of most of the criticism levelled at the stumbling Leafs.

Mahovlich played a strong checking game and set up goals by Bob Baun and Allan Stanley with neat passes.

"Year," agreed Imlach, "he played well. When we're behind the eight ball he's capable of coming up with the big game and he did it tonight."

HABS SHORT BODIES

Baun opened the scoring in the first period with a slap-shot drive that fooled Charlie Hodge. Stanley and Dick Duff counted in the second period.

The badly-injured Canadiens went into the game with only nine forwards. Their third line consisted of a centre and two right wingers. Missing was Henri Richard, usually Toronto's nemesis, hard-hitting and high-scoring John Ferguson and Billy Hicke.

Grayson Sues For $300,000

SEATTLE (AP)—John Grayson, former University of Washington basketball coach, has filed a $300,000 libel suit against Curtis Publishing Company.

Grayson contended an article in the Dec. 31, 1962 Saturday Evening Post published by Curtis "tended to destroy my reputation for integrity and sportsmanship." The article was written by Al Lightner, Salem, Ore., referee.

Famed Cricketer Is Seriously Ill

Hobbs, who will be 81 Dec. 16, scored 197 first-class centuries, including 12 for England in tests against Australia. He retired in 1935.

NEW ROLE CONSIDERED FOR CAPILANO STADIUM

VANCOUVER (CP) — The conversion of Capilano Stadium, home of the now defunct Vancouver Mounties, into a year-round sports field is under consideration by city council.

Fate of the baseball stadium was debated briefly Tuesday when Ald. Tom Campbell asked for a study of possible uses of the stadium after hearing that the Mounties won't get a Pacific Coast League baseball franchise next year.

Mayor Bill Rathie said the city will first await formal notice from the club that it is going out of business. He said the clubs is still the tenant although its lease can be cancelled if it doesn't get a franchise.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

For instance, the rules say "a minor penalty shall be imposed on any player who shall place his stick, knee, foot, arm, hand or elbow in such a manner that it shall cause his opponent to trip or fall."

Yet, "if in the opinion of the referee, a player is unquestionably hook-checking the puck and obtains possession of it, thereby tripping the puck carrier, no penalty shall be imposed."

The penalty shot is awarded "when a player in control of the puck in the attacking zone, with only the goalie to beat, is tripped or otherwise fouled from behind, preventing a reasonable scoring opportunity."

Last season only six penalty shots were called. Red Kelly, Bob Rousseau and Camille Henry scored on theirs. But John Bucyk and Murray Oliver were both beaten by Glenn Hall. Andy Hebenton failed on his because he scored on the rebound. You're allowed only one shot.

On New Year's Eve a couple of years ago I was awarded a penalty shot against my fishin' pal Johnny Bower. I was nervous when I went out to try for it.

I made up my mind I was going to put it in as tight as possible to the post to his left so I wouldn't change my mind at the last second and ruin my shot.

It just so happened Johnny almost dared me to put it there because he blocked off the other side completely. The left is his strong side. He has his stick, pad and glove to protect it whereas he has only his leg to protect the other side.

When I made my shot, he cheated a little and started to move. If I'd been maybe three or four inches off target owards the middle of the net he'd have had it. When I got within 20 feet I just fired it fast and low and hard and it went in.

"Happy New Year, John," I said.

Top Racing Title With Kelso Again

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP)—To the surprise of nobody, Kelso from Mrs. Richard C. duPont's Bohemia Stable was named today as America's champion thoroughbred race horse for the fourth straight year by the Thoroughbred Racing Associations.

Kelso also was the chosen horse of the year in a poll conducted by Turf and Sports Digest, completing his sweep of the balloting.

The swift - running gelding, who needs only $168,167 to pass Round Table as the world's leading money-winning horse, began his reign as a three-year old in 1960. He was the unanimous choice of the TRA board of selection this year.

His earnings of $569,762 this season brought his life - time bankroll to $1,581,702 for 31 victories in 45 starts.

Kelso's only out-of-the money performance this year was in his debut in the seven-furlong Palm Beach Handicap at Hialeah Park, when he was fourth back of Ridan, Jaipur and Merry Ruler.

WON NINE RACES

He went on to win nine races, carrying as much as 134 pounds under handicap conditions. At one stage he put together a string of eight straight stakes victories, including an unprecedented fourth straight victory in the two miles of the Jockey Club Gold Cup.

Mrs. duPont's big disappointment in her famous gelding came last month in the Washington, D.C., International at Laurel, where he finished second to Mongo. It was his third straight runner-up finish in the race.

He will be honored tonight at the TRA's annual dinner, along with other divisional champions. They are Amber Diver, steeplechase; Hurry to Market, two-year-old colt; Castle Forbes, two-year-old filly; Chateaugay, three-year-old colt; Lamb Chop, three-year-old filly, and Cicada four-year-old filly.

Balance Aids Mount View

Esquimalt tossed out the game's individual standout but Mount View had the balance in inter-high senior girls' basketball activity at Esquimalt Wednesday.

Lorraine Hyne pumped in 14 points for Esquimalt but Mount View took the decision 22-20 on the strength of a solid team effort. Only two Mount View players failed to score. Connie Barker, with seven, was Mount View's best.

Mount View—Connie Barker 7, Dorothy Restall 2, Pam Morrison, Cathy Crook 3, Judy Falconer, Gail Streeton 4, Donna Trueit, Linda Edge 4, Colleen Fisher 2. Total—22.

Esquimalt—Carol Sluggett, Jane Bedford 4, Janet Cleghorn, Heather Seymour, Margo Jackson, Lorraine Hyne 14, Sue Rand, Ellen Hill 2, Karen Bradley, Val Hand, Louise Turner. Total—20.

Okanagan Adopts U.S. Grid Rules

VERNON (CP)—The Okanagan Mainline High School Football League has decided to drop the Canadian game and adopt American-style football for next season.

A league spokesman said the move would bring the Okanagan group into line with 27 other British Columbia teams that now play the U.S. game.

PAR COMPETITION

Mrs. W. V. Hicks, Mrs. M. Worth and Mrs. D. Austin were divisional winners in a par competition at Uplands Golf Club.

Cougars' Offense Hits Rough Water

The Victoria Hockey League's best offence tackled the best defence at Memorial Arena Wednesday night. Defence won.

Safeway Canadians pulled into first place with their 7-2 victory over Arena Cougars. In addition to settling top place, the game pointed out that the big point-earners aren't always the best players on the ice.

Steve Merriman provides the example. The Canadian defenceman drew only one assist, yet was every bit as effective as Del Brown (one goal, three assists), Bill Chisholm (two goals, one assist) or Art Binks (three assists).

BEAR ON DEFENCE

Merriman was the big bear on defence.

Defenceman Ray Beech also came through with a fine performance for Canadians.

And in the second game, four new players pepped up a Dorman Cavalier attack that had been woefully weak in previous games. The result: a 3-3 tie with Suburban Mercurys.

GOALIE YANKED

Actually, Cavaliers were unfortunate in not picking up all the points. They led 3-2 until Merc coach Ed Dorohoy yanked goalie Reg Meeres in the last minute of play. The move paid off in spades with Jim Middleton scoring the equalizer at the 19:49 mark.

None of the new Dorman players — Len Paget, Randy Ferbey, Metro Kaplanchuk and George Fisher—figured in the scoring, but they did help the Dorman team outshoot Mercs 20-15.

From a standpoint of officiating, it was a pleasing night. Only three minors were called in the first game and five in the second. The only blotch came when Mercurys' Bob Downey talked his way into drawing a misconduct and then a game misconduct.

Vic High Sets Sights On B.C. Soccer Title

They are the best on Vancouver Island. Now they want to prove they are the best in B.C.

They are the Victoria High Tyees. City champions for the last two years they have yet to taste provincial victory.

In 1961 a mixup in Vancouver cancelled the competition.

This year? John Oliver of Vancouver is the enemy to be overcome at Vancouver's Callister Park Saturday at noon. Little is known about the Oliverts but the Tyees are ready. They have 10 of last year's finalists, plus Nirmal Dillon returning after a three-month illness. Kees Roodbol may also be in the lineup, depending on a last minute ruling on the age of participating players.

Kelly Sparks Bucks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dave Kelly, a young rookie from Toronto, substituted for goalie Don Head Wednesday night and posted his and Portland's first shutout of the Western Hockey League season.

Veteran team captain Art Jones scored at 7:15 of the second period to give the Buckaroos a 1-0 victory over Los Angeles Blades.

In the only other game San Francisco Seals downed Denver Invaders 3-1

In a tough defensive game, Kelly handed 21 shots with ease. Head will be out of action four to six weeks following an operation on his knee.

At San Francisco, Charlie Burns and Ray Cyr scored two quick first-period goals for the Seals. Lou Jankowski replied for Denver in the second.

Gerry Brisson scored in the third period for San Francisco after the Invaders pulled goalie Al Millar in favor of an extra forward.

The game saw Ed Panagabko return to action after sitting out three games. The San Francisco team captain was suspended for two games after an argument with coach Bud Poile.

ROOKIES LIVING PROOF

Pros' Aid to Minors Has Sparked Program

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Canadian Rugby Union says initial results of a detailed survey it has made of Canadian Football League aid to minor football shows the program is "an overwhelming success story."

Gordon Ingram of Edmonton, chairman of the CRU's junior football committee and Western Canadian minor league co-ordinator for the CFL, said recently the program has increased minor league activity at least 50 per cent since it began five years ago.

"More than 15,000 youngsters now are playing on more than 400 minor league teams in Western Canada. The program is not as far advanced in Eastern Canada because there it was started later."

His comments were echoed by Don McPherson of Regina, CRU president, an executive member of the Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Conference and former CFL and WFC president.

"The beautiful feature of the program is that it allows the amateurs to run their own game without interference from the pros. The CFL makes a grant to the CRU each year and leaves it to us to make the grants to the various clubs.

"This is the key to our success. Parents are not afraid that a club will use their sons as pawns as is the case in some other sports."

CRITICISM SPURS SURVEY

Ingram and his eastern counterpart, Bill McEwan of Ottawa, were asked to undertake a survey of the minor league aid after a suggestion by a CFL official that the program did little to help stock CFL clubs with top-flight Canadian players.

McPherson called the suggestion "tommyrot."

"Look at Russ Jackson (Ottawa quarterback). He is a product of the Hamilton minor leagues and McMaster University. This year he won both the outstanding player and best Canadian player awards.

"He's not the only one. Dale West and Wayne Shaw of Saskatchewan both made the All-Star team this year and they're Canadians. So are rookies Peter Kempf (WFC Rookie of the Year) and Paul Seale of B.C. Lions."

Both Ingram and McPherson added the prime purpose is to build an interest in the game and ensure that good prospects in remote areas had a chance to progress.

"It's improved the calibre of minor league play 100 per cent throughout Canada," said McPherson.

Doping Seen As a Peril To Breeders

NEWMARKET, Eng. (AP) —The doping of race horses threatens the future of British racing and the bloodstock industry, Major John Jacob Astor, president of the Thoroughbred Breeders' Association, said Tuesday.

There have been a number of doping cases in Britain in recent years and a number of persons including a Swiss woman, were sentenced to jail for being implicated in a large doping ring.

"We are interested in all steps taken to wipe it out for good, or else our stud books will become a nonsense and our breed discredited throughout the world," Astor said. He did not mention steps to be taken.

Look at it this way: If Gilbey's Gin didn't make superb drinks, would it have been sold all over the world for nearly 80 years? We hardly think so.

Canada exports wheat . . . Canada imports Lemon Hart Rums

Canadian wheat is accepted as a standard all over the world because no one can match the combination of soil, climate, and experience that produces it. Rum, on the other hand, is not native to Canada. The best rums, like Lemon Hart, are distilled in the benign climate of the Caribbean . . . then transported to England where they mature quietly in underground caverns where neither the temperature nor the humidity varies more than a degree or two summer or winter, year in year out.

Obviously a good rum must be imported. And when Lemon Hart Rums reach Canada they are mature, well travelled rums, as distinguished in their way as Canadian wheat – and as well respected throughout the world.

BUT JOBS STILL DISAPPEARING

Ottawa Studies Ship Problem

By PETE LOUDON
(Part Three)

The federal government has been stirred into thinking about the plight of Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern shipbuilders—but so far there has been little action toward the suggested cure, creation of a merchant marine.

Loudon

"This is very actively under study, but I don't know what the outcome will be," Liberal MP for Victoria, Capt. David Groos told the Times.

Jobs are disappearing in Victoria's two main yards at a time when Canadian shipping is booming. Wheat, lumber and other native resource cargoes are being transported to all parts of the world—but in foreign-built vessels.

Costs of maintaining a Canadian merchant fleet, according to shippers, are too high—especially wages.

In order to sustain modern wage costs in Canadian ships and Canadian shipyards, subsidies or low cost capital must be forthcoming, according to analysts of both labor and management.

Other Economies

There are alternative ways of cutting costs without threatening the decent living standards that have been won over the years by men in the industry.

The B.C. government has demonstrated how the coast ferry industry could be changed from a sea-horse-and-buggy operation to a thriving 19-ship fleet.

This was done partly through removal of the need of the ferry system to produce annual profits, partly through providing the service patrons wanted. The ferry authority as a government-owned corporation has amazed and pleased even the most persistent critics of the Social Credit administration.

Shipyard executives here don't believe this is the answer for deep-sea shipping. They prefer it to remain in the hands of experienced shipping firms and in this they have the support of Capt. Groos.

The Victoria MP agreed—"I am against the government running a merchant marine. We did that before and the high cost of operation put us out of business."

But he agreed that the federal government should encourage private industry, if possible.

Under Active Study

"This is very actively under study but I don't know what the outcome will be.

"We are exporting more goods and we want the work for our shipyards. But what form of assistance could be given, I don't know.

"We don't like the idea of subsidies and long-term, low-cost loans would be another form of subsidy because it would cost Ottawa to raise the money. Subsidies mean that the people of Canada are underwriting special sections of the community," he said.

George Chatterton, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich is a Conservative and doesn't sit with the government, hence could disagree:

"I endorse the idea (of a merchant marine) in principle. I am not so sure there should be a crown corporation operating merchant ships, but I do favor government subsidies to ship operators.

"There is already a ship construction subsidy. I think there could also be an operating subsidy for Canadian deep-sea vessels.

To Speak In House

"Canada is a maritime country and we should work to have a Canadian merchant marine. When the occasion offers itself, I will certainly repeat these proposals in parliament. Something should be done in this field," said Mr. Chatterton.

The marine workers' union says even without subsidies, low cost capital or a non-profit crown corporation shipping agency, other steps could be taken to lessen the cost differential in ship construction and operation.

Use mass production methods to cut costs, they say. In the past shipbuilding has been largely a custom-built proposition and automation has not been applied to any great extent.

"North American wage standards can compete if advantage is taken of our higher productivity," they say.

Large Economy Size

Also, bigger ships mean less crew costs per ton and they get better mileage from fuel than do small ships. And larger ships are more economical to build, the union maintains.

Their argument, like that of Yarrows John Wallace, is based on construction according to present needs of Canada.

Build bulk carriers suited to Canadian export commodities and suited also to the harbors of the trade routes. The union recommends, concentrate on 25,000-ton carriers in the 17-18 knot range, the most economic bracket. (One of these would cost $10 million.)

But operating subsidies still are indicated as necessary. Last week, the Victoria Metal Trades Council, representing 11 local marine unions, wired Prime Minister Pearson urging federal operating subsidies.

The iron is apparently hot and the time ripe for other Victoria groups, civic bodies and even the provincial government, to get in a lick too.

Guards 'Off Duty'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The secret service men seen in a Fort Worth, Tex., club early on the morning of Nov. 22 were all off duty, a treasury department official said Wednesday.

CITY HALL LEADS DRIVE

Lobby Forming to Seek Work

A conference of industry, labor, business and civic representatives may be called next month by City Hall in an effort to develop a west coast shipping lobby for federal contracts.

Suggestion was made to city finance committee by Ald. A. I. Curtis who said he was seriously disturbed by loss of the submarine and frigate construction programs.

He felt the award of a heavy water production contract to east coast interests was the final straw.

"I wonder if we shouldn't call a conference of business, industry, labor and civic representatives to talk this out and find out if there is anything we can do," he said.

"It's no use going to Ottawa unless we have something concrete to propose . . . but if we don't get these contracts we are going to become a depressed area.

"I always believed in the saying that the squeaky wheel gets the grease and we're not going to get anything unless we holler."

Ald. Arthur Dowell said Vancouver representatives should be invited too to make such a conference a west coast affair.

"They have two federal cabinet ministers who could bring some extra pressure to bear on the government," he said.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said the suggestion was well taken although he doubted a conference could be called before the New Year.

"However, if you leave it with me I'll see what I can do," he said.

Mayor Wilson appointed Ald. Curtis and Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson from the committee as city delegates to a ways and means committee of Greater Victoria being formed to study the question of a metropolitan library board providing voting rights to representatives of the outside municipalities.

Committee recommended that council boost its $750 budget for helping the Chamber of Commerce's downtown Christmas tree program up to a maximum of $1,150 this year. This would meet a request from the chamber that the city share 50 per cent of the cost of the annual program.

---

A tentative budget for operating Bastion Square courthouse as a museum is "expected in a day or two" from Maritime Museum of B.C. officials, Mayor Wilson said.

This would enable civic and museum officials to begin preliminary negotiations for eventual transfer of the building after it is vacated as a temporary City Hall.

Committee recommended formal confirmation of Peter Birkett as city prosecutor following completion of the standard three months probationary period which ended in November.

Hotel Fires Probed

QUEBEC (CP)—An investigation was to start today into two fires that broke out simultaneously in public areas of the 665-room Chateau Frantenac Hotel Wednesday night.

New PM on Formosa

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Finance Minister C. K. Yen was named premier of Nationalist China Wednesday, replacing Vice-President Chen Cheng. Chen, generally regarded as President Chiang Kai-shek's political heir, resigned Tuesday. Ill health was the announced reason, but informed sources said he was irked because Chiang made several military and civil appointments without consulting him.

CHENAULT
. . . unharmed

Venezuelan Terrorists Free Colonel

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Col. James K. Chenault, tired but otherwise in good shape, was freed Thursday by pro-Communist terrorists who kidnapped him last Wednesday.

Chenault, deputy chief of the U.S. military mission in Venezuela, told a press conference his kidnappers tried to indoctrinate him in communism, "but I told them some facts about life in the United States."

Four youths abducted the 47-year-old officer as a propaganda move in the terrorist drive to bring down the government of President Romulo Betancourt and to sabotage the general election last Sunday, a drive that fizzled.

Chenault sat with his wife Ruth at the press conference.

"It's a great feeling to be free again," he said in a statement.

"I was released unharmed at dawn today after eight days of captivity.

"I was held in some section of Caracas I cannot identify, but it seemed to be well populated. I was guarded constantly, but received reasonably good treatment, considering the circumstances."

The pro-Communist Armed Forces for National Liberation kidnapped him in front of his home last Wednesday in an attempt to focus international headlines on its campaign to sabotage the presidential elections last Sunday.

The terrorist campaign was a failure. A record number of Venezuelans turned out to vote.

The FALN in telephone calls to Caracas newspapers had said it would not harm the American officer and would release him on Saturday, the day before the election. But it continued to hold him after the voting.

The U.S. embassy said Chenault's kidnappers took him to a point a few blocks from his home and he walked from there. He reached home at 6 a.m. and telephoned embassy officials at once.

The FALN Wednesday widened its campaign of violence to include British targets. Previously the terrorists had concentrated on U.S. interests and Venezuelan government installations.

BOMB AUTO AGENCY

The FALN machine - gunned the residence of the British ambassador and bombed a British automobile agency.

No one was injured in either attack. Ambassador Sir Douglas Busk was away when the attack occurred. The motor company's store front was shattered and several automobiles damaged.

The FALN gave no reason for its anti-British campaign, but it is believed to be a reprisal against Trinidad's release to Venezuelan authorities last week of six FALN members who seized a Venezuelan airliner and flew it to Port of Spain, Trinidad.

Meanwhile, the supreme electoral council continued its slow count of ballots and said it expected to announce the official results of the presidential election Sunday. All indications are that Raul Leoni, candidate of President Romulo Betancourt's Democratic Action party, will be the winner.

With 2,100,000 of about 3,000,000 votes tabulated, Leoni had 639,387 votes to 413,644 for his nearest rival, Rafael Caldera of the Social Christian party.

STUDENTS SUSPENDED

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Four grade nine students at New Westminster's Vincent Massey High School have been suspended following a bomb hoax at the school Nov. 26.

Police said today charges are pending against the four 16-year-olds of causing public mischief.

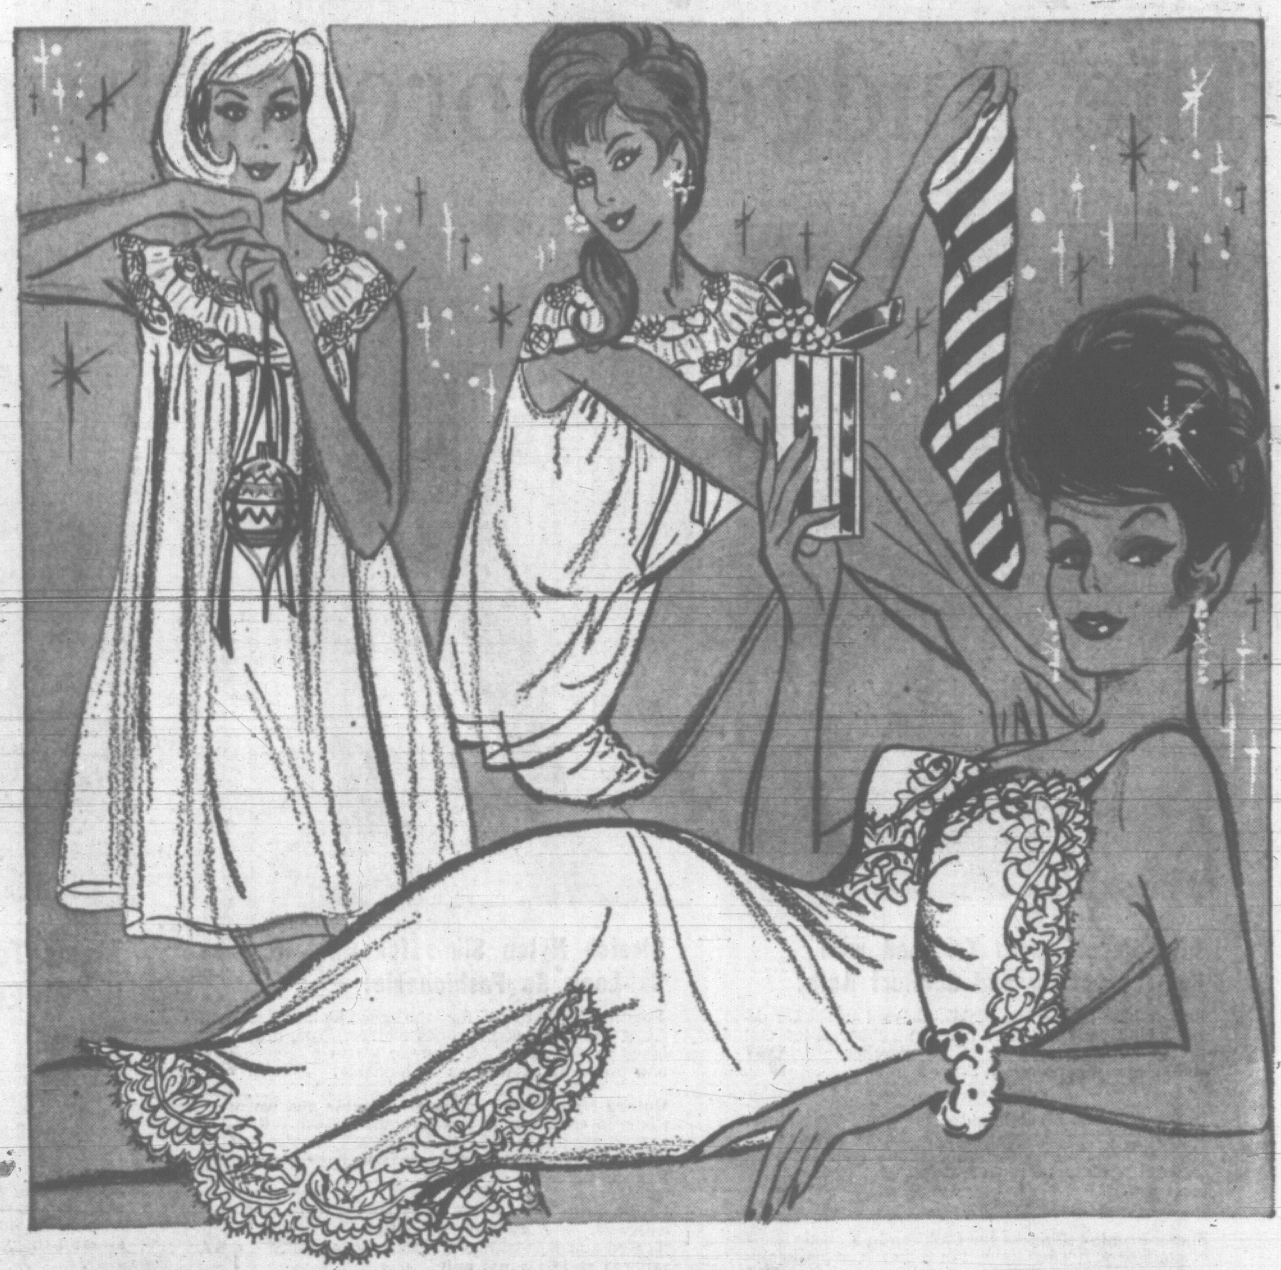

The school's 1,350 students were evacuated after the bomb scare while police and firemen searched the buildings. When it became apparent that the search of the 37 classrooms and 13 other rooms would take a long time the students were sent home for the day.

CHINA GOV'T SUPPORTS BIRTH CONTROL PLEA

GENEVA (Reuters)—The International Red Cross is trying to persuade the population of Communist China to accept the idea of birth control, it was learned here today.

Henrik Beer, secretary-general of the League of Red Cross Societies, told a press conference the league, in collaboration with the Chinese government, is conducting a propaganda campaign to break down the Chinese psychological resistance to birth control.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1963—PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

I have a hard question for you today, one which a dozen men and women must answer presently in a Texas jury room.

If you were among the luckless twelve, what would you do with Jack Ruby?

My own strong impulse would be to vote for acquittal.

This on the grounds that even though self-appointed, Ruby was less murderer than executioner. The outcome of Lee Oswald's trial was certain anyway, so why send to the chair the man who telescoped the lengthy and cumbersome processes of law in one violent moment?

Ruby's was an illegal act. But did you not, as I did, greet the news of his deed with a flash of bitter satisfaction?

It is easy to look on him as God's hammer, the chosen if unlikely agent of retribution. Should we, then—and the more so since justice is blind—hold to the letter of man-made law in judging this man?

Thoughts such as those must inevitably sway the not-to-be envied jury which in Dallas or elsewhere will weigh Ruby's act and decide his fate.

But even though they, and we, deal with an extraordinary case there are other thoughts which good men and true must ponder.

What happens if because a jury sympathizes with his motive and deplores the crime alleged against his victim, it chooses to short-circuit the law on Ruby's behalf?

The law, of which a sworn jury becomes an instrument more important than arresting officer, counsel or even judge, is weakened. The strict definition of murder is diminished, and a motive condoned.

There are times aplenty when we resent the law, with its archaic-seeming devices and its pettifogging preoccupation with miscrocopic detail. Its language baffles us. It hampers and impedes us in much that we'd like to do. We invoke it, even in our own behalf, with misgivings.

At times the law's an ass, an observation dropped by Shakespeare and repeated from the bench this fall by a worthy and erudite Victoria judge.

But take it away, rid ourselves of this encumbrance to free will, and where do we stand?

★ ★ ★

To anyone not inhabiting a fool's paradise, the question must be self-answering.

Most of us have long ago dropped the uncomfortable concept of a literal hell. To learn the reality of evil, though we have only to suspend all law for a single day.

For myself, I would live that day in fear, with weapons never out of reach; nor would I be too sure of surviving it.

My picture, of course, is fantastic. We will not abandon the law, our clumsy but necessary creature which we have evolved through so many centuries.

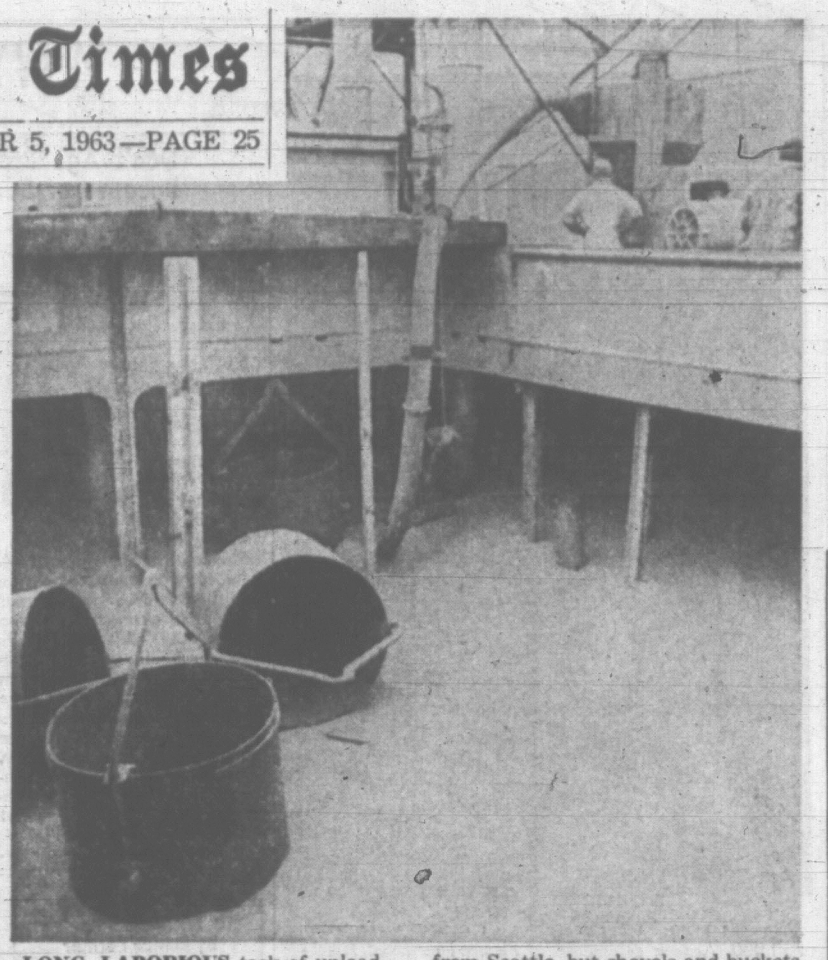

But ours is an indulgent age; and individually and collectively, we whittle at this agent which man has developed to protect him from his neighbors and himself.

We indulge ourselves. A towel, an ashtray taken from a motel isn't really stealing. And why drive at 60 when a perfectly safe 70 will get us there faster?

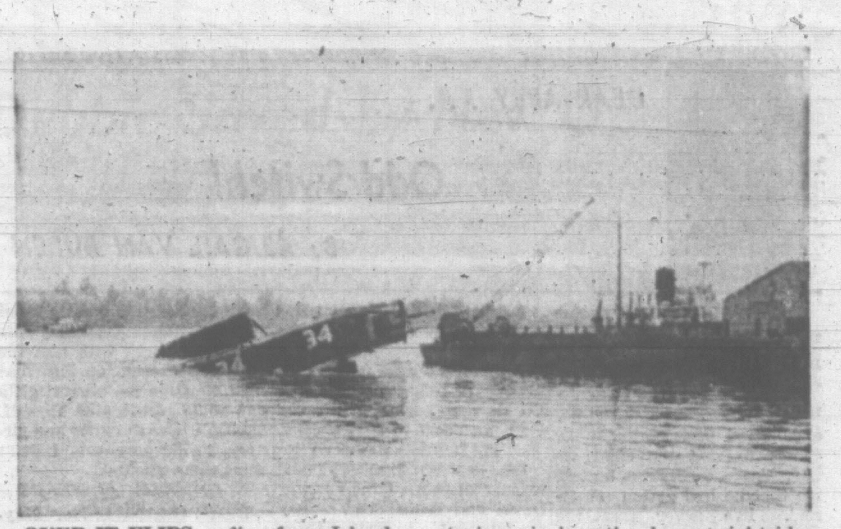

We indulge others. We make a cult of youth and excuse its excesses, parroting such nonsense as, 'There is no such thing as a bad boy.'

So, with an eye to cause and effect—our easy going outlook and the tide of violence it has engendered—I think we cannot permit ourselves to view Jack Ruby's crime with indulgence, even though to condemn the perpetrator goes against the grain.

Were I on that jury, I hope I would find the guts and conscience to weigh his case in the strict scales of the law without which life becomes a jungle, even though to do so sent Ruby to the electric chair.

LONG, LABORIOUS task of unloading damaged freighter Irish Rowan will be speeded by two vaculators (see one at top right) brought in from Seattle, but shovels and buckets (left) still have important part to play in getting weight of ship reduced. (Times photo.)

ALONG THE WATERFRONT

Seawatchers Delight In Ogden Pt. Salvage

By MONTE ROBERTS
Times Marine Reporter

Members of the Fraternity of Waterfront watchers who were fortunate enough to be in the Ogden Point vicinity this morning were able to witness two unusual maritime operations:

Roberts

Unloading grain from a damaged ship, both by old-fashioned shovel-and-bucket and the latest "vaculator" brought in from Seattle.

And the righting of a hog fuel barge which capsized off Trial Island about two weeks ago.

The damaged ship is the Irish Rowan, which sustained a deep gash amidship in collision with another freighter in Vancouver Harbor 10 days ago.

The ship was laden with 15,000 tons of grain, outbound for Japan, when the accident occurred.

Tons of grain poured out of the gash, but more tons of water poured in, soaking the remaining grain and adding vastly to its weight. But the net result was to remove the balance of weight from the centre of the ship.

At that time a survey by Lloyd's of London showed the ship had a "hog"—an arching of the bottom of the ship, due to less weight amidships than when loaded.

6,000-TONS TASK

After temporary repairs were effected, the Irish Rowan was moved to Victoria Grain Elevator dock at Ogden Point, to have 1,000 tons removed from No. 1 hold—the farthest forward—2,000 tons from No. 5, the after hold, and all the grain—about 3,000 tons, from No. 3 hold amidships, where the ship was damaged.

The vaculators imported from Seattle are giant vacuum cleaners which suck the grain out, and into storage facilities at the elevator. Next step after unloading it to return the ship to drydock for permanent repairs—including removal of the hog.

TUGS AT WORK

At about the same time Canadian Stevedoring started on the Irish Rowan job, two Island Tug and Barge towboats and a clamshell barge righted the capsized barge ITB 34, which went over in foul weather in Juan de Fuca Strait.

The clamshell weighted down one side of the barge with bottom mud until it showed a sizeable list. Then lines were affixed from the tugs Sudbury I and Island Sovereign, one line to the underside of the barge, and other topside. The tugs pulled opposite each other until, with a quick flip, the barge was upright.

ISLAND TUG CLAIMS TWO NEW RECORDS

Island Tug and Barge Ltd. today is claimng a double record for high-tonnage and long-distance towing.

The tow was 11,000 tons of industrial salts, from Black Warrior Lagoon, Mexico, to the Hooker Chemical Co., North Vancouver, a distance of 1,600 miles.

The big cargo was loaded aboard the barge Island Exporter, under tow to the deepsea towboat Sudbury II. The tow is the first of four which ITB has contracted to carry out for the chemical company, which uses the salts to make chemicals for the pulp and paper industry.

Union Says Chinese Exploited

Saanich food baron Henry Eng was accused Wednesday by Meatcutters' Union secretary of skirting a legal contract and exploiting Chinese employees.

Union secretary George Johnson charged Eng, director of Oakcrest Foods, with unethical hiring and firing tactics arising from manipulation of the huge market's meat department.

The union has taken the matter to the Labor Relations Board, Mr. Johnson told Victoria Labor Council.

He said his union was successful in making a collective bargain with Oakcrest this year on behalf of 14 employees.

MORE TO GO?

Now, Eng has laid off one part-time man and one full-time employee, has given a week's notice to another full-time man, and has promised more will go, VLC delegates were told.

"An official of the company was told all union people will be given notice by the first of the coming year," Mr. Johnson said.

Meanwhile, the Saanich grocer has opened a subsidiary meat-cutting operation at the rear of a building at Douglas and Pembroke, employing all-Chinese workmen at "less than half the union rate."

He said Oakcrest meat is received and cut at the Douglas Street location, then trucked to the store at 3475 Quadra for wrapping, storage and sale.

Municipal Polls Close at 8 P.M.

Oak Bay and Esquimalt voters went to the civic polls this morning in heavier volumes than last year but Saanich saw just a slow but steady run to its 13 polls.

Polls in all three municipalities are open until 8 tonight.

Reeveship contests have stimulated interest in the election races of the three municipalities.

At Oak Bay Municipal Hall a 50 per cent turn out was forecast as voting was reported steady and heavy.

By noon today almost 500 persons had cast ballots — doubling the turnout over the same period last year.

However, an election bus serving the northern part of the municipality did a slim business this morning.

Saanich's 13 polling stations are located at:

Cloverdale School, Frank Hobbs School, Gordon Head Elementary School, Lansdowne Junior High, McMorran's Sea View Room, Marigold School, Mount View High, Prospect Lake School, Royal Oak Women's Institute Hall, St. Luke's Hall and St. Martin-in-the-Fields Church Hall.

Acclamation For Mayor

Today was election day for Mayor R. B. Wilson but only nomination day for other city council candidates.

Mayor Wilson this morning was expected to pass the 2 p.m. deadline for city nominations without any opposition to his re-election for a second two-year term.

But at least seven candidates were in the field for the other four council vacancies to be filled by balloting Thursday of next week at the Victoria Ballroom, Government and Cormorant.

An appeal by Mayor Wilson and school board chairman Mrs. A. B. Thomson Wednesday for persons to stand for the two city school board's seats was answered. Last minute decisions made candidates of Leslie Spencer, 1296 Richardson, a medical photographer, and E. J. Wood, 1702 Belmont, owner of Pimlotts Transfer and Storage and a P-TA past president. Earlier candidates were photographer and former trustee Ralph Fryer and incumbent John Porteous.

Mayor Wilson's acclamation was expected from the moment he said last summer he would stand for one more term in order to see a variety of major projects through to completion.

Mayor Wilson was elected Dec. 14, 1961, in his first bid for city office by a record landslide that gave him more than eight votes to every one for his opponent J. Donald Smith, Victoria MLA.

His predecessor, Mayor Percy Scurrah, also won an acclamation in 1937 when he ran for a second term as mayor.

Adding his name as seventh in the list of candidates for aldermanic posts Wednesday was Victor Williams, 1623 Davies, a company director.

Making his fourth try for a seat on council, he said better control should be instituted over civic land dealings.

New Store Rumor

Rumors that a large Simpson-Sears Ltd. retail store would be established at the Town and Country Shopping Plaza in Saanich were denied today by a company official in Vancouver.

USE SCHOOLS FOR VOTING, SAYS LABOR

Use of schools and community halls as polling stations in municipal elections was urged Wednesday by Victoria Labor Council.

Delegate John Driscoll said there would be a far greater turnout at the polls in Victoria if the city replaced its central polling place with several, more conveniently located stations.

Elderly voters often have a hard time getting downtown to cast ballots, and traffic and parking congestion also hinder the vote, he said.

REV. JOHN C. CODY

Former Bishop Here Dies in Ontario

The former Roman Catholic bishop of Victoria, Rev. John Christopher Cody, 63, died early today in London, Ont., where he had been bishop since 1950.

A St. Joseph's Hospital spokesman in London said he suffered a heart seizure. He was admitted to hospital Wednesday, when he became ill on a visit to a seminary.

When he was made bishop of Victoria, Rev. Cody was only 37, the youngest bishop in Canada and one of the youngest of the Roman Church hierarchy in the world.

HERE FROM OTTAWA

Rev. Cody was parish priest of the Church of Assumption in Eastview, a suburb of Ottawa, and for 10 years a curate at St. Patrick's Church, Ottawa, when he was made bishop of Victoria.

He was consecrated in the Ottawa Bascilica Feb. 24, 1937, and was installed at St. Andrew's Cathedral April 7 by Archbishop W. M. Duke, of Vancouver.

He served the diocese throughout the Second World War until 1946, when he became co-adjutor Bishop of London. His place was taken by Rev. James Hill, who died last year.

He won the 1962 award given by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews for service to the cause of friendship between peoples of different creeds.

The Vatican named him bishop assistant to the Pontifical throne in February, 1962. This placed him close to the Pope's throne in St. Peter's Bascilica during pontifical ceremonies.

Special mass will be said at St. Andrew's Cathedral the day of the funeral for Rev. Cody, which will be announced later.

Memory for Faces Aids Conviction

Danny Breeze, 22, of Vancouver, was given a month on each charge, not concurrent.

Court was told that Breeze kicked Joseph Page, 639 Niagara, in the stomach when the elderly landlord tried to put him out of his house last April, and that he also kicked Desmond Lindo, same address, in the knee when Lindo tried to defend Page.

Breeze also kicked Baxter Bennett and Stanley Tomczyk, owners of the Drake Hotel, when they tried to have him put out of the beer parlor there Friday night for being drunk.

Bennett was kicked in the face, and Tomczyk in the stomach.

Breeze, who pleaded guilty to all four charges, challenged Lindo's identification of him as the man who attacked Page.

"You can remember me after nine months?" he asked.

"Sure. You got a punk's face," he was told.

Breeze has a lengthy record of crimes on the mainland, the court was told, including a 20-month term for assaulting a peace officer.

TOPICS of the DAY

Mount Douglas Senior Secondary Hi-Y Club Wednesday was declared the best Victoria Hi-Y for its program of outstanding merit last year.

Oak Bay Kiwanis vice-president S. A. Turner made the award to Hi-Y member Dave Lawson at an evening ceremony in which some 90 new members of seven Hi-Y clubs were inducted.

The clubs last term operated two school patrols at elementary schools, a lunch stand, canvass for charity, served refreshments at a fall fair and track meet, provided billets, entertainment, trophies and a scholarship.

At a later meeting, council met with less opposition and permission was granted.

'Guest' Conductor Here at Least Two Years

Announcement was made today by Symphony Society president Jack Barraclough, that Mr. Mueller has agreed to serve as resident conductor and music director for the next two seasons.

The move to have Mr. Mueller so appointed was initiated by Hans Gruber, who has held the position for 15 years, and who built up the orchestra from simple beginnings to its present competence during that time.

Recognition of the fact that all musical organizations and all directors benefit from changes of viewpoint and personality from time to time, is clearly indicated in Mr. Gruber's letter to the president and board of directors of the symphony society.

Mr. Gruber, writing from Toronto, states: "Although I had been contemplating the desirability, from the orchestra's point of view, of relinquishing my duties and position for perhaps three or four seasons, I felt at the same time that action on my part in this connection would have to be contingent upon the availability of just the right person."

The letter pays tribute to Mr. Mueller's exceptional ability, and concludes with the conviction that the appointment "will mean a renewed lease on life for the orchestra and Victoria's musical life generally."

MOVING SOON

Mr. Mueller, with his family, will take up permanent residence in Victoria after the New Year, when he will work closely with the directors on several important projected plans for improvement of the orchestra.

An accomplished operatic conductor, Mr. Mueller has directed opera in Montreal and for Vancouver Opera Association and the International Festival.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Odd Switch!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: After being married for quite a few years my husband and I got a divorce. I have been happily remarried for a year. I see my ex-husband periodically as he comes to visit the child we had. A few weeks ago he told me that he had gotten remarried. I've never met the woman, but he said she didn't have much style, and would I mind giving her some tips on how to dress and fix her hair and make up, etc. I don't feel any animosity toward her, but I cannot imagine a man bringing his second wife to his first wife to be "made over." How would you handle this?

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: I'd be tempted to thank him for the compliment, but decline the assignment.

DEAR ABBY: I have wanted a pet monkey ever since I can remember. People who have had them say they make good pets. Are they hard to train? Do they require much care? I am an adult.

MAD FOR MONKEYS

DEAR MAD: Monkeys make wonderful pets. (I had a pair, David and Bathsheba.) They are impossible to train (if you mean "housebreak"), and require no more care than a dog or cat. You will need either a heated cage or a warm, dry place inside for the little creature. Winters where you live are nothing to monkey with.

DEAR ABBY: Recently I accepted an engagement ring from a young man I have known only three months. I am sure I have made the right choice. My former boy friend is out of the city and will be gone for some time. He is on an assignment, serving his church. I went with him for two years and, during that time, he gave me several gifts and some pictures of himself. Should I take the gifts and pictures to his parents? I don't want them around.

CHANGE OF HEART

DEAR CHANGE: No. Maybe his parents don't want them around, either. Wait until your former boy friends returns, and ask him if he wants them returned.

Togetherness Easier for Doctors

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Doris Pieri, a general practitioner from Corning, N.Y., says if a woman doctor wants both a marriage and a career she would be wise to marry another doctor.

Dr. Doris has been in practice with her husband, Dr. Steven Pieri, for the last 18 years.

"I don't see how I could have carried on a practice if I had married anyone but a doctor," she said in Montreal, where she and her husband were attending a refresher course for general practitioners.

"One of the advantages of being in practice together is that we can go to meetings such as this together."

Dr. Doris and Dr. Steven—that's how their patients address them—spend between six and eight weeks of each year at meetings and they always go together.

"We agreed on that a long time ago," she said.

Fantasy of Christmas Gleams in Home Decor

Most homes have candles and miniature decorations which they unearth annually and then carefully pack away at the end of the season. Gay bells, wreaths and ribbon ornaments complete the feeling of Christmas in the home.

Christmas cards are part of the Christmas fantasy, and so many of them adapt beautifully to the glittering themes desired. Many of this year's cards are trimmed with glitter or feature designs which catch and reflect the soft lights of the tree. Try attaching your cards to lengths of ribbon and hanging the ribbon to door frames or mantel pieces. Transparent tape, straight pins or staples can be used to attach the cards to the ribbon. Tie a lovely bow at the top of the ribbon as trim. You'll find dusting much easier, too than if you allowed the cards to stand free on the mantel or other flat surfaces.

Cards shine the Christmas warmth of your home to your neighbors. Paste or tape particularly pretty cards to the windows, design side out. Use others to decorate stair wells and to frame mirrors.

Fashion ribbon chains to festoon the Christmas tree or to add a touch of Christmas to lamp shades, door frames and windows. A wreath for the door is easily made with a series of knotless bows, made with the ribbon that sticks to itself when moistened. Use layers of silver paper over shaped cardboard to create Christmas bells. Trim with a red bow at top and add one or two jingle bells in the centre for decoration with the traditional touch.

Ribbon poinsettias vie with the real flowers for beauty and can be used year after year on parcels, on the tree and for home decoration. Small poinsettias or ribbon roses make beautiful corsages to present to your guests or to wear yourself.

Use all of the symbols of Christmas in your home this year. Personalize the Christmas fantasy in your home by exercising your imagination.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Don't Age Prematurely Because of Boredom

Not long ago, on a plane, I happened to be seated next to the assistant to a well-known physician who has had many feminine patients. The assistant and I talked of this and that. Then I asked her what she had learned about women from her experiences while working with the doctor.

Lowman

She told me that many middle-aged women ask for appointments with the doctor over and over again even though the physician finds them to be in perfect condition. It is true that women in this age group often have vague aches and discomforts because of the changes in the glandular system. However, what this assistant said reinforced today's knowledge concerning the great impact of the emotions on health.

She told me that the majority of women who came back again and again even though there was nothing wrong with them were women with a great deal of leisure. It didn't seem to make much difference whether they were rich or in difficult financial straits. The psychosomatic ingredient for ill health was boredom born of leisure. These individuals had little to do except worry about themselves.

Another fact she observed was that many of these women were lonely or had an unhappy marriage. In fact, in two cases, the woman in question regained vibrant health after a happy marriage.

It is extremely important for a woman to have regular physical examinations, especially from middle age on. It is vital that she report any irregularity or new symptom to her doctor without delay. However, there is no doubt that doctor's offices are filled with women who feel ill because they do not have a vital interest in life.

Boredom can age one prematurely and lead to poor health. If you find yourself with too much leisure at mid life do something about it! If you are lonely, make friends. Don't wait for the other person to make the first gesture toward friendship. Take care of somebody's children or offer your service to philanthropic or civic or church groups.

If you would like to have my leaflet "How to Overcome Loneliness and Self-Consciousness" send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet number 59 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

This Simple Method Alters Dress with Long Waistline

"Dear Eunice:

"I have two double-knit woolen dresses that are both too long at the waistline. Both have elastic at the waist. I am an experienced seamstress, but many times I find you give very usable suggestions."

—Mrs. H.C.

Dear Mrs. H.C.:

I hope you are referring to the double-knit fabric that is purchased by the yard in fabric departments. Try your dress on, tie a string tightly at the waist, pull up any ease you desire and then mark with white chalk just under the string. Cut about ¾ inch below this mark, or slightly lower to insure plenty of ease for the bodice. Sew the skirt to the bodice and sew another piece of tape on the wrong side of your dress, just covering the seamline, for a casing for the elastic. Some ready-made dresses have a seam at the waistline and some don't, but the soft, blouson look seems to have almost the same effect either way.

Mrs. N. K. says: "In the very best of coats, the first wear shows in the centre back seam of the lining. I have discovered that this can be overcome by laying the centre back of the pattern on a fold, thus eliminating the back seam under the pleat at the centre back."

SHOPPING GUIDE

Latest in Women's Clothes —Warm But Purely Feminine

By PENNY SAVER

Somehow, somewhere, we always manage to bring clothes into our Christmas shopping—for ourselves or for someone special on our gift lists.

This year, lets go all out for those soft warm fabrics and shimmering silks and satins!

We've all heard of the feminine rage for petti-pants. But, most of us think of them as created of stretchy nylon which wouldn't keep the most robust human warm. However, before you despair, listen to what Penny found today.

One shop is carrying a completely new stock of black and red knit petti-pants. Pants still retain their feminine qualities with ruffled lace and bows at the knees, but in the same token are soft and warm. Price is $3.95.

Furry slippers in bright blues and pinks are priced at $2.98 and $3.98. They are toeless, heelless and slip-on style.

Imported Italian mohair slippers in either mule or boot style come in all colors and sell for $5.49.

Softly quilted lounging pajamas are priced at $12.95. One Penny fell in love with has a bright pink jacket with three-quarter length sleeves, pert round collar trimmed in lace, and long, slim black trousers.

Pastel toned quilted housecoats have round collars and three-quarter length sleeves and may be matched with furry mules. Price of housecoats is $8.95; mules, $3.50.

Men! If you like to see your girl in a fancy sweater, now is the time to make sure she has one.

Shop I was in has wool blend sweaters with scooped necklines priced at $10.95. Sweaters are in any pastel shade.

Judging Quality In Turkey

Turkey is sold by grade in large Canadian cities and most small centres. This is the consumer's assurance that the turkey has certain qualities, depending upon the grade, which she wants. Grade A is well-fleshed (meaty), free of large bruises or skin tears, very few (if any) pinfeathers and well formed (no crooked keel bone, etc). Grade Bs may be marked down because of tears, bruises, pin feathers or crooked keels or because they are not as well-fleshed.

Homemakers ask the Poultry Products Institute how to tell quality and the answer is "buy by grade." Another question frequently asked is can you tell a young bird by pressing the keel bone (breast bone)? The answer is "yes." If the bone has a flexible tip the turkey is young. However, when buying a frozen bird this test cannot be applied, but the marking of grade and class of turkey gives you this information. The small turkeys are 14 to 16 weeks old, young roasting toms and hen are usually 5 to 7 months old and breeder turkeys are usually 12 to 15 months old.

'THE DAY I REMEMBER'

Christmas at Local Lighthouse

By PAT. DUFOUR

Christmas Day of 1962 is the one that Sally Horn chooses "as the best one I can remember."

She explains, "It was the first one that I remember celebrating like town people. We bought a tree and my grandparents visited us from Manitoba."

If you're wondering if Sally and her folks have been living in the tundra or on a desert isle, let me explain. Twelve year-old Sally, her two brothers, John and Donald, and parents Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Horn, live on Trial Island, where Mr. Horn is lighthouse keeper.

Before 1962, the Horns had spent six years at Ballenas lighthouse, near Parksville.

There, Sally reports, "Just before Christmas we'd hike up to the top of the island and cut ourselves a tree. You don't bother to go to town to get one when you have to cross four miles of water."

Sally explains some of the differences she found last year. "At Ballenas we knew Christmas was coming but we weren't so conscious of it. Here, it's easier to visit the stores and see all the decorations.

"Here, we can come ashore about once a week and shop for gifts and groceries. At Ballenas, it was sometimes pretty chancey whether we could get things in time—that water gets quite rough.

"Living off Victoria is easy—we have television and electric lights. At Ballenas, for a long time we had nothing but coal oil lamps."

One of the chores that Sally shares with her brothers is collecting beachwood: "Mum has a coal and wood stove and it's quite a business keeping it full."

Delighted to be near "civilization," Sally finds living in a lighthouse anything but lonely. The fact that her pets number seven dogs, two mallard ducks and a finch may have something to do with this.

Until they left for Nova Scotia, there were also two older sisters to help round out her busy day. Ann, the eldest, "joined the navy and married a sailor." Nancy is married, too. Yes, you guessed it! her husband is a lighthouse keeper.

If she has one pet peeve, it's people who "insist on trying out their boats when the water's too rough—it's so foolish."

Now in grade seven, Sally has taken all her schooling by correspondence. "Ugh!—it's like having examinations all the time."

Sally Horn finds Christmas in a lighthouse as exciting as being ashore. "But," she admits, "with us, everything is WP—weather permitting!"

Debbie Saved by New Operation

TORONTO (CP)—Debbie is a three-year-old patient in the Hospital for Sick Children who owes her life to a Toronto surgical team and a new operation.

A few months ago she faced almost certain death. Today she is on the road to complete recovery from a heart abnormality which in the past has been fatal for 98 per cent of its tiny victims.

Debbie was at the opening session of the joint annual meeting here of the Canadian Heart Foundation and Canadian Cardiovascular Society. She was presented as an example of what heart funds can do.

When she was born she had what is known as total transposition of the great vessels of the heart. The aortic and pulmonary arteries which carry blood to the lungs and to the body were transposed.

The result was the heart's beat merely circulated part of her blood back and forth to the lungs and the rest simply circulated back and forth in the body. No freshly oxygenated blood went to the body to replenish tissue and bone.

Victims of this condition live a few years at most. Even this short period of life is possible only because nature somehow managed to provide a makeshift "shunt" by which blood leaks between the heart chambers, enabling blood from the lungs to get into the circulatory system.

REVERSE HEART

When Debbie was three weeks old Dr. William Mustard and a team of surgeons artificially widened a tiny abnormal hole in her heart wall through which some oxygen-enriched blood could leak to prolong her life.

Then, while waiting for her to reach an age when she could undergo an operation, the surgeons practised on animals.

Last May she was put on a heart-lung machine which bypassed her heart. Then the veins which bring blood back to the heart were severed, shifted into reverse positions and sutured into place.

This meant that Debbie had a heart that worked backwards from normal. But it was doing exactly the correct job. Instead of the right side of the heart bringing blood back from the body and into the lungs, it took over the task of the left side.

At the time doctors thought the operation was the first of its kind but several weeks ago they learned a similar operation was performed at almost the same time by a University of Cincinnati team.

So far as is known, these are the first two small children to undergo such operations though a Swedish surgeon a year ago did a successful operation for a comparable condition on an older child.

Toys, Games In Kiddies Greeting Cards

Christmas cards for children are games as well as greetings. Many cards designed especially to be sent to children include small illustrated story books in card form, punch-out cutouts, sewing games and even a toy train complete with a real whistle, to be made up by its small recipient.

One card for an infant includes a tiny teddy bear in oilcloth, which Mom can sew together and stuff.

Boxed selections of cards to be sent by youngsters are also available. They are popular with young parents, who send them in the names of their preschoolers; as well as with the young public school set.

Victoria Man Married In Mainland Ceremony

A wedding of interest to Victorians took place in South Burnaby recently when Maureen Anne Sunderland became the bride of Frederick Robert Wright.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Sunderland of South Burnaby and formerly of Victoria. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Wright, 3061 Earl Grey Street, Victoria.

Given in marriage by her father, the dark-haired bride wore a floor-length sheath gown of white peau de soie that was enhanced with a long train, held at the back waistline with a bow. The fitted bodice had a rounded neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. Her bouffant veil misted from a rosette that matched the wedding gown. Only jewelry was a single strand of culture pearls. Red roses and fern were in her bouquet.

Short-length gowns of coral toned peau de soie, matching rosette headpieces and bouquets of pale yellow carnations were chosen by maid of honor, Miss Donna Backlund, Vancouver, and bridesmaid, Miss Diane Sunderland, the bride's sister.

Best man was Les Underwood, Victoria, and guests were ushered to pews by Dave Black and Rusty Goepel, both of Vancouver.

Glen Sheane, Vancouver, proposed the toast to the bride's happiness at a reception at Rose Garth, New Westminster. Silver candelabra and candles flanked the three-tier wedding cake on the head table.

Newlyweds will make their home in Vancouver where the groom is a law student at the University of British Columbia.

St. Aidan's Church was setting for the November wedding of Frances Dean McLeod and FO William James Tulloch. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Hibbert McLeod of Victoria, and Mrs. Pauline Tulloch, Bellville, Ont. Rev. A. C. McLeod officiated at the ceremony. (Ryan Bros. Photo.)

Mr. and Mrs. John Edward Mingy Croft are pictured cutting the cake following their marriage in Centennial United Church in November. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. William E. Glover and Mr. and Mrs. John E. Croft, all of Victoria. (Roy Strable, Jus-Rite Studio.)

Fiddick-Youell Vows

Standard baskets of white chrysanthemums and pink carnations created a setting in the Hunt Road home of Mr. and Mrs. Barry Youell, for the wedding last Saturday evening of Mr. Youell's sister, Joy Gwendolyn Youell and Robert George Fiddick.

Rev. Millard Alexander officiated. Wedding music was played by Mrs. T. Brooks. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Youell, 6207 Welch Road, Victoria, and Mrs. A. Fiddick, Vancouver, and G. Fiddick, Nanaimo.

The bride wore a white satin and lace gown with a slight train. Her chapel-length veil was held by a coronet of sequins and seed pearls. Pink Briar Cliff roses were in her cascade bouquet. She was given in marriage by her father.

Bell-shaped dresses in blush pink satin with matching shoes and gloves and hats of plumes and net were worn by the maid of honor, Miss Joan Youell, sister of the bride, and the bridesmatron, Mrs. Barry Youell. They carried white feathered chrysanthemums.

Jake Fiddick was best man and ushering guests to their pews were Barry Youell and Larry Fiddick.

At a reception following the ceremony, the bride's table was set with a three-tier wedding cake and white candles and flowers. Barry Youell proposed the toast.

On return the couple will live at 1031 Clark Road at Brentwood.

Stocking for Pet

The "stockings hung by the chimney with care" should include one for the family pet! Felt scraps are ideal for this purpose and can be used to fashion a fish-shaped stocking for Pussy or a bone-shaped one for Fido. Before sewing two fish or bone-shaped felt pieces together, applique pet's name on the top section with other scraps of felt, or sew on sequins and trim to give stocking a truly festive look. Stockings may be filled with dog or cat "candies," toys, balls, etc.

Mis. Theresa James and Mr. Lorne R. Hammett were married in St. Patrick's Church, Oak Bay, at a high noon ceremony in mid-November. Their parents are Mr. J. R. James and Mrs. L. James, both of Victoria, and Mr. and Mrs. K. Hammett of London, Ont. (Jus-Rite Studio, Roy Strable, photographer.)

Women Help To Keep Music Alive

MONTREAL (CP) — Women are a vital force in keeping symphonic music alive in North America, says Pierre Beique, manager of the Montreal Symphony Orchestra.

Not only do the women's committees hold fund-raising drives, women account for the majority of the concert-going public, he says.

"Without the interest of women, interest in symphonic music on this continent would be one-half what it is, and that's putting it conservatively. It is becoming a new hobby for men but for years it has been a top activity for women."

'Gift' Machine

The wonderful husband who plans to buy his wife a sewing machine for Christmas should tip his hand in advance, unless his wife has been hinting as to the model she desires. A sewing machine should be selected that best performs the type of sewing done by the lady of the house. Perhaps a visit to a local sewing centre is in order so that both Mom and Dad can see the different models in action.

Gifts for Bride-Elect In Decorated Basket

Co-hostesses were Miss Tate and Misses Sharon Watkins and Sandra Campbell.

Red carnations en corsage were presented to the guest of honor and pink carnations to her mother, Mrs. K. Cheetham.

Among the guests were the bride - elect's grandmothers, Mrs. I. Cheetham and Mrs. A. Moon, and her aunt, Mrs. M. Waterworth.

Other guests included Mrs. R. Stoner, Mrs. W. Dunsmuir, Mrs. J. MacIntyre, Mrs. F. Gins, the Misses D. ## St. Luke's Young People Perform on Parish Night

The young people of St. Luke's Church recently presented a program of vocal and instrumental selections on Parish Night, held in the church hall.

Also on the program was a one act traditional Chinese play called "A Battle of Wits" which was directed by Margery Bridgeman and presented by the St. Luke's Players.

Also presented were Lynn Leatham, Pamela Bain, Michele Waters, Patricia Lewis, Julie de Goutier, Penny Beavan, Claudia Edwards, Mary Howland, Julie Gray, Connie Pepper, Joan McCandlish and David Foster.

Time Saver

The trend towards personal greeting cards grows annually. What are personal greetings? They're the cards which can be ordered with the sender's name and/or address printed on the bottom. Most Canadians send so many Christmas cards that having part of the work done right at the printing plant speeds the job. Most dealers have a selection of personal greeting cards available for order.

A cake that takes a whole day to mix and requires the help of two strong boys to lift it from the oven, is made once a month at a Children's Home in Korea. Chock full of fruit, raisins and chocolates, the huge cake is topped by birthday candles—one to represent each birthday child. The Home is sponsored by the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, 63 Sparks Street, Ottawa 4.

FOOD FANCIES

Oysters are a treat any meal of the day. They make a good breakfast dish breaded with cornmeal, deep fried, and served on hot, buttered toast accompanied by lemon wedges and/or chili sauce.

Serve honey cinnamon toast as a breakfast appeal. Children will even take time for a second piece before their mad dash to the day's activities. To make, toast slices of bread on one side. While still hot, butter the untoasted side of bread. Spread buttered side with honey. Sprinkle cinnamon over the top. Place slices under broiler flame until the bread is well browned and the dressing is well blended.

A quick and pretty cover-up for any cake (your own, packaged or purchased) is fluffy honey frosting. Here is the recipe: 1 egg white, ½ cup honey, dash of salt. Beat egg white with salt until stiff enough to hold up in peaks, but not dry. Pour honey in fine stream over egg white, beating constantly until frosting holds its shape. Makes about 2¼ cups frosting.

Line shallow desert dishes with a layer of crumbled or crushed cookies before pouring in an instant pudding mix. The crunchy crust will add texture and tantalizing new flavor. Try chocolate cookie crumbs with butterscotch pudding, gingersnap crumbs with vanilla pudding, or orange cookie crumbs with chocolate pudding.

MONTREAL, December 5th — Here are three infallible ways to earn an enthusiastic, life-sized hug for Christmas! Give a BANK OF MONTREAL holly-decorated Christmas Cheque . . . or a B of M money order in a brightly coloured envelope or folder . . . or, for the small fry, a B of M passbook — with a nice balance inside — enclosed in a gay Christmas passbook cover. These ideal gifts are no further away than your nearest B of M branch! Don't leave it until the last moment. Drop in to your nearest B of M today and make plans to delight the lads and lassies in your family through the Christmas services at "My Bank" — complete with holly and bells!

YOU'LL FEEL AND LOOK YOUR VERY BEST if, before each holiday party, you take time out for a CALGON BOUQUET bath. Such relaxing luxury—and inexpensive, too! Bath water scented and conditioned with Calgon Bouquet feels silky-soft, soap lathers luxuriously and rinses away easily so there's no 'sticky' feeling . . . and, finally, there's no bathtub 'ring' to scrub away. A happy thought indeed . . . and another one is this: For party-pretty hair, add Calgon Bouquet to both your shampoo-water and the first rinse—a teaspoonful in each. Result? Your hair will shine like a Christmas Star!

BE PREPARED TO SERVE SECONDS! . . . Here's a taste treat that will have them coming back for more . . . LIBBY'S SAUERKRAUT. High in appetite appeal and low in cost, Libby's is a favourite with everyone . . . You see, its mellow, uniform flavour is always just right, hot or cold. For a real treat, I suggest you serve it like this some evening soon:

SPARERIBS AND SAUERKRAUT

1 large piece ham or bacon rind or 8 1-lb. slices bacon
2 lbs. pork spareribs
1 28-oz. can (3½ cups) Libby's Sauerkraut, undrained
1 medium onion, sliced

Place rind, fat side down, in the bottom of a large saucepan or spread bacon in the pan. Spread half of the undrained sauerkraut in pan; top with spareribs, onion and remaining sauerkraut. Cover closely and simmer about 2½ hours. Wonderful one dish meal. Yield: 4 servings.

Our gin can't help losing its head when it comes to this old guillotine

This curious box of brass and glass makes our gin taste even better. By cutting off its "heads" and "tails."

These are the terms distillers use for the first and last flows of gin from the still.

The "heads" that run first tend to be a bit heavy; the "tails" at the end are too light. So we cut them both off in this box—and out of Sterling Gin.

Being miniatures by modern standards, these stills let us make it the old-world way. In small, unhurried batches.

If we switched to modern, mass-producing stills, we know we'd save time and money.

But our gin wouldn't taste the same.

Colored Women in South Africa Invited to Join 'The Black Sash'

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—The Black Sash, a white women's organization which has campaigned for eight years against South Africa's racial laws, is bidding for the active support of women of other races.

Since its formation, the Black Sash has been a purely white group, the majority of its members being middle-aged or elderly.

The name was adopted after the women began wearing a distinctive black ribbon as a sign of mourning for lost civil liberties.

Members decided at their annual national conference here recently to welcome colored women to their ranks.

The group, getting smaller as a result of increasingly tough government legislation and growing white support for the nationalistic government's policies, gained admiration, even from its opponents, by protest marches and silent vigils in all parts of the country.

FOR RACIAL HARMONY

The annual conference unanimously declared: "The Black Sash — recognizing that South Africa is a multi-racial country—believes that its aims can better be achieved by working with all those South African women who feel that the happy future of their children is dependent on racial harmony."

The organization was formed by a group of six white women here. Several thousand women responded to the founders' call and marched to the Parliament Building in Cape Town in 1955 to show their opposition to racial laws.

They have organized protest convoys of cars and petitions and have sent out thousands of pamphlets by air, train and road to all parts of the country.

Fingertip Towels

Terry-cloth is an ideal fabric for small guest towels. Linen towels, as we all know, require careful laundering, ironing, and storing, and seem to deter guests from using them. Terry-cloth towels are inexpensive to make, as eight may be cut from one yard of fabric. An applique may be sewn into towels' bottom right hand corner, using a zigzag stitch. If towels are being made as gifts, applique may take the form of hearts, shamrocks, holly leaves or an umbrella and rain streaks (bridal shower). Cotton velveteen may be used for this purpose as it is washable and has a festive look.

Lions are fiercely protective of their young. Recently the Powell River B.C. Lions got together and donated enough bunting to make up 30 sets of shorts and shirts for some of the world's destitute children. The fabric was sent to the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada. The voluntary USC needs 310,000 Friendship Dollars for world relief.

Contributions are being accepted now at the Victoria Daily Times for the Korean Kiddies Fund.

TODAY'S RECIPE

CHRISTMAS LAYER CAKE

Two cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon ground mace, 1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract, ½ cup shortening, 1½ cups sugar, 4 large unbeaten egg whites, ⅔ cup milk, pink marshmallow frosting, ½ cup angel flake coconut, red glace cherries, Angelica.

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Set aside. Blend mace and pure vanilla extract with shortening. Gradually add sugar, mixing well after each addition. Beat in egg whites, one at a time. Add flour mixture alternately with milk. Turn into 2 well-greased, lightly floured 8-inch, round layer cake pans. Bake in preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) 25 minutes or until toothpick inserted in centre comes out clean. Cool in pans 10 minutes. Turn onto wire racks to finish cooling. Frost with pink marshmallow frosting, sprinkling coconut over the frosting on the bottom layer only. Form a bouquet on the top with red glaze cherries. Soften angelica in hot water, cut into thin strips and use for cherry stems. Serves 12.

PINK MARSHMALLOW FROSTING

One large egg white, ¾ cup sugar, 3 tablespoons water, ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar, dash salt, 1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract, ½ cup diced marshmallows, red food coloring.

Combine egg white, sugar, water, cream of tartar and salt in the top part of a double boiler. Place over boiling water and beat with an electric or a rotary beater 6 minutes or until frosting thickens and holds its shape when dropped from the beater. Remove from boiling water, add marshmallows and red food coloring as desired. Continue beating until stiff enough to spread. Spread tops and sides of Christmas layer cake.

SUCCESSIVE STAGES show how U.S. Navy's new anti-submarine weapon works. Missile is launched horizontally from a submarine's torpedo tube; it breaks through water; rocket motor ignites and thrusts missile safe distance from launch ship; it builds up to supersonic speed; motor separates from nuclear depth bomb; guidance system takes over to direct missile to its target. (AP Wirephoto.)

'FLYING FISH'

New Missile Fights Anti-Sub Battle

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. navy officially disclosed Wednesday new details about a submarine weapon for blasting enemy submarines — at long range. It looks like a torpedo. But it works like a flying fish.

Called "Subroc," the missile is launched under water, then takes off above surface, speeds to the target area and plunges back into the deep to its target.

It carries a nuclear warhead. Its range was not disclosed, but was termed greater than any anti-submarine weapon, except aircraft.

The underwater-to-air-to-underwater missile was displayed at a joint press conference held by the navy and the prime contractor, Goodyear Aerospace Corp.

The 4,000-pound cylindrical missile is launched through a conventional torpedo tube. Then a solid-fuel rocket motor ignites.

At a predetermined range, the rocket motor separates from the bomb, which continues on its trajectory, steered by its guidance system to its target.

E. J. Thomas, Goodyear board chairman, said the new missile would enable navy subs to pinpoint "a nuclear payload on a submerged enemy submarine many miles away."

EVERY 4 YEARS

Union Seeking Vote Holidays

Victoria Labour Council is considering a call for a fixed election holiday for voters every four years.

A motion presented to council Wednesday night by the legislative committee was referred back to committee after some debate over wording.

Presented by delegate Jack Driscoll, it sought that a fixed Monday be set every four years for federal and provincial voting:

- That the Monday be declared a public holiday under the Factories Act;
- That high school and public school facilities be used as polling places.

REMOVE POLITICS

Mr. Driscoll said the present system of calling elections is calculated to be advantageous politically instead of when actually required.

He said too that many polling places leave much to be desired, and also that under the present system, the laws about time off from work to vote for employees "are often flagrantly flaunted."

Delegate George Johnson moved an amendment asking "a day off with pay" instead of public holiday, and VLC secretary Alf Toone suggested University students would not be allowed off under these conditions.

He said "public holiday without loss of pay would be better."

Mr. Johnson then referred the motion back to committee.

GAMES ABOLISHED

The first Olympic games were held from 776 BC to 394 AD when they were abolished by Roman emperor Theodosius.

PEACE MOVE OBSERVED IN STRIKE

Meatcutters' Union secretary George Johnson thanked Victoria Labour Council for support in the Alberta Meat Market strike Wednesday night.

He said an encouraging note—"not too encouraging though"—has been moves to seek conciliation through the department of labor.

However, he said, there can be no conciliation while AMM proprietor John Williams is unwilling to reinstate strikers and fired employees.

Local Unions Protesting Contract Award

Boilermakers' Union president Edgar Ellis asked support of Victoria Labor Council Wednesday in protesting the award of a heavy water plant contract to an eastern firm backed by U.S. money.

"They (the government) tell Canadians to invest their money in this country, and this is what happens when they try to do it," he said.

Delegate Percy Rayment said it is ridiculous to subsidize an American company in place of a Canadian company which has found its own money.

Council will write to the prime minister, Canadian Labor Congress, Trade Minister Sharpe and NDP leader T. C. Douglas.

China Claims Great Progress

TOKYO (AP) — Red China, with a blast at the Soviet Union, asserted Tuesday its economy is expanding despite crop failures and the loss of Russian credits and technical aid.

A communique marking the end of the second National People's Congress in Peking also declared China's prestige is rising abroad in spite of "the schemes of U.S. imperialism, reaction and modern revisionism." This last also was a reference to Moscow.

As broadcast from Peking, the communique conceded that floods, drought, other natural calamities and the withdrawal of Soviet aid were blows to national development.

Without mentioning the Soviet Union by name, China referred to the loss of Russian aid as "the perfidious action of those who unilaterally tore up agreements and withdrew experts."

MENTIONS DEBT

Then it mentioned the debt to the Soviet Union, piled up in the days before the two giants quarrelled over methods to bring the world under Communist domination.

"In 1963, our country has continued to pay the debts and the interest owed to the Soviet Union. We have now paid most of the debts incurred to the Soviet Union since 1950 and the interest due. The remaining small portion will be cleared by the end of 1965 in accordance with the agreements.

No figures were given on the debt.

FARM OUTPUT UP

Without giving figures, Peking said agricultural production was better in 1963 than in 1962 and that 1962 crops were larger than the year before. The 1960-61 period was one of severe drought.

An increase of about 20 per cent in industrial production in 1963 over the previous year was predicted.

Perhaps most surprising was a claim that China now "is in the main self-sufficient" in petroleum products. China's known oil fields are small but efforts have been made to develop petroleum products from coal and shale.

Peking said in 1962 the output of petroleum products had increased nearly 200 per cent over 1957. In 1957, China claimed production of only 10,900,000 barrels of crude oil.

Kennedy Children At Rest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy returned to a darkened hillside in Arlington National Cemetery last night to bury the bodies of her two dead children at their father's side.

In a brief and moving ceremony, lighted by the eternal flame at the head of Kennedy's grave, two white caskets were placed beside the slain president.

One contained the body of Patrick Bouvier Kennedy who died last Aug. 9 in the second day of his life. The other contained a sister who was stillborn Aug. 23, 1956.

Ship Rule Waived

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The maritime administration has granted a partial waiver of the "50 per cent American vessels" requirement for a shipment of U.S. wheat to Communist Hungary.

AIRPORT JET NOISE CUTS VALUE OF HOMES

COOKSVILLE, Ont. (UPI) — The Toronto township court of revision has cut the tax assessments of 12 Malton homeowners because of jet noise from Toronto International Airport.

In handing down its ruling, the court Wednesday granted a reduction of up to 13 per cent on buildings on properties which lie off the end of the airport's runway 32. However, it upheld the assessment on the land.

FRAUD APPEAL

Suspended Doctor 'Clouded Facts'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Orville E. Kirby, suspended from practice for six months for allegedly defrauding two medical plans, "clouded the facts" for nearly a year by failing to provide information on services performed by him, a lawyer claimed today.

R. D. Plommer, representing the council of the B.C. College of Physicans and Surgeons, told Supreme Court Justice J. G. Ruttan that Dr. Kirby took seven months to provide answers to questions from the college in regard to claims on Medical Services Association.

The council found Kirby had defrauded MSA and Medical Services Inc. by submitting claims for work not actually performed by him.

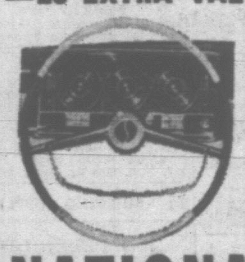

Earlier, Douglas McK. Brown, appearing for Kirby, said the charges against the doctor were a matter of interpretation of the rules of the associations. He said the services were performed in Kirby's absence by a highly trained registered nurse.

The case is continuing.

P.E.I. Premier Hurt

8 CARDS OF THANKS

Mrs. George McIldoon and family wish to express their sincere thanks and appreciation to all friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness, and for all expressions of sympathy received during their recent bereavement in the loss of a loved husband and father, the late Mr. George McIldoon. Special thanks to Dr. R. N. Young and the nurses in the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

I wish to express my heartfelt thanks to all my relatives and friends for their comfort in the loss of my dear husband Norman. Special thanks to RCN Air Branch, Minesweeping Squadron, RCAF Air-Sea Rescue, all officers and men of the RCN Pacific and Atlantic Command and to all others who aided in the search for their efforts to bring my husband home.—Sincerely, Iona Ogden and children.

9 IN MEMORIAM

SUTTON—In ever loving memory of our daughter, Marcia Louise, who left us so suddenly on December 5th, 1961.

No stain was on her little heart,
Sin had not entered there;
And innocence slept sweetly on
That pale white brow so fair.
She was too pure for this cold earth,
Too beautiful to stay,
And so God's holy angel bore
Our darling one away.
—Fondly remembered by mum, dad, brothers and sisters.

"FOREST"
CEDAR SIDING

A new cedar specialty
for Beauty
Long Life
Economy

• • •

What is
"FOREST"
Siding?

A new and attractive type of siding that comes from specially selected cedar logs sawn to bring out all the distinctive character of knots, burls and grain.

How Does
"FOREST"
compare with other siding?

It has more thickness, greater wood volume to add structural strength to any building. Its snug fitting makes good insulation and its low cost makes it ideal for modest budget home builders or remodellers.

How to finish
"FOREST"

"Forest" has a distinctive horizontal shadow line that will enhance the beauty of your home.

There are numerous highly satisfactory stains on the market. They come in a variety of colors, such as Redwood Cedar, Wheat tone, Flamingo, Maplewood and mahogany.

YOU can easily
apply "FOREST"
cedar siding

Many home owners have applied this modern, beautiful "Forest" siding themselves without the slightest difficulty.

ELECTROHOME
SPRINGAIRE
Air Circulator-Filter
Electrohome Springaire with the built-in Carbon Filter and the Permachem Filter gives you fresh, clean odor-free air all the year round . . . economically and efficiently. The Springaire is light enough to carry and provides fresh air where it's needed; whether it's in the kitchen, bathroom, smoke-filled living room during parties or just to filter out dust, lint and pollen before it can smudge up your home or aggravate allergies. The chores of dusting and wall washing can be reduced. Springaire filters out even the finest dust that settles on furniture, soils draperies, covers mirrors, windows and crystal.

VICTORIA'S ORIGINAL TRAILER DEALERS — RUTH AND BILL — went from the first to the biggest —and now are the smallest. Since 1951 and still going strong. The few trailers we stock are all priced low, priced right, and we finance our own sales to save you money.
HOW ABOUT THIS!
If you are a steady fellow we'll sell you a brand spanking new 50x10, 2-bedrm mobile home—really well built — we'll show you the Alaska-type insulation — $7,350 value for only $6,350. We'll give you one year free rent in our park, set it up in our park and finance it for 6 years for at least $500 under finance company charges. We'll even you move in with only $500 down and will consider furniture, older trailer, vacant land, or a house up to $8,000 as trade. We don't feel we can give you anything else but a kitten from the next litter. Come out anytime — we're always open.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

There's only one personality in the world who can do thorough justice to such songs as "Mimi," "Louise," and "Thank Heaven for Little Girls."

That personality is the one and only Maurice Chevalier who has been in the business for more years than one can remember.

Stephen

It was Chevalier who headlined "The Bell Telephone Hour" Tuesday and added just a little more to an already excellent program.

He sang the songs for which he is famous and then took us on an imaginary tour of Paris. A left bank cellar, a flower market and a sidewalk cafe were just brief stops which left us wanting more.

But it wasn't only his contributions which made the program so enjoyable. Let's credit also the Duke of Dixieland with some good New Orleans jazz, singer Jacqueline Francois, pianist Philippe Entremont and Janet Pavek and Theodor Uppman with selections from "The Merry Widow."

It was a well-rounded program which offered something for any musical taste.

★ ★ ★

BITS 'n PIECES: An hour-long special, entitled Meet Sammy Davis Junior, will pre-empt Ben Casey next Tuesday. The show, produced for the BBC earlier in the year, will feature no guest artists, no elaborate sets and no fussy production.

Davis will sing, dance, mimic, do impersonations and in one novelty act will perform his famous western draw (six-gun twirling).

CBS-TV has signed comedian Alan King for a new 30-minute comedy program planned for the 1964-65 season. Nat Hiken, best known for the successful Phil Silvers (Sgt. Bilko) and "Car 54, Where Are You?" shows, will write, produce and direct the show . . .

The "Danny Kaye Show" has been bought by the BBC for viewing on its second television network. The UHF network has purchased 26 segments of the show to begin next April 20 . . .

When asked to appear recently on a "Hootenanny" show from Southern Methodist University, Theodore Bikel was asked by the university what kind of songs he'd sing.

"Drinking songs," he replied.

After a pause, he was asked, "Can you do other songs?"

"Yes," he said, "I do songs about love."

"Do the drinking songs," he was told.

Transmitter Tower Investigated

City parks committee Tuesday decided to visit the lower summit of Mount Douglas to see if a tall radio tower and building would be objectionable.

Radio stations CKDA, CJVI and CFAX asked the committee for permission to erect a transmission mast that would serve all three stations.

Mayor R. B. Wilson, pointing out that the city should ensure the least disfiguration possible of the hilltop park, suggested that B.C. Telephones which has a mast there at present could become a fourth partner in the joint venture.

He also suggested that the transmission building, about 16 by 24, be so constructed as to be inconspicuous and provide a rooftop lookout point to supplement the Rotary Club lookout on a twin peak.

The city's legal position also is to be studied to ensure it has power to give a lease.

Committee recommended that city council ask Greater Victoria school board to change its policy of refusing to provide off-street parking for teachers in downtown schools.

"They are closing their eyes to the fact that they are creating a parking problem and then passing the buck to someone else to solve," observed city manager Dennis Young.

A $610 tender for painting and refurbishing the antique elevator in the Bastion Square temporary City Hall was approved.

Pioneer League Back In Business

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The Pioneer League, which folded after the 1963 season, was reactivated Wednesday at the winter baseball convention.

It will be a four-club rookie league and will play a 66-game schedule, opening June 21.

League members and their major league affiliations: Idaho Falls, Los Angeles Angels; Twin Falls, Idaho, San Francisco Giants; Pocatello, Idaho, Los Angeles Dodgers; Caldwell, Idaho, Chicago Cubs.

Higher Price Due For Heavy Water?

OTTAWA (CP)—Social Credit Leader Thompson said Wednesday the promoter of a government - assisted heavy water plant boasts his policy is to negotiate a higher sales price than the federal government than the price quoted in his company's winning bid to build the plant.

Mr. Thompson's statement in an interview followed a lengthy exchange in the Commons between him and industry minister Drury about prices and subsidies for the heavy water plant, to be built in Cape Breton.

Mr. Drury informed Mr. Thompson that the bid of Deuterium of Canada Limited of $20.50 a pound for heavy water was the lowest "unconditional" proposal among those considered for the $30,000,000 project.

He said the federal government also will be paying about 91 cents a ton subsidy for coal to be used in producing steam necessary for the production of heavy water.

Mr. Thompson said in an interview one of four bidders for the plant offered a lower price—$19 a pound decreasing to $18 in five years—and the coal subsidy will mean a price to Deuterium of $21.50 a pound.

He said the head of Deuterium of Canada, Jerome Spevack, "has boasted that his policy is to contract a cheap price and then negotiate a higher price later with the government."

"The reason for his (Mr. Spevack's) severance with United States Atomic Energy Commission at the Savannah River heavy water plant might be interesting."

Mr. Thompson said three "legitimate Canadian companies" have been left out in the cold.

"Any one of these offered to build in Nova Scotia if it could be proved more economical. Again the taxpayer has been sold down the river."

NES Office Announces 4 Promotions

J. D. Garrard, previously supervisor of the executive and professional division and has now taken over the job of supervisor of male placements division. H. Carstens has been promoted to supervisor of the executive and professional division, which includes supervision of the University of Victoria National Employment Service Office.

R. Sutcliffe has been upgraded to employment officer, Grade 3. He has been the supervisor of the special services division for the past eight months. The upgrading was necessitated by the expansion of the special service division. He will have two additional officers added to his division in the near future.

Ranjit Azad was promoted to supervisor of the male clerical, sales and skilled unit, a position which was held for many years by the late R. Davison.

A TROUBLED LIFE RECALLED

'I Must Face This Alone' Says Mother of Oswald

By BERNARD GAVZER

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Perhaps in the year 2063, a school boy will open a history book and read of the black Friday 100 years before on which President John Fitzgerald Kennedy was assassinated.

His study will bring him to Lee Harvey Oswald, 24, a malcontent charged with the assassination but murdered before being brought to trial.

And he may come across the name of Mrs. Marguerite Claverie Oswald, 56, Oswald's mother.

She already is convinced the Oswald name has been recorded for all time, in the sense of Caesar and Brutus, Lincoln and John Wilkes Booth.

"Any guilt I have for making him what he was, I will accept," she says. "But this is not for the assassination. I do not care what the FBI says, or what any special commission or court may say. He did not have a trial. . . . I heard him say on television. 'I did not kill anyone.' I know he never did it. I know my son."

Little is known of the 22 years following, and she evades discussing her childhood and young womanhood. But in 1929, she became the wife of a man named Pic.

"I was with Mr. Pic 2½ years," she says. "I became with child, but he didn't want children. I was three months' pregnant when I left him. Mr. Pic voluntarily supported me and then the baby, John E. Pic, until the child was 18."

(John E. Pic is an air force sergeant of 14 years' service, now stationed at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex., where he is a laboratory technician. In statements after the president's assassination Nov. 22, it was brought out that Sgt. Pic had seen his half-brother only once in 11 years.)

John Pic was born in January, 1932, and about 18 months later his mother married Robert Edward Lee Oswald, a salesman for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

"He was named after General Robert E. Lee," she explains. "It was the same name we gave our first child, Robert Edward Lee Oswald, Jr." He was born in April, 1934.

(Robert Edward Lee Oswald Jr. works for the Acme Brick Company, in Denton, Tex., where he lives with his family. He was at the side of his mother when Lee Oswald first was brought into the case. But now he has nothing to say, expressing neither remorse nor rancor for his slain brother.)

SECOND HUSBAND DIES

"I became with child in early 1939," Mrs. Oswald says. "I was in my seventh month when Mr. Oswald died of coronary thrombosis."

The infant born Oct. 18, 1939, in New Orleans was named Lee Harvey Oswald.

"I was left penniless, with three boys," she says. (However, there was $3,500 in insurance). "Mr. Oswald had started paying in social security which was just beginning, but I got only a few hundred dollars which he paid in."

With the insurance money and some cash from the sale of her home, she was able to hold out, staying home to care for her kids. But then times turned hard for her, and when the war started she went to work. John Pic and Robert Oswald were placed in a Lutheran home for children where she now says they received "a wonderful religious education."

Lee, the baby, stayed with her and was cared for by her sister and whoever else she could get to babysit. When Lee reached the age of three, he, too, went into the home, remaining there until he was five.

"That was when I married Mr. Edward K. Eckdahl, who made $10,000 a year and had an expense account. We lived in Fort Worth. Lee was with me. After a few months I planned to file suit for divorce but delayed it because I did not want to take Lee out of school. While I was waiting, Mr. Eckdahl got a divorce from me."

MOVES TO NEW YORK

She later moved to New York to be near Robert, who had married and was in the armed services.

"Lee was such a fine, high-class boy," she says. "He didn't waste time with comic books and trashy things. On Sundays, I'd take him to church and then we'd have lunch somewhere and go to the zoo. . . ."

This idyllic picture jars with official documents such as Docket No. 2379, Bronx domestic relations court, which said 13-year-old Lee had schizophrenic tendencies and was potentially dangerous. And John Carro, Lee's probation officer from April, 1953, to January, 1954, recalls Mrs. Oswald refused to consider her son anything more than a truant, balked at aid from welfare agencies, ignored a court order that Lee receive psychiatric treatment.

What does she say to this now?

She doesn't have a direct comment. The answer is contained in her conviction that as a mother she, and only she could know her son.

In her three - room, $30-a-month bungalow at 2220 Thomas Place, Mrs. Oswald makes it clear that she has strength to see through to the end of every calamity. She says:

"I have to face this alone. But I will do it. I have always faced life. I have been exploited since childhood. But there has been no turning away. I have faith. I do not question the will of God."

LIKES HER ROLE?

And yet there is something about her demeanor that suggests she has been cast in a role that despite its tragic overtones and its tragic cost has had an importance for her.

She watched herself on a TV newscast with quiet absorption, the intensity of her interest paralleling that of a starlet seeing a screening that might lead to a big contract.

"That has been about the first show that I've been able to see," she said. "Yesterday, I had 18 interviews and dozens of telephone calls and all sorts of visitors. I'm just exhausted. I haven't even had time to read the papers.

"I haven't read all the letters so far. With those that come today there are 239, and the secret service which has read them will tell you not one is critical. All told, I've had $117 in donations, mostly mothers giving me 'sugar bowl money,' but also a $50 cheque from a doctor and $25 from someone else."

But it became crystal clear shortly after noon that Mrs. Oswald would know the short personal history of quick fame.

The newspaper men had all gone. And now the three secret service men who had been guarding her pulled out, without warning.

Her fate may have been capsuled in her cry:

"I'm the mother of the accused assassin and people don't care about me."

John D. — Renegade in Power

This is the third of a series of 12 excerpts taken from the much longer version contained in RENEGADE IN POWER: THE DIEFENBAKER YEARS, copyright Canada, 1963, Peter C. Newman; published by McClelland & Stewart.

By PETER C. NEWMAN

Instalment 3

On Saturday, Feb. 1, 1958, Diefenbaker took a Department of Transport Viscount to Quebec City, where Governor-General Vincent Massey was temporarily in residence to open the city's winter carnival.

To put the Opposition off guard, the aircraft's flight plan showed Winnipeg as its destination. But at 12:10 p.m. it touched down at Quebec City, and Diefenbaker was immediately driven to the Citadel for a 33-minute conference with the Governor-General. By 3:50 he was back in Ottawa, and at 5:59 he walked into the Commons.

Since the governor-general had five hours previously affixed the Great Seal of Canada to the proclamation of dissolution, Parliament no longer had any constitutional life when Diefenbaker made his election announcement. But the niceties of the situation had become irrelevant.

As Jimmy Sinclair, the Liberal frontbencher from Vancouver, shouted: "All by myself with my little hatchet, I chopped down the cherry tree!" Canada's 23rd Parliament ceased to exist, in fact as well as in law.

That night Diefenbaker addressed a foot-stomping audience at the closing banquet of the National Young Progressive Conservative Association convention at Ottawa's Chateau Laurier Hotel. "The campaign starts tonight!" he shouted, and the young Tories cheered like first-nighters at La Scala.

The official campaign did not actually begin until 10 days later, when Diefenbaker left Ottawa by train for his first major speaking engagement in Winnipeg. As the cars jolted out of Union Station, he assured reporters that now he was prime minister, his campaign would be different. There would be no undignified whistle-stop electioneering, just one speech a day discussing national issues.

Diefenbaker's resolve didn't last more than a few hours. At Capreol, north of Sudbury, when he spied a huddle of voters outside his car on the station platform, the prime minister threw on his coat, and bounded out into the 24-below-zero night to shake their hands.

Much later that night, as the train stopped briefly at Nakina, in the Thunder Bay wilderness of northern Ontario, Mrs. Diefenbaker spotted a band of 22 shivering children and a dog, out to catch a glimpse of the prime minister.

Dressing Gown Appearance

She went out to explain that he had long since gone to bed but, just as the train was pulling out, Diefenbaker appeared waving, in a dressing gown, on the rear platform. He could hear an answering cheer, as the brave little delegation was left behind in the chill darkness.

Diefenbaker spent much of the journey polishing the draft of his Winnipeg speech. By 8 o'clock on the evening of Feb. 12, the Winnipeg Auditorium was jammed with 5,000 supporters; 800 others filled the adjacent Concert Hall; hundreds more had to be turned away. The evening provided a good preview of the campaign to come: Diefenbaker's 54-minute speech was interrupted 46 times by laughter and applause.

After vaguely outlining his intentions to improve the communications, transportation and hydro facilities of the Canadian North, Diefenbaker abandoned his text and burst out with the rallying cry that he would carry across the nation: "This is the Vision," he proclaimed. "Canadians, realize your opportunities! This is the message I give you, my fellow Canadians. Not one of defeatism. Jobs! Jobs for hundreds of thousands of Canadians.. A new Vision! A new hope! A new soul for Canada!"

During the next 46 days, Diefenbaker journeyed 17,000 miles, delivering 85 variations of his Winnipeg opening speech. His audiences quivered. They cheered almost every time he paused for breath. "The memory of that sweeping tide lingers with all of us who faced it," Douglas Fisher, the CCF/NDP member from Port Arthur recalled later. "It was irrational in its surge."

There was little doubt that the Vision had struck a response in the national subconsciousness. Having inadvertently elected John Diefenbaker as their prime minister eight months before, most of the voters now seemed determined to commit themselves to him.

Trouble-Free Future?

It was as if the people had come to identify John Diefenbaker with their own individual desires for a trouble-free future. At times, the election seemed somehow to move beyond politics. Diefenbaker transformed it into a secular passion play, with himself as its quasi-divine hero.

John Diefenbaker's charisma established an empathy with his audiences. His listeners came away lost in a cause they did not fully comprehend. When he stood bareheaded in the rain, addressing a small crowd at Penticton, B.C., some of his listeners were seen closing their umbrellas.

In Fredericton, N.B., a crush of swooning women held up their children to touch the hem of his coat. At Grand Falls, Nfld., he brought an audience of rough loggers to their feet with the appeal: "We'll build a nation of 50,000,000 people within the lifetime of many of you here. I'm asking you to catch a Vision of the greatness and the potential of this nation."

On Election Day—March 31—Lester Pearson, a wilted carnation in his buttonhole, went to the Chateau Laurier Hotel to eat oyster stew and watch the results on television. "The oysters were wonderful," he told a friend later. "The television show was about the worst I ever saw." By the end of the evening, he announced that his immediate plans went no further than a brief vacation in Florida, looking for sea shells.

Diefenbaker spent most of election day relaxing in a room at Prince Albert's Avenue Hotel. He was, once again, trying to read the Abraham Lincoln biography, but still couldn't summon much interest in it.

By 3:15 Prince Albert time, the Martime results began stuttering across the teletype machine at Diefenbaker's committee rooms. In Nova Scotia the Tories were leading in all seats. Senator Bill Brunt, a close associate of Diefenbaker's, leaning over the shoulders of Allister Grosart, who was sitting behind the teletype, whispered: "It's on. We're going to roll."

brief television message, Diefenbaker was driven to the

Conservative Win Seen

By 6:50 Prince Albert time, Liberal Quebec had crumbled. Twelve minutes later, with polls still open in the West, the Canadian Press flashed that a Conservative victory was indicated. "The results must be gratifying to you," Grosart remarked when he phoned the news to Diefenbaker. "Gratifying?" the prime minister replied. "They're stupefying."

After returning from Saskatoon, where he delivered a Prince Albert armouries. A thousand people had gathered to celebrate his victory. "For an average Canadian," he said gently, "being chosen as leader of a nation gives one a feeling impossible to describe. You feel a sense of loneliness." The victory, he said, was not one of person or of party. It was a victory for the democratic process.

The final tabulations showed that Diefenbaker had achieved an unprecedented political victory. No Canadian Parliament had ever been so one-sided. With the exception of Newfoundland, where he came within 1 per cent, Diefenbaker had been accorded the majority vote in every province.

The Conservative Party not only won 208 of the 265 Commons seats, but it wiped out Liberal representation in six of the 10 provinces. The Liberals, with just 36 per cent of the vote, were reduced to 48 MPs, their smallest contingent since Confederation. Three more Liberal cabinet ministers—Jimmy Sinclair, James Gardiner and George Marler—were defeated.

The Social Credit Party, which had held 19 seats in the 1957 House, was completely wiped out. The CCF membership in the Commons was reduced from 28 to five. The leaders of both minor parties, M. J. Coldwell and Solon Low, went down to defeat.

Probably the most astonishing result was the Tory sweep of Quebec, which elected twice as many Conservatives as Liberals—something that hadn't happened since the days of Sir John A. Macdonald. Diefenbaker skyrocketed the popularity of his party in French Canada to 62 per cent of the vote—just one percentage point behind the Tory vote in "true-blue" Ontario. The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion showed Conservative popularity at 60 per cent—a higher standing than any party had achieved since its surveys began.

When he flew back to Ottawa from Prince Albert the day after the election, John Diefenbaker was not only the most successful federal politician in Canadian history, but he had more support in his own country than the leader of any other democratic government in the world.

The man from Prince Albert had promised that if the people gave him a mandate, he would ensure their well-being. The voters certainly had honored their end of the unwritten compact. Now they confidently expected the prime minister to keep his.

Dief Pitch To Senior Students

WALLACEBURG, Ont. (CP) Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker, bearing in mind that the government plans to reduce the voting age, spoke to 1,500 high school students in Wallaceburg and Dresden Wednesday during a two-day, two-county tour.

Mr. Diefenbaker visited the Wallaceburg District High School and the Lambton Kent District High School, referring to membes of the student bodies as "my fellow students."

But the Conservative leader didn't pursue a hard political line with the teen-agers—many of whom will be able to vote in the next federal election if the government lowers the voting age to 18 from 11.

He made a fiery speech to a public meeting of about 500 persons here, accusing the Liberal government of having done more harm to Confederation in the last eight months than was ever done in a similar period in Canadian history.

Without elaborating, Mr. Diefenbaker also said that after the next parliamentary session Canadians could expect to pay "considerably more income tax."

Mr. Diefenbaker began his tour of Lambton and Kent counties early Wednesday in London. Conservatives hold the counties' federal ridings of Lambton Kent and Kent.

Australia Favored

LONDON (Reuters) — More migrating Britons went to Australia last year than to any other country, the overseas migration board disclosed Wednesday. A total of 35,451 went to Australia. The second-largest total, 21,000 went to the United States in 1962. There was a slight increase of migrants going to Canada—10,725 in 1962 from 9,329 in 1961.

Election Lost Job Goes Too

Referring to defeated Cabinet Minister Earle Westwood, he said such people have lost the confidence of the people and should be replaced immediately by an elected representative.

Council voted to call for legislation to deal with the question.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—This is a Broadway Sermonette about how unexpectedly moral some of our actors turn out to be in these immoral days.

You see young Darryl Hickman clowning and singing in the Bobby Morse role in "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying"—he's as sharp, conniving and corrupt a phony as you could meet in a month on Madison Avenue.

Outwardly . . . But it's possible that while playing that part, his mind is wandering to a hero priest down in Bogota, the Rev. Father Rafael Garcia Herreros, whose life he has written for the movies.

"I think 'The Padre' is the most magnificent man I'll ever meet—he has brought about in Colombia what they call 'a revolution in love,'" explains Hickman.

"His revolutionary philisophy is that if we have a lot, and somebody else has nothing, we have a duty to share ours.

"'The Padre' doesn't ask for help from the rich—he demands it. He says the haves have a duty to the have-nots. And he's got everybody on his side down there, including the rich—excepting only the Communists who have twice tried to kill him."

You don't expect this talk from a very funny song-and-dance comedian, 32 years old, who beat out his brother Duane Hickman, Tommy Sands, Tommy Noonan and Gary Grosby for this replacement role—but then he's also a writer.

"It started when I was given some material about this priest and assigned to write a TV show about him.

"It was just all right, the show I did. Afterward, my writing partner, Gordon Hunt, who is Jewish, whereas I'm Catholic, said the only way to get the real story of the priest was to go down there.

"We got on a plane and . . . well, we've been writing the screen play for two years and it's really good.

"He's an apostle to the poor. He's a Ph.D. who speaks 8 languages, he builds factories and schools, and at 50, attracts people who stay with him working for him for months and years."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . . Foreign correspondents who flew to Dallas are trying to link a crime syndicate to one of the killings, suggesting that the secret underworld bosses would give a "reward" or "promotion." Weakness of their theory: why would a crime syndicate want Oswald or President Kennedy slain? . . . Readers wrote and phoned me that Peter Lawford was right to return to work two nights after the funeral . . . Shelley Berman gave a present to 30 collegians at Basin St. East. Picked up all their checks. With tips, over $600 . . . Quietly married: Iva Patcevitch, the suave publisher and bon vivant, and "Chessy" Amory, at Southampton . . . The Notre Dame band went to Birdland to hear Maynard Ferguson . . . Swingin' spot these mornings: the Plaza Palm Court . . . Kaye Ballard opened big at the Plaza Persian Room. Between shows, Kay Medford came in to play her "Password" . . . At the Village Gate: Tuesday Weld with NBC's Bruce Cooper . . . Director Joe Layton's hospitalized: hepatitis?

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Bob Goldstein, having sturgeon at the Stage Delicatessen, said, "You can't get this in England." Proprietor Max Asnas answered: "There may not always be an England but there'll always be a delicatessen."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "Status symbol — when you change your silent butler for a noisy maid"—Art Moger, the Boston bard.

EARL'S PEARLS: Cocktail Chatter reported by John Bradgord: "Be careful, honey, or you'll spill that dress all over your drink."

REMEMBERED QUOTES: "She was the kind of girl who whines a boy around her little finger"—The late Ima Washout.

A Congressman got a letter from a constituent, according to Grit, saying, "Please don't improve my lot in life any more. I can't afford it" . . . That's earl, brother.

U.S. Author Mobbed

BUDAPEST (AP) — More than 1,000 Hungarians, each holding a copy of a John Steinbeck novel, lined up outside a Budapest bookshop Tuesday to get the American author's autograph. Steinbeck's novels, particularly The Grapes of Wrath and others with sociological themes, have been best sellers in Communist countries.

TEEN-AGE CANADA

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Parlez-Vous Across Canada?

Thirteen-year-old Paula lives on a farm in the northern part of British Columbia. A cousin, George, lives in Ontario almost within sight of the Quebec border.

Which has the better chance of speaking both French and English after the next five years? What do you think?

I mentioned last week that many Canadian adults seem to believe today that teen-agers will some day solve the problems of English and French Canada which have eluded them.

And what is the first weapon which many of them mention? Language, of course. Get more students into French classes. Somehow understanding will follow if we can talk togther.

A fine philosophy, but what is the senior generation doing to put it into effect?

Let's look at what's offered across the country? Regina or Saskatoon? Neither prairie city has extended French into public school classes although the language is taught in out-of-school classes for this age level.

Different Situation

New Brunswick? Here's a different situation. Since French is the first language for between 40 and 50 per cent of the population, French is compulsory after Grade 5. and 11 out of 18 elementary schools in Saint John offer French in Grade 3.

You've probably heard that the main barrier to offering more French is a lack of qualified, bilingual teachers. Well, how are our training programs?

The truth is that only New Brunswick, Quebec and British Columbia have training courses designed for teachers to handle French in Grades 1 to 6.

These statistics—which you are probably seeing for the first time—are only part of the picture. Many in Ontario, for example, pay lip service to developing Canada's two national languages, but only importing teachers from Quebec or the Maritimes would solve the situation.

In Cities

The other big factor determining whether or not you will be offered French early in school is whether or not you live in a larger city.

The smaller the place, the smaller your chances of receiving it. (Some provinces, of course, are ahead of others).

Manitoba is a province far removed from the borders of French Canada. Yet its provincial Department of Education has decreed that youngsters shall start learning French soon after starting elementary school.

The picture gets more encouraging as each year goes by. But let's be realistic. Many thousands of young Canadians who spend years memorizing French vocabulary later watch it blow away like prairie dust if it isn't used.

I was very close to being bilingual as far as reading or writing were concerned at the end of high school. Today I grieve to say that most of that vocabulary has vanished. I've had few occasions to use it.

I'm not against studying French. At least once a year I make a manly attempt at recovering something of what I lost; the world is getting too small to expect that one language will serve you in all occasions.

All I'm saying is that adults who comfort themselves by saying they contribute to national unity by pushing more young people into French classes are in reality nailing jelly against a wall.

Will everyone in Canada someday speak our two official languages? What do you think? I think the answer is a loud and discouraging NO. And I don't think our royal commission on biculturalism and bilingualism can reach any other conclusion.

Learn French by all means.

It has benefits that will multiply all your life. But I get hot under the collar when adults who haven't solved the problems of their generation suggest they can be solved by forcing the next generation into two language classes.

Situation Varies

Whether or not you will eventually speak French depends a great deal upon what chance you'll have to use it, and this varies a great deal across Canada.

Until more adults realize this, I'm afraid they'll go on trying to use French language classes for more students as a weapon in the misunderstanding between English and French Canada—and you're in the firing line.

Against Frankie

A reader from Calgary, Alta., who signs herself "A Music Fan," writes to take up the cudgel against Frank Sinatra Jr., a young man who seems to be following in his father's footsteps.

"I wish you'd write a column sometime about Frank Sinatra's son," she writes. "How can anyone keep his self-respect when he's doing nothing more than copying someone else—even if it is his own father.

"I heard him sing 'Night and Day' and every note was phrased exactly the same way. What's he trying to be, a carbon copy? I think we want someone who represents our generation, not the last one."

Smoking

Several have written to insist that many teen-agers are strong-minded enough to resist smoking, even if they are considered "out" by their gang.

G. T. of Lambeth, Ont., writes: "I was shocked to read in your column that the number of teen-agers addicted to smoking is increasing every day. But it made me happier that I'm not one of their number.

"When I was 13 years old, a girl friend and I each tried puffing a cigarette one evening. I was very sick, and, what's worse, very ashamed. Why had I tried it? Partly curiosity but I also thought it would make me look sophisticated.

"I made a vow right then that I wouldn't delude myself again. I'm 16 years old now, so I've lasted three years. And with luck I don't think I'll ever start."

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of World Book Encyclopedia to Suzanne Jenkins, age 13, of Portland, Ore., for her question:

Is there an opossum that can fly?

Our timid opossum feels safest above the ground where he clings to the branches with his paws and curly tail. He may envy the flying squirrel who glides from tree to tree with the greatest of ease. Little does he know that he has distant relatives who also can glide through the air.

The Algonquin Indians named the opossum, and the settlers of Australia borrowed the name to give to several of their native animals. The opossums who live on the other side of the globe are first cousins to the flying phalangers, and these furry acrobats glide through the air like our native flying squirrels. In fact, they are often called flying squirrels, which is a mistake. All the opossums and phalangers are in the order Marsupialia, and, of course, every marsupial spends his infancy in mama's comfortable pouch.

The marsupials are divided into two suborders on the basis of their teeth. Our toothy opossum, who dines on meat and even carrion, is in the suborder Polyprotodonta, meaning many-front-teeth. His remote cousins are classified in Diprotodonta, and the animals in this suborder are limited to about two lower and six upper incisors. They dine mostly on plant food. The flying phalangers, then, are marsupial half-cousins of our opossum.

Sheltered In Pouch

The biggest of the phalangers is a 16-inch flying carpet, plus a 20-inch tail. The smallest is the pigmy glider, who is three inches long, plus three inches of furry tail. The average phalanger measures seven inches, plus eight inches of foxy tail. On each side he has a strip of fur-covered skin which is attached to wrist and ankle. When he launches himself from a tree-top, he spreads out flat like a furry flying carpet and swoops through the air.

He twists and banks his little body and moves his tail to guide his direction. He brakes his speed by bending his supple back, and he lands right side up at the base of a tree perhaps 100 yards from where he started. He is a brownish-grey animal, and his fluffy fur is as soft as feathery down. For this reason, he makes no noise as he plunges through the air on his nightly acrobatics.

The flying phalanger resembles the flying squirrel, though the two furry gliders are not related. The phalanger, being a marsupial, is a pouched animal. The babies, usually a pair of twins, are born in July. The bitsy creatures are naked and helpless. They are nursed and sheltered in their mother's fur-lined pouch, and after two months the little charmers are clothed and ready to come out and see the world.

★ ★ ★

Why were the Van Allen Belts so named?

These radiation belts above the earth were discovered by American satellites launched during the IGY. The project was under the direction of James A. Van Allen, who announced the amazing news in May, 1958. When asked whether the discovery was a belt of radiation, he said that it was. Since that time, the lofty circles of charged particles have been called the Van Allen Belts.

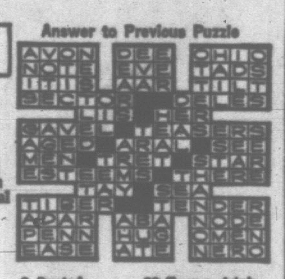

Van Allen was a space-minded scientist in his student days. He was interested in cosmic rays, rockets, auroras and outer space. In 1948 he suggested the idea of man-made satellites to orbit the earth. In April, 1950, Van Allen and fellow scientists had the marvellous idea which later became the International Geophysical Year.

DUNCAN — Burglars who broke in and entered the Anchor Marina at Cowichan Bay through the front door made away with between $15 and $20 and a number of cigarettes. RCMP are investigating.

ALBERNI—Funeral service for a well-known Alberni resident, Archibald George Abernethy will be held Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in St. Andrew's United Church.

Burial will follow in Alberni Valley Memorial Gardens.

Mr. Abernethy was born on the Shetland Islands 53 years ago and has lived here for the past 28 years.

Tuesday he died suddenly at his home, 540 Swanson.

He is survived by his wife, Evelyn, a son, Donald, both at home and a daughter, Mrs. Charles Shave, in Newfoundland.

★ ★ ★

NORTH COWICHAN — A proposed alternate road route to the Maple Bay peninsula, prepared by B.C. land surveyor B. White, was presented to the council yesterday.

The route, which would be considerably shorter than a previously suggested road, would include a bridged link branching off Genoa Bay Road and cutting across a small island in the Bird's Eye Cove area. The road would be 1,000 feet long including the 160-foot bridge.

Council will not make any decision until after the plan is studied.

PORT ALBERNI—Voters and candidates in Port Alberni went to the polls today puzzled over the printed cards which had been sent out recommending seven candidates chosen "by an independent survey by an impartial citizens' committee."

The cards were delivered Tuesday and all candidates denied any knowledge of their origin.

New School Building Plan Gets Approval

Elementary school principals have given preliminary approval to Greater Victoria school board's building referendum number six.

District superintendent John Gough said Wednesday he had discussed the proposed program with officials and principals, finding reaction generally good.

He told trustees he is still unprepared to recommend an exact number of classrooms, but it will be "well into January" before the cost is estimated.

Ratepayers will be asked to approve the building program in the spring.

About 170 rooms are needed in the next three years. These would include 115 elementary school rooms, 54 secondary rooms.

The referendum also proposes new schools for Christie Point, Craigflower, North Ridge, Ferndale, Rock Heights, Newton and University Village areas, and a new school for retarded children.

NEW SITES REQUIRED

About 10 parcels of land are needed for expansion of five of the elementary schools involved, and entirely new sites are needed for Cedar Hill and University areas.

New secondary school sites are required in Cadboro Bay and Gordon Head areas.

Some schools, such as South Park, Beacon Hill and North Ward, need expanding but have no room or are unsound. These may be replaced by new schools.

34 Cars Stolen, 8 Youths Charged

NANAIMO (CP) — RCMP Wednesday charged eight juveniles — ranging in age from 14 to 16 years—with theft of 34 cars from used-car lots during the last three months. The youths will appear in juvenile court later.

Police said the juveniles visited used car lots, took out cars for trial runs, then kept the keys when they returned the vehicles.

Investigators said the youths would return later and take the cars for joy rides, often without the used-car lot operators being aware they had been missing. They said some of the vehicles were heavily damaged by the joy-riding youths.

Police said two youths were found to have key rings with as many as 25 car keys.

BOYS LEARN TREE FARM METHODS AS THEY EARN

Elk River Timber Co. put the group in the forestry and Christmas tree business with a donation of 10 acres of well-treed land just east of the municipal airport.

It is the second such acreage to be turned over to the Boy Scout movement. Last year, Crown Zellerbach gave Campbell River Scouts and Cubs a 10-acre plot in the same area.

"We are very pleased to be able to turn this land over to such a worthwhile group for their benefit," said Dan McKenzie, superintendent of Elk River Timber Co. Ltd.

Cubs and Scouts will be able to harvest a good supply of Christmas trees this year and for many years to come.

They will have to look after the land, cut trees with care and plant new seedlings, Mr. McKenzie said. The company will inspect the property once a year to see that it is being cared for properly.

TWO SHIFTS BEAT BOILER DEADLINE

CAMPBELL RIVER — Crown Zellerbach Elk Falls pulp, paper and sawmill complex near here has completed a new giant recovery boiler installation two months ahead of schedule.

The boiler, one of the largest in the pulp and paper industry, was ready for operation the week of Nov. 18 after a 45-day crash program.

Work on the unit was stepped up following the Oct. 6 explosion of a large recovery boiler system at the mill. One man was severely burned and five others suffered lesser injuries in the accident.

12 STOREYS HIGH

The new recovery boiler is as high as a 12-storey building.

The unit's function is to recover chemicals used in the sulphate or Kraft pulp process for re-use.

When the explosion damaged the older recovery boiler, the company was faced with two alternatives; reconstruct the blast-hit boiler which would take several months, or advance the start-up date of the new, larger recovery boiler which was 40 per cent complete.

A total of 300 men were put on the job. They worked two shifts a day.

Meanwhile crews are engaged in the reconstruction of the blast-hit boiler unit. It is expected to be finished in the late spring.

Company officials said there were no layoffs as the result of the explosion of the boiler.

Four of the six men who were injured in the explosion are also back at work, they said.

The remaining two are expected to be back on the job shortly.

Health Care Units Spread At Nanaimo

NANAIMO — The new $59,000 psychiatric addition on the Nanaimo Health Centre is now completed and council have just given consent for a 50-bed rest home to be built on Boundary Avenue.

The psychiatric unit is complete but it must remain closed for lack of a psychiatrist.

Applicants for the erection of a rest home are W. C. and K. Eccles who already operate three rest homes in Nanaimo.

Council approved of the home but pointed out that in the Rawson report it was suggested that homes for old people should be closer to the city so that pensioners could get downtown to parks and recreational facilities.

Ald. Bus MacDonald asked the proprietors if they would consider an alternative site nearer town.

In the report submitted to council by Dr. G. H. Bonham, director of the Central Vancouver Island Health Unit it was recommended that the Nanaimo water supply be fluoridated.

A fluoridation bylaw was presented to the voters in 1957 but was defeated by 1,925 votes to 1,315.

Winners Named

Five Vancouver Island students were awarded district prizes in the 1963 high school poster contest sponsored by the B.C. and Yukon Division of the Canadian Cancer Society.

Theme of the contest was "Smoking and Lung Cancer."

BROKE EVERY RULE

Shot at Moving Bush Man Killed His Son

KAMLOOPS (CP)—A father who shot his son to death was an experienced hunter who broke just about every rule in the book, Kamloops coroner Dr. Ivan Smillie told an inquest jury.

He was addressing the jury Tuesday before sending it out to consider a verdict in the death of Gordon Prigmore, 18, of Celista, on Shuswap Lake.

The youth was shot to death Nov. 23 while hunting with his father, Glen Harold Prigmore, 40, about 40 miles northeast of here.

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death and did not make any recommendations.

STALKING DEER

During the inquest, the father testified he was stalking a deer uphill when he saw movement in a bush and fired. A yellow hard hat flew into the air and Prigmore said he knew he'd hit his son.

Dr. Smillie said Prigmore fired without seeing his target, only moving bushes.

"The visibility was relatively poor," the coroner said, noting Prigmore testified he could see about 75 yards, and the shot that killed the boy was fired from about 100 yards away.

"Most of the clothing worn by Prigmore and his son was just so much camouflage," the coroner concluded.

Egg Price Supports Will Be Continued

OTTAWA (CP) — Egg price supports will be continued for a further year on the same basis as last year, Agriculture Minister Hays has announced.

A deficiency payment of 34 cents a dozen for grade A large eggs will be in effect for the period Oct. 1, 1963, to Sept. 30, 1964. Maximum quantities on which any individual producer may claim payment is 4,000 dozen grade A large and medium eggs.

EGG PRICES

| | Producer | Wholesale |
|---|---|---|
| Grade A Large | 41 | 53 |
| Grade A Medium | 35 | 47 |
| Grade A Small | 23 | 35 |

Teachers Now Back Grade 13

Teacher opposition to a Sooke school district plan for grade 13 next year was based on misunderstanding, a trustee said today.

Mrs. Isabelle Reader said today that discussion of board plans for 1964-65 at a special meeting with teachers Tuesday had overcome previous teacher opposition to Grade 13 being introduced next year.

Plans for both grade 13 and an entirely new course in commerce are being studied by district 62 trustees for post-high school students, Mrs. Reader said.

"They are fully behind the Grade 13 plan and if it is put into effect they would carry it out with enthusiasm," she said.

TEACHER PLAN

She said teachers had requested consideration be given to a commerce course that would offer subjects like shorthand and typing now available in private business schools.

It would be an extra course simlar to Grade 13 and would mean students would pay a fee of about $200 and provide their own transportation to classes, which would probably be at Belmont Senior Secondary School.

When teachers opposed grade 13 they were not aware that planning for it had been virtually settled and felt ttheir suggestion was being ignored.

"We feel we can put both into effect," Mrs. Rearer said.

As far as is known, the commerce course would be a first in B.C.

The board will take a survey in early January to determine the approximate number of students who would enroll.

Parents will be informed fully of regulations and costs involved, Mrs. Reader said.

Large Reward To Be Posted For Swan Killer

CAMPBELL RIVER — The weekend shooting of five trumpeter swans prompted the Fish and Game Club to collect a reward fund in the hopes of apprehending the killer.

The swans were shot in the area between Beavertail and Upper Campbell River.

Hard on the heels of this wanton shooting game warden George Taylor has discovered another serious infraction of the game regulations.

The still warm body of a big five-point bull elk was found in the bush near mile 30 in the Elk Valley Sunday. Two deer hunters are believed to have frightened off the culprit as he was attempting to skin and cut the animal up.

Elk season ended Nov. 3.

Life Membership Given Sheepbreeder

A life membership in the B.C. Purebred Sheepbreeders' Association was presented to A. W. T. (Bill) Evans, a prominent Cowichan sheepbreeder, at the association's annual meeting in the Tzouhalem Hotel Saturday.

Mr. Evans was secretary-treasurer of the association for many years and has done much to promote the sheep breeding industry. He resigned last year because of ill health but is still a director.

Cape Canaveral's New Name Protested

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—President Johnson's switch a week ago from the 450-year-old name of Cape Canaveral for the nation's spaceport to Cape Kennedy is drawing opposition.

Two nearby communities already have gone on record against the surprise Thanksgiving Day decree in memory of the late president and petitions are circulating among area workers opposing the move.

Opponents endorse the renaming of the space centre itself but the resistance develops in the abandonment of the geographical name of Cape Canaveral.

President Johnson's order renamed the huge space complex the John F. Kennedy space centre, and also erased the name Canaveral from the triangular expanse of sand that juts into the Atlantic from Florida's otherwise smooth Atlantic coastline.

The city council of Cape Canaveral, a tiny municipality south of the missile base, has approved a resolution to be sent to the president and to Florida Gov. Farris Bryant protesting the decision. The city of Cocoa has taken similar action.

LBJ Sets Job Goal

WASHINGTON (AP)—A 5,000,000 increase in jobs was set by President Johnson Wednesday as a goal for his administration. He also asked organized labor and business to support tax cuts and civil rights legislation.

Symphony Dispute Settled

VANCOUVER (CP) — Contractual agreement was reached Wednesday between the Vancouver local of the Musicians' Union and the Vancouver Symphony Society, ending a long-standing dispute.

Signed by both groups, the new contract covers the next four seasons and the balance of the current 1963-64 season.

It provides no pay increase for the current season but gives musicians a nine-per-cent increase in 1964-65, seven per cent in 1965-66 and four per cent in 1966-67.

Throughout negotiations, the society maintained public funds would not be sufficient to raise musicians' fees to the level requested by the union in the second year of a new contract.

Under the present agreement, musicians will receive a basic minimum of $75 weekly by the 1965-66 season and $78 weekly in 1966-67.

At one point in the dispute, the society cancelled several concerts and released imported artists from their contracts. Musicians moved in and sponsored their own concerts, picking up the released artists.

Briton Must Stand Trial For Threat to Kill Queen

LONDON (Reuters)—A 43-year-old London man today was ordered to stand trial for sending a letter threatening to kill the Queen.

George William Mead, now in custody, will be tried at London's Old Bailey central criminal court, a magistrate's hearing decided.

The chairman of the magistrate's court also asked prison medical authorities to keep Mead under observation so a report could be made.

Mead was alleged to have handed a letter to a clergyman at St. Paul's Cathedral here Nov. 17 threatening to kill the Queen by shooting her.

Prosecutor Philip Radcliffe said the letter was handed by Mead to the officiating clergyman at holy communion.

That same afternoon, Mead visited another clergyman and gave him a copy.

Rev. Joseph Robinson of St. Paul's Cathedral said he was administering holy communion when Mead handed him a piece of folded paper as he approached to give him communion.

At the end of the service Robinson said he read the paper, showed it to some of the cathedral clergy and then handed it to a cathedral official.

He read a statement alleged to have been made by Mead in which the defendant said that about five years ago he lived with a woman named Mrs. Chattaway who was the mother of his son.

CALLED PROSTITUTE

The statement went on to say that later Mrs. Chattaway returned to her husband. About three weeks later people in her area were saying she was a prostitute

"I made a promise that I would give my life if she was ever involved in trouble," the statement added.

The letter which contained the threat to the Queen was also read in court.

It said:

"O Heavenly Father, this nation has now forced me into a position whereby I have to openly commit myself in your name to shoot Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth The Second and shoot to kill.

"Because of the 'cowardice' of this nation in facing this issue between Mrs. Chattaway and myself. If I do not see Mr. and Mrs. Chattaway and their two children this year, 1963, according to your covenant, O Heavenly Father, this nation shall be destroyed."

Through his lawyer Mead said he did not want to say anything at the present time, nor did he want to call evidence or other witnesses.

Mead was ordered held in custody until his trial, which will be held after the new session of the central criminal court here begins Jan. 7.

'ENGLISHMAN'S HOME IS STILL HIS CASTLE'

LONDON (UPI)—It's all right for an Englishman to punch a policeman in the nose, under certain circumstances, according to Lord Parker, the lord chief justice.

Lord Parker cleared Sir John Barton Wednesday of a charge of assaulting a policeman who came to take him from his home for observation at a hospital under the mental health act. The policeman, acting on a request by Sir John's wife, received a broken nose.

"If a householder is not to submit to his liberty being infringed in his house, I cannot see that to hit out with his fist is an unreasonable use of force," Lord Parker said.

"An Englishman's home is still his castle," Sir John said.

ROWDIES WANTED 'TO TELL WHY'

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Wainborn, deputy chairman of the Vancouver Parks Board, wants to meet the 319 rowdies arrested in Grey Cup mob scenes in the city last weekend to see what can be done to prevent a recurrence.

Wainborn, a member of the Grey Cup committee which planned week-long festivities here preceding the B.C. Lions - Hamilton Tiger - Cats football classic last Saturday, issued his invitation today.

"I want to find out from the young people themselves what they have on their minds," he said, referring to the 319 persons who faced police charges of drunkenness, unlawful assembly and fighting.

Taxpayer 'Happy' He Says To Foot Bill for Colleges

VANCOUVER (CP) — James Cairnie of Victoria, president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, says that in California taxpayers foot almost the entire cost of two-year colleges and are happy to do it.

Just returned from an inspection tour of California junior colleges, he told interviewers Wednesday night that California taxpayers pay 100 per cent of capital costs and 75 per cent of operating costs.

Junior college boards in that state could assess up to five mills of local taxes for college capital costs, plus 3½ mills for operating costs. If they need more they go to the people and "never have any trouble getting voter approval."

He said glowing reports he heard about two-year colleges made him tend to view them with some suspicion that they couldn't be "that good."

But he said he came back convinced that everything he had heard was true—that "two-year colleges offer a range of educational opportunities undreamed of a few years ago.

(Vancouver voters will be asked to approve a two-year college for the city at next Wednesday's municipal elections).

NEGRO WARNS

Church 'Sit-Ins' Next?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Negro leader said today after meeting with President Johnson that church sit-ins might be the next course of anti-discrimination demonstrations if a Senate filibuster occurs over civil rights legislation.

A. Philip Randolph, fifth Negro leader to be invited to the White House to see Johnson in less than a week, told newsmen of possible "people's education filibusters" in churches, with round-the-clock meetings, in event a talkathon stalled the legislation.

Johnson breakfasted earlier with House Republican leader Charles A. Halleck who predicted House passage of the civil rights bill next month.

AID PLEDGED

This was the second successive day that Johnson had held a secretive session with a Republican congressional leader and got a pledge of help toward passage of the rights bill.

Randolph, who organized the "March on Washington" by more than 200,000 Negroes in August, told newsmen he did not mention the "peoples' filibuster" in his talk with Johnson.

He said these demonstrations would be sponsored by the overall committee of the Washington march and would be conducted in most major cities.

He said the sit-ins would be staged in churches by white and Negro supporters of the civil rights bill.

The signal for them to start, he said, would be a filibuster on Capitol Hill.

Randolph said he had a comprehensive discussion of the legislation with Johnson and added, "President Johnson has left no doubt of his recognition of the urgency of adoption of civil rights legislation and has given it the highest priority."

'DISASTROUSLY LOW'

Crop Failure In 'Virgin Lands'

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A disastrously low grain crop in the "virgin lands" in the Kazakhstan district were underlined today by figures issued by the local Communist party secretary.

The figures showed a harvest of only 5,000,000 tons—less than the area needs for itself in an average year.

Harvests in the territory, which was plowed up after Soviet Premier Khrushchev came to power, have fallen steadily since the best year of 1958 when 14,300,000 tons of grain were produced.

The crop failure in the "virgin lands," mentioned in more general terms in earlier Soviet statements, is thought to have been a main reason for Russia's decision to buy grain abroad.

Western experts attribute the failure not only to this season's bad weather but also to the one-crop economy and erosion

26 Miners Die In Blast

BUDAPEST (AP)—Twenty-six Hungarian miners, were killed in an explosion Wednesday night at a coal mine at Tatabanya, the Hungarian news agency MTI reported today.

Four other miners were injured.

The agency said the blast was a dampfire explosion.

Tatabanya is a mining centre 30 miles west of Budapest.

DIES

Four-time governor of New York and former U.S. senator, Herbert H. Lehman, 85, died today. Lehman, a leader in his later years in a reform movement against Democratic party organization in New York, suffered a heart attack in his Manhattan home.

South Africa Out

ROME (AP)—The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization voted today to exclude South Africa from all its future meetings or conferences in Africa.

Power Price Agreement Near

OTTAWA (UPI)—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin today expressed hope that Canadian-American negotiations on the Columbia River treaty will be completed this month.

He hinted that the final outstanding issue — the price for disposal of Canada's downstream power benefits — might be settled at a negotiating session here next Monday and Tuesday.

Final agreement between the two governments would open the way for the three-year-old treaty to be submitted to parliament for ratification. It was ratified by the U.S. Senate in 1961.

Martin told the house external affairs committee he had discussed the Columbia treaty in Washington Wednesday with U.S. interior secretary Stewart Udall.

"Subject to meetings here Monday and Tuesday, I would think you can anticipate progress on this matter," he said. "In fact, I am hopeful we can reach a conclusion at least on the executive level of government by the end of year."

U.S. Accepts 12-Mile Limit 'Right'

The Canadian foreign minister told the committee he also had discussed this country's plans to proclaim a 12 - mile fishing limit next spring during his Washington visit.

"There is now an acknowledgement by the United States of our right to establish this 12-mile limit," he said.

He said Canadian-American negotiations to protect "historic" U.S. fishing rights within the 12-mile area probably would be completed in January. Similar discussions then would be held with France, Spain, Portugal and Norway," he said

Martin, opening the committee's examination of his department's 1963-64 spending estimates, also made these comments on current international problems:

Developments such as the Moscow - Washington "hot line," the limited nuclear test ban treaty and the ban on nuclear warfare in outer space represented positive evidence of a new "detente" in East-West relations. Optimism over these developments should be tempered, however, by the fact that the 1954 "Spirt of Geneva" quickly faded into new disagreement and dissilusionment.

Hopeful About Disarmament Talks

There are grounds for hope that the 18-nation Geneva disarmament conference, scheduled to resume Jan. 21, might reach some agreement on such specific issues as non-dissemination of nuclear weapons, creation of nuclear-free zones, steps to guard against accidental war, and the establishment of limits on national military budgets. Real progress toward a general disarmament agreement, however, must await settlement of other outstanding political issues.

While it is impossible under current circumstances to obtain United Nations' agreement on a permanent UN police force, Canada hopes to join with other interested nations, including the Scandinavian countries, the Netherlands and an unidentified Asian country, to co-ordinate existing standby units on call for use by UN Secretary-General U Thant.

Canada has a moral obligation to assist Latin America economically whether or not it joins the Organization of American States.

"We have got to take an increasing interest in Latin America," Mr. Martin said. It is an area vital to the peace of the world and it is wrong to postulate that Latin America is an area of less consequence to Canada than other regions of the world.

PEARSON DROPS BODYGUARD

OTTAWA (CP)—At Prime Minister Pearson's request, a special RCMP security agent assigned to act as his bodyguard has been removed.

A spokesman in Mr. Pearson's office said today the guard had been assigned following the assassination of President Kennedy "because this sort of example often prompts others to attempt the same thing."

The prime minister who had agreed to the guard only on a temporary basis requested Friday that it be discontinued.

Mr. Pearson will continue to have an RCMP personal guard on trips outside Canada and normal surveillance of his residence also will be continued.

Oswald Probe Seeks Power of Subpoena

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Earl Warren announced his commission investigating the assassination of President John F. Kennedy will ask Congress for subpeona power to pursue its highest level probe.

The seven-member commission named Friday by President Johnson met for more than 2½ hours behind guarded doors to set up its machinery and procedures.

At the close of the session reporters were admitted and Warren spoke briefly. He said the commission still has no reports on findings of the FBI or any other government agencies investigating Kennedy's slaying in Dallas Nov. 22.

"The information we have now is little more than what we have learned from the news media," Warren said.

The commission will meet again Friday at 3 p.m. EST, he said, but he declined to answer reporters' question in elaboration of his brief statement.

There was no immediate indication, however, that the commission actually planned to hold hearings.

KOREAN KIDDIES FUND

Duncan Carols Earn Food

A festival of Christmas carols which will be heard in Duncan will be enjoyed even more by the children in Korea.

Warm response means food for the hungry.

The Mount Prevost Festival Singers, a group of Grade eight and nine students who are presenting a Festival of Carols next Wednesday in Mount Prevost Junior Secondary School have asked that the silver collection taken at the concert be donated to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund."

Concert will also include Duncan Elementary School Choirs and Queen Margaret's School Chapel Choir.

It is donations like this that help to swell the Times-sponsored campaign fund for Korean children, as well as the $200 anonymous donations and the contributions from old age pensioners who include one, two, five and ten dollar bills and then say, "sorry I can't send more."

And then there are the children who donate their piggy bank savings like Brian, Gregory and Ellen Dowell who donated $1.05, and Suzanne, Jennifer and Michael Rowland who gave $3.

All donations, no matter how small, should be sent to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund," care of the Times, 2631 Douglas. Contributions will be acknowledged in the paper and official receipts for income tax purposes will be sent later from USC headquarters.

Donations are also being accepted at the Bank of Montreal, main branch, Yates and Douglas.

It'll be some trick t' get th' Columbia deal fixed up this year. You might even call it a trick for treaty.

Like the feller says, vote up or shut up.

Wouldn't be any need t' be a safe driver if your car was th' only one on th' road, but . . .

THE SCOREBOARD
BY
Harry Grayson

". . . I was driving along, see, testing my new spark plugs when all of a sudden a fellow in a red coat came along and . . ."

There is a dash of Gaglardi in Robert James Veith, 39, a visitor here this week from Fort Bragg, Calif. Mr. Veith (like in "Fayth") is also fond of low altitude flying. Here the similarity ends. He didn't know a spark plug from a Mountie 18 years ago when he climbed into his first racing car.

Since then he has flirted with death across the face of North America, driven in racing's Holy Grail—the Indianapolis "500"—seven times, and had a whirl in Italy's Grand Prix.

Quick Ones Prepare for Accidents

None of this would have happened, he was saying, if it had not been for Joe Huffaker.

"I was 21, just out of the Merchant Marine, and Joe was 17 or 18. He had a car he wanted to race but they wouldn't let him until he was 21. So he talked me into driving it."

So you won first time out and decided to follow Sir Malcolm Campbell?

Veith laughed. "All I did was spin out the first few races," he said. "But I liked it and knew it was what I wanted. One thing led to another—I had my time on dirt—and then Indy and now this."

Soft-spoken and well-tailored, Veith travels the country ("40,000 miles by car, another 60,000 by plane every year") preaching the gospel of safe-driving to high school students.

Isn't it incongruous that a man who lives by speed and may one day die from it should lecture on safe driving and the need to curb speed impulses?

"A woman came up to me on the prairies," Veith said, "and asked me the same question. In different words. 'How can you—a race driver—teach my boy to drive safely'? she asked.

"Madame," I said, "speed is my business. So is staying alive. Who is better equipped to talk safe driving than the man who does it professionally? We prepare for accidents. Do you?"

School Is How You Look At It

Veith's motor boils when it is suggested that high school driver-training programs are a frill.

"Nearly every boy and girl in high school will be a driver. Isn't it better to teach them properly, when they are keen and impressionable?"

Veith makes a point, maybe misses one. There is a school of thought (to which y'r operator subscribes) that school is to teach people how to read and reason. If they attain these objectives there is no reason they cannot cook and sew and plumb and drive an auto.

On stage, talking to the high school set, Veith scores.

The girls may not know him from Uncle Clem, but breathes there a boy who doesn't know more about the "500" than he does about Math 91? Even the eggheads come alive when you talk about Rodger Ward and A. J. Foyt and Jimmy Clark and Dan Guerney.

"They not only protect you but they help you to drive. If a bus or a large truck passes you on a windy day, your car will often whip a little. If you're wearing a belt you are in control. Without one you're moving around and fighting the wheel.

"At Daytona, Fla., once I flipped at 165 miles an hour. Skidded 900 feet upside down. The belt saved me. With my arms free I shut off the spare gas valve, turned off the ignition.

Somehow the Message Was Clear . . .

"At Monza, Italy, in 1957," he said "American drivers were outperforming the Europeans who lost time on the turns banked at about 48 degrees.

"We asked them why they didn't use belts and they said they preferred not to. Maybe they had harder heads; maybe they heal faster.

"Finally one of the Italians agreed to try one after I had argued that he would add 10 to 15 miles an hour to his average speed.

"He put it on and beat me out by half a mile an hour." Veith paused. "He also beat me out of $1,500."

His talk is split by a film of the 1961 "500." In it a fellow driver, Jack Turner, was involved in a spectacular crash. He lost his pot, as they call them in the trade, but not his marbles.

In 1962, Veith adds, Turner stood upside down. This year, in front of 200,000 people, Turner and his car did 12 complete flips down the main stretch.

Where did they send the pieces?

"Oh, Jack was fine," Veith says. "A little burn on his back. But when he got back to the pits you know what he said? 'I think somebody's trying to tell me something. I'm going to quit.' And he did."

Skrien Tackles Renfro With Smile, Fat Wallet

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Lions' coach Dave Skrien is in Eugene, Ore., with an endearing smile on his face and a wallet in his hand talking to Mel Renfro, a do-it-all halfback with the University of Oregon.

Renfro is a prime signing target for the Lions—but also the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League and the Oakland Raiders of the American Football League.

Skrien left for Eugene Tuesday when he heard that Dallas had claimed Renfro as their second choice in the NFL draft. Initially they claimed him in the first round, hesitated and picked him up in the second round.

Football experts feel that Renfro wouldn't give Dallas a firm commitment so they wouldn't risk their first choice on him.

Lions' general manager Herb Capozzi said that of the 12 U.S. college players the team had on its signing list, "almost all were claimed in the 20 rounds of the NFL draft and all but one was claimed in the AFL draft.

Capozzi said that no players on the Lions' list have yet been signed by American professional teams.

Catchers Can't Use Baskets Any Longer

The playing rules committee of the major leagues set a limit Wednesday of 34 inches circumference for the glove.

Paul Richards, then of the Baltimore Orioles, was credited with originating a glove almost twice the size of the 34-inch model to help his knuckleball artist, Hoyt Wilhelm, several years ago.

Baseball's secretary, Charles Zegar, said the limitation was not aimed at any particular pitcher. It was just aimed at the big glove.

The big mitt was an effective aid in handling the erratic throws of the knuckleball specialists. There are regulations governing gloves for other positions but before Wednesday there was none for catchers.

CONTROVERSY OVER CARLTON

Would Hamilton Accept Lark Pair for Faloney?

MONTREAL (UPI) — Post-season rumor mills are buzzing over trade talk involving Grey Cup hero Bernie Faloney and the quarterbackless Montreal Alouettes.

Alouettes have been loking for a capable signal caller ever since they unwittingly handed Sam Etcheverry his release and flubbed a deal that was to have brought Faloney here from Hamilton.

Despite the fact that Faloney was the standout performer in the Tiger-Cats 21-10 victory over the British Columbia Lions last Saturday, it would not be surprising if Hamilton was willing to part with the veteran of six Grey Cup teams, including three winners — one with Edmonton and two with Hamilton.

Reports circulating in Vancouver during Grey Cup week had Montreal owner Ted Workman scheduled to talk trade with Hamilton general manager Jake Gaudaur next week or the week after.

Workman denied this and said the Alouettes weren't even interested in dealing with Hamilton Wednesday but he has a history of making startling post-season deals—startling both from the view of the names involved and his coach who wasn't informed until it was too late.

MADE HEADLINES

Three years ago Workman made headlines by trading Etcheverry and end Hal Patterson for Faloney and defensive end Don Paquette. All the Als got out of that deal was Paquette, an indifferent performer who has yet to give Montreal a full year of average football.

Within hours after the Alouettes were eliminated by the Ottawa Rough Riders in the Eastern Conference semi-finals last month, Workman levelled a blast at his team that also was heard around the country.

He accused head coach Jim Trimble of failing to maintain proper control of his players, particularly off the field. Workman, a converted teetotaler, said some of the players drank too much, smoked too much, went to bed too late and were guilty of other social indiscretions.

WELL PROTECTED

If the youthful owner follows the same pattern he has in the past it means he's ready to deal off such established stars as halfback Don Clark, end Marv Luster, linebacker Jim Reynolds and tackle Bobby Jack Oliver. They were the major casualities during the season.

Hamilton is the only team in the CFL that has three proven quarterbacks in Faloney, sophomore import Joe Zuger and veteran Canadian Frank Consentino. Coach Ralph Sazio told UPI before the Grey Cup game he was unwilling to part with any of them, particularly Zuger. But it is felt that Faloney, who at 31 is already at or passed his peak, would be the most available of the trio.

Adair Selected To Pilot Denver

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Milwaukee Braves announced today that Bill Adair has been named to manage Denver Bears of the Pacific Coast League, a Milwaukee affiliate.

Last season Adair managed Toronto to a second place finish in the International League.

DETROIT GETS SPEED

Tigers Swap Ace Battery to Phils

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Detroit Tigers traded pitcher Jim Bunning and catcher Gus Triandos to Philadelphia Phillies today for outfielder Don Demeter and pitcher Jack Hamilton.

It was the fourth trade of the winter baseball meetings and the first inter-league swap.

Bunning, 32, had a 12-13 record last season and Triandos, 33, batted .240 and hit 14 home runs.

Demeter, 28, batted .258 and hit 22 homers. Hamilton, 24, a righthander, had a 2-1 record with the Phils before being farmed out. He was 9-12 with Philadelphia in 1962.

Bunning, a righthander who has pitched in several All-Star games, has been with the Tigers since the 1955 season. He pitched a no-hit, no-run game against Red Sox July 20, 1958 and has compiled a 118-87 record.

JIM BUNNING

Demeter came to the Phillies from the Dodgers with infielder Charlie Smith for pitcher Dick Farrell and infielder Joe Koppe May 4, 1961. He has hit 72 homers the past three seasons and enjoyed his best season in 1962 when he hit 29 home runs, knocked in 107 runs and batted .307.

It was the second trade for the American League Tigers in recent weeks. They traded outfielder Rocky Colavito and pitcher Bob Anderson to Kansas City Athletics last month for second baseman Jerry Lumpe and Ed Rakow.

EVERYBODY HAPPY

"I think we've got a better lineup and more speed," Dressen said. "And we're looking better up the middle. We've got Demeter in centre, Lumpe at second and Dick McAuliffe, who is really improving, at shortstop. From the time you're born they tell you to start building down the middle."

Said general manager John Quinn of the National League Phils: "We've given up good ballplayers to get men we believe to be of equal importance to us. This gives us fine balance in our catching and an accomplished pitcher. I think one of the best in the American League."

Bunning admitted last summer he and Dressen didn't see eye to eye. Dressen said before the season ended that Bunning and Colavito might be traded.

MONEY, MONEY EVERYWHERE

Oh, to Be a QB . . . !

DETROIT (CP) — The bidding for star college quarterback Pete Beathard was too rich for even a millionaire like William Clay Ford, owner of Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

Beathard, star at Southern California and first draft choice of the Lions and Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League, signed Wednesday with the Chiefs.

The Lions reportedly went as high as $20,000, but according to Ford this is what the Chiefs, bankrolled by oil millionaire owner Lamar Hunt, offered Beathard:

1. A bonus in excess of $15,000 for signing.

2. A no-cut contract calling for more than $20,000 a year.

3. A paid-up life insurance policy.

4. Option on shares of stock in a West Coast pay-TV corporation, cost of which would be financed by Kansas City.

5. A new car.

Hebenton Cracks NHL Record For Durability

CHICAGO — Andy Hebenton acknowledges, with typical humility, that the setting of a new National Hockey League "iron-man" record has given him "the thrill of my career."

The Victoria, B.C., veteran set it Wednesday night in Chicago's spacious Stadium, stepping on the ice for a 581st consecutive NHL game.

It began in Victoria late in the 1951-52 season. It will end, probably, with the election of Hebenton to hockey's Hall of Fame in some year to come.

That was the supposition tendered by teammates and various hockey executives who stepped around to the Boston Bruins' dressing room to congratulate the 34-year-old Winnipeg-born athlete.

FANTASTIC STREAK

"He's a cinch for election," said one player.

It started in Victoria's Memorial Arena back in 1952. He played 225 consecutive games in the Western League, including 10 playoff games. Then came the stretch of eight straight seasons without a miss in the rugged NHL, plus 21 games this year — 603 games, including 22 playoff appearances.

It adds up to 828 games!

THANKS VICTORIA FANS

"I guess it (the record) has to be the thrill of my career," said Andy after the game in which Boston tied Chicago Black Hawks 2-2.

"I hope they let me play 581 more.

"I feel good," he added. "Naturally, I wish we had won, but the game got away from us."

Hebenton also had to say thanks to fans in Victoria, where he now makes his home.

Through telegrams, about 300 fans in Victoria sent congratulatory messages. Included was one long telegram with 265 names. Another was sent by Mayor R. B. Wilson.

He also received one from his 10-year-old son, Clayton.

TRADED TO BRUINS

Hebenton, obtained by the Bruins last summer from New York Rangers, said the key to endurance is simple.

"First you have to have a lot of luck. Second, you must avoid major injuries. And third, you have to stay in condition."

An injury Hebenton picked up Sunday in Boston's 3-1 loss to Montreal Canadiens didn't bother him Wednesday night. He was struck on the foot Sunday and a toenail had to be pierced to relieve pressure on the resulting bruise. But Hebenton was on the ice as usual.

CLOSEST CALL

He said the closest he came to missing a game was when he was hit by a stick three years ago. An eye was blackened.

"The trainer finally got it open in time for me to take my regular turn," he said.

Hebenton turned professional with Montreal Canadiens 13 years ago, but tore knee ligaments in training camp and was sent to Victoria.

GAMBLE PAID OFF

His move into the NHL resulted from the first deal Muzz Patrick made as general manager of the Rangers. Patrick paid $10,000 to Victoria for Hebenton. The purchase was regarded as a gamble, since Hebenton was 26 years old.

He played in his first NHL game Oct. 7, 1955, at Chicago. In eight seasons with the Rangers he scored 177 goals, his best season being 1958-59 when he scored 33.

In 1957-58 he won the Lady Byng Trophy, awarded to the NHL player who best combines effective play with a high order of sportsmanship. In his trophy-winning year he scored 21 goals and had 23 assists and spent only 10 minutes in the penalty box.

ANDY HEBENTON . . . hockey's new Iron Man.

Slumping Hawks Might Lose One

By The Canadian Press

Hawks until just recently had been cruising through the National Hockey League schedule with victory after victory. But in their last two games they have been held to draws.

Furthermore, both ties were on home ice.

Still further, these embarrassing stalemates have been at the hands of the two least likely teams, New York and Boston.

Hawks have lost two games this season, but they always won at least every second game. Now they haven't won in two straight games and they have barely escaped losing twice in a row.

CLOSE SHAVE

On Sunday it took two goals by Red Hay in the third period to salvage a tie and Wednesday night Hawks had their closest shave. But Bobby Hull saved the day.

The blond bomber scored his 16th goal of the season with just 31 seconds remaining in the game to earn Hawks a 2-2 tie with the upstart Boston Bruins.

The game produced the new iron-man of hockey. It marked the 581st consecutive game for Boston's Andy Hebenton, breaking the old mark of 580 set by Johnny Wilson with Detroit, Chicago and Toronto between 1952 and 1960.

In the other game played, Toronto Maple Leafs got outstanding goaltending from substitute Don Simmons to blank Montreal Canadiens 3-0 and move into second place.

CREDITS DEFENCE

"Give all the credit to the defencemen," Simmons said modestly after recording the first shutout by a Toronto goalie this year with a 26-save effort. Simmons was called in to replace Johnny Bower, sidelined with 'flu.

"Anyone could have played goal for us and got a shutout."

Even coach Punch Imlach was pleased, especially with Frank Mahovlich. The Big M has been target of most of the criticism levelled at the stumbling Leafs.

Mahovlich played a strong checking game and set up goals by Bob Baun and Allan Stanley with neat passes.

"Year," agreed Imlach, "he played well. When we're behind the eight ball he's capable of coming up with the big game and he did it tonight."

HABS SHORT BODIES

Baun opened the scoring in the first period with a slap-shot drive that fooled Charlie Hodge. Stanley and Dick Duff counted in the second period.

The badly-injured Canadiens went into the game with only nine forwards. Their third line consisted of a centre and two right wingers. Missing was Henri Richard, usually Toronto's nemesis, hard-hitting and high-scoring John Ferguson and Billy Hicke.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1963—PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

I have a hard question for you today, one which a dozen men and women must answer presently in a Texas jury room.

If you were among the luckless twelve, what would you do with Jack Ruby?

My own strong impulse would be to vote for acquittal.

This on the grounds that even though self-appointed, Ruby was less murderer than executioner. The outcome of Lee Oswald's trial was certain anyway, so why send to the chair the man who telescoped the lengthy and cumbersome processes of law in one violent moment?

It is easy to look on him as God's hammer, the chosen if unlikely agent of retribution. Should we, then—and the more so since justice is blind—hold to the letter of man-made law in judging this man?

Thoughts such as those must inevitably sway the not-to-be envied jury which in Dallas or elsewhere will weigh Ruby's act and decide his fate.

But even though they, and we, deal with an extraordinary case, there are other thoughts which good men and true must ponder.

What happens if because a jury sympathizes with his motive and deplores the crime alleged against his victim, it chooses to short-circuit the law on Ruby's behalf?

The law, of which a sworn jury becomes an instrument more important than arresting officer, counsel or even judge, is weakened. The strict definition of murder is diminished, and a motive condoned.

There are times aplenty when we resent the law, with its archaic-seeming devices and its pettifogging preoccupation with misercopic detail. Its language baffles us. It hampers and impedes us in much that we'd like to do. We invoke it, even in our own behalf, with misgivings.

But take it away, rid ourselves of this encumbrance to free will, and where do we stand?

To anyone not inhabiting a fool's paradise, the question must be self-answering.

Most of us have long ago dropped the uncomfortable concept of a literal hell. To learn the reality of evil, though we have only to suspend all law for a single day.

My picture, of course, is fantastic. We will not abandon the law, our clumsy but necessary creature which we have evolved through so many centuries.

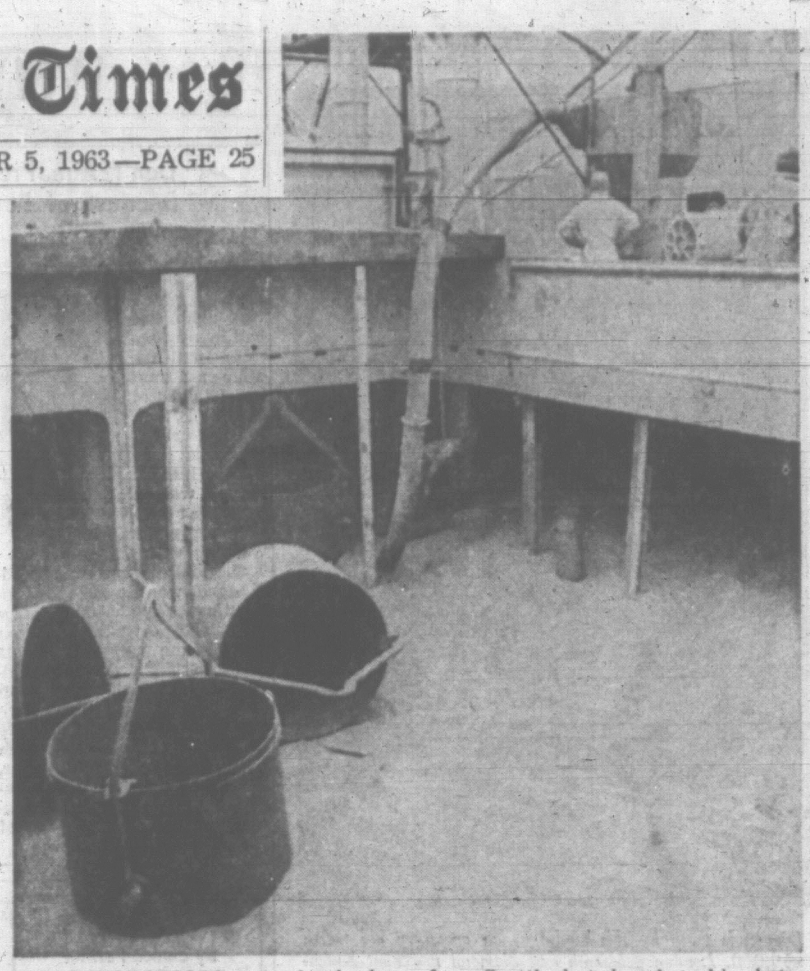

But ours is an indulgent age; and individually and collectively, we whittle at this agent which man has developed to protect him from his neighbors and himself.

We indulge ourselves. A towel, an ashtray taken from a motel isn't really stealing. And why drive at 60 when a perfectly safe 70 will get us there faster?

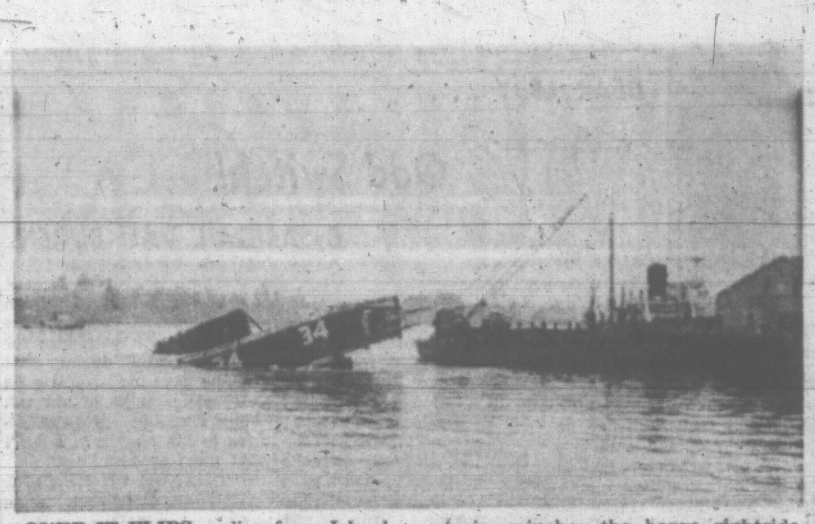

We indulge others. We make a cult of youth and excuse its excesses, parroting such nonsense as, 'There is no such thing as a bad boy.'

So, with an eye to cause and effect—our easy going outlook and the tide of violence it has engendered—I think we cannot permit ourselves to view Jack Ruby's crime with indulgence, even though to condemn the perpetrator goes against the grain.

Were I on that jury, I hope I would find the guts and conscience to weigh his case in the strict scales of the law without which life becomes a jungle, even though to do so sent Ruby to the electric chair.

Municipal Polls Close at 8 P.M.

Oak Bay and Esquimalt voters went to the civic polls this morning in heavier volumes than last year but Saanich saw just a slow but steady run to its 13 polls.

Polls in all three municipalities are open until 8 tonight.

Reeveship contests have stimulated interest in the election races of the three municipalities.

At Oak Bay Municipal Hall a 50 per cent turn out was forecast as voting was reported steady and heavy.

More than double the number of voters turned out at the polls as did last year at this time.

By noon today almost 500 persons had cast ballots — doubling the turnout over the same period last year.

However, an election bus serving the northern part of the municipality did a slim business this morning.

STEADY STREAM

Saanich's 13 polling stations are located at:

USE SCHOOLS FOR VOTING, SAYS LABOR

Use of schools and community halls as polling stations in municipal elections was urged Wednesday by Victoria Labor Council.

Delegate John Driscoll said there would be a far greater turnout at the polls in Victoria if the city replaced its central polling place with several, more conveniently located stations.

Elderly voters often have a hard time getting downtown to cast ballots, and traffic and parking congestion also hinder the vote, he said.

Acclamation For Mayor

Today was election day for Mayor R. B. Wilson but only nomination day for other city council candidates.

Mayor Wilson this morning was expected to pass the 2 p.m. deadline for city nominations without any opposition to his re-election for a second two-year term.

But at least seven candidates were in the field for the other four council vacancies to be filled by balloting Thursday of next week at the Victoria Ballroom, Government and Cormorant.

LAST MINUTE

Two city seats on Greater Victoria school board were expected to be filled by acclamation this afternoon following the entry of photographer and former trustee Ralph Fryer in the final hours after an appeal for someone to join incumbent John Porteous in standing for the posts.

Mayor Wilson's acclamation was expected from the moment he said last summer he would stand for one more term in order to see a variety of major projects through to completion.

Mayor Wilson was elected Dec. 14, 1961, in his first bid for city office by a record landslide that gave him more than eight votes to every one for his opponent J. Donald Smith, Victoria MLA.

His predecessor, Mayor Percy Scurrah, also won an acclamation in 1957 when he ran for a second term as mayor.

SEVENTH NAME

Adding his name as seventh in the list of candidates for aldermanic posts Wednesday was Victor Williams. 1625 Davies, a company director. Making his fourth try for a seat on council, he said better control should be instituted over civic land dealings.

Others in the running are incumbents Aldermen Millard Mooney, Geoffrey Edgelow, Lily Wilson and J. L. W. McLean.

Former Bishop Here Dies in Ontario

The former Roman Catholic bishop of Victoria, Rev. John Christopher Cody, 63, died early today in London, Ont., where he had been bishop since 1950.

A St. Joseph's Hospital spokesman in London said he suffered a heart seizure. He was admitted to hospital Wednesday, when he became ill on a visit to a seminary.

When he was made bishop of Victoria, Rev. Cody was only 37, the youngest bishop in Canada and one of the youngest of the Roman Church hierarchy in the world.

HERE FROM OTTAWA

Rev. Cody was parish priest of the Church of Assumption in Eastview, a suburb of Ottawa, and for 10 years a curate at St. Patrick's Church, Ottawa, when he was made bishop of Victoria.

He was consecrated in the Ottawa Bascilica Feb. 24, 1937, and was installed at St. Andrew's Cathedral April 7 by Archbishop W. M. Duke, of Vancouver.

He served the diocese throughout the Second World War until 1946, when he became co-adjutor Bishop of London. His place was taken by Rev. James Hill, who died last year.

He won the 1962 award given by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews for service to the cause of friendship between peoples of different creeds.

The Vatican named him bishop assistant to the Pontifical throne in February, 1962. This placed him close to the Pope's throne in St. Peter's Bascilica during pontifical ceremonies.

Special mass will be said at St. Andrew's Cathedral the day of the funeral for Rev. Cody, which will be announced later.

Memory for Faces Aids Conviction

Danny Breeze, 22, of Vancouver, was given a month on each charge, not concurrent.

Court was told that Breeze kicked Joseph Page, 639 Niagara, in the stomach when the elderly landlord tried to put him out of his house last April, and that he also kicked Desmond Lindo, same address, in the knee when Lindo tried to defend Page.

Breeze also kicked Baxter Bennett and Stanley Tomczyk, owners of the Drake Hotel, when they tried to have him put out of the beer parlor there Friday night for being drunk.

Bennett was kicked in the face, and Tomczyk in the stomach.

Breeze, who pleaded guilty to all four charges, challenged Lindo's identification of him as the man who attacked Page.

"You can remember me after nine months?" he asked.

"Sure. You got a punk's face," he was told.

Breeze has a lengthy record of crimes on the mainland, the court was told, including a 20-month term for assaulting a peace officer.

Seawatchers Delight In Ogden Pt. Salvage

By MONTE ROBERTS
Times Marine Reporter

Members of the Fraternity of Waterfront watchers who were fortunate enough to be in the Ogden Point vicinity this morning were able to witness two unusual maritime operations:

Roberts

Unloading grain from a damaged ship, both by old-fashioned shovel-and-bucket and the latest "vaculator" brought in from Seattle.

And the righting of a hog fuel barge which capsized off Trial Island about two weeks ago.

The damaged ship is the Irish Rowan, which sustained a deep gash amidship in collision with another freighter in Vancouver Harbor 10 days ago.

The ship was laden with 15,000 tons of grain, outbound for Japan, when the accident occurred.

Tons of grain poured out of the gash, but more tons of water poured in, soaking the remaining grain and adding vastly to its weight. But the net result was to remove the balance of weight from the centre of the ship.

At that time a survey by Lloyd's of London showed the ship had a "hog"—an arching of the bottom of the ship, due to less weight amidships than when loaded.

6,000-TONS TASK

After temporary repairs were effected, the Irish Rowan was moved to Victoria Grain Elevator dock at Ogden Point, to have 1,000 tons removed from No. 1 hold—the farthest forward—2,000 tons from No. 5, the after hold, and all the grain—about 3,000 tons, from No. 3 hold amidships, where the ship was damaged.

The vaculators imported from Seattle are giant vacuum cleaners which suck the grain out, and into storage facilities at the elevator. Next step after unloading it to return the ship to drydock for permanent repairs—including removal of the hog.

TUGS AT WORK

At about the same time Canadian Stevedoring started on the Irish Rowan job, two Island Tug and Barge towboats and a clamshell barge righted the capsized barge ITB 34, which went over in foul weather in Juan de Fuca Strait.

The clamshell weight down one side of the barge with bottom mud until it showed a sizeable list. Then lines were affixed from the tugs Sudbury I and Island Sovereign, one line to the underside of the barge, and other topside. The tugs pulled opposite each other until, with a quick flip, the barge was upright.

ISLAND TUG CLAIMS TWO NEW RECORDS

The tow was 11,000 tons of industrial salts, from Black Warrior Lagoon, Mexico, to the Hooker Chemical Co., North Vancouver, a distance of 1,600 miles.

The big cargo was loaded aboard the barge Island Exporter, under tow to the deepsea towboat Sudbury II. The tow is the first of four which ITB has contracted to carry out for the chemical company, which uses the salts to make chemicals for the pulp and paper industry.

Union Says Chinese Exploited

Saanich food baron Henry Eng was accused Wednesday by Meatcutters' Union secretary of skirting a legal contract and exploiting Chinese employees.

Union secretary George Johnson charged Eng, director of Oakcrest Foods, with unethical hiring and firing tactics arising from manipulation of the huge market's meat department.

The union has taken the matter to the Labor Relations Board, Mr. Johnson told Victoria Labor Council.

He said his union was successful in making a collective bargain with Oakcrest this year on behalf of 14 employees.

MORE TO GO?

Now, Eng has laid off one part-time man and one full-time employee, has given a week's notice to another full-time man, and has promised more will go, VLC delegates were told.

"An official of the company was told all union people will be given notice by the first of the coming year," Mr. Johnson said.

Meanwhile, the Saanich grocer has opened a subsidiary meat-cutting operation at the rear of a building at Douglas and Pembroke, employing all-Chinese workmen at "less than half the union rate."

He said Oakcrest meat is received and cut at the Douglas Street location, then trucked to the store at 3475 Quadra for wrapping, storage and sale.

TOPICS of the DAY

Mount Douglas Senior Secondary Hi-Y Club Wednesday was declared the best Victoria Hi-Y for its program of outstanding merit last year.

Oak Bay Kiwanis vice-president S. A. Turner made the award to Hi-Y member Dave Lawson at an evening ceremony in which some 90 new members of seven Hi-Y clubs were inducted.

The clubs last term operated two school patrols at elementary schools, a lunch stand, canvass for charity, served refreshments at a fall fair and track meet, provided billets, entertainment, trophies and a scholarship.

'Cuest' Conductor Here at Least Two Years

Announcement was made today by Symphony Society president Jack Barraclough, that Mr. Mueller has agreed to serve as resident conductor and music director for the next two seasons.

The move to have Mr. Mueller so appointed was initiated by Hans Gruber, who has held the position for 15 years, and who built up the orchestra from simple beginnings to its present competence during that time.

Recognition of the fact that all musical organizations and all directors benefit from changes of viewpoint and personality from time to time, is clearly indicated in Mr. Gruber's letter to the president and board of directors of the symphony society.

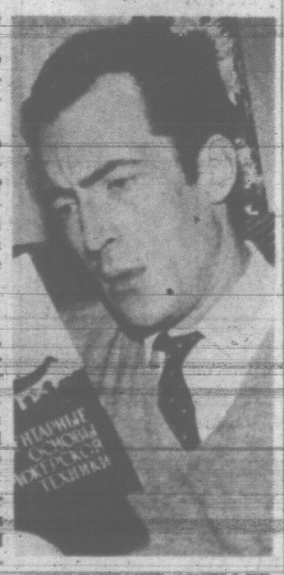

Mr. Gruber, writing from Toronto, states: "Although I had been contemplating the desirability, from the orchestra's point of view, of relinquishing my duties and position for perhaps three or four seasons, I felt at the same time that action on my part in this connection would have to be contingent upon the availability of just the right person."

The letter pays tribute to Mr. Mueller's exceptional ability, and concludes with the conviction that the appointment "will mean a renewed lease on life for the orchestra and Victoria's musical life generally."

MOVING SOON

Mr. Mueller, with his family, will take up permanent residence in Victoria after the New Year, when he will work closely with the directors on several important projected plans for improvement of the orchestra.

An accomplished operatic conductor, Mr. Mueller has directed opera in Montreal and for Vancouver Opera Association and the International Festival.

British Emigrants Set Off for S.A.

LIVERPOOL, England (AP)—More than 300 adult British migrants and 180 children sailed for South Africa today aboard the 25,500-ton liner Empress of Britain. It was the largest group ever to migrate from Britain to South Africa. Few of those who spoke to reporters seemed worried by South Africa's racial troubles.

Lions Lose Out In Renfro Bidding

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—Mel Renfro, University of Oregon halfback, said today he probably will sign a contract with Dallas Cowboys of the National Footbal League.

Renfro, bothered by injuries this season, confirmed he talked Wednesday with Dave Skrien, coach of British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League, said Dallas made a better offer.

Richard Back In Montreal Lineup

MONTREAL (CP)—Henri Richard, who has missed four games because of a groin injury, returns to Montreal Canadiens' lineup for tonight's National Hockey League game against New York Rangers.

Motorist Killed In Cariboo Skid

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP)—A motorist was killed today when his car skidded on an icy road and plunged over an embankment at Lac La Hache, 40 miles south of here.

The name of the victim has not yet been released, but he is believed to have moved to the Cariboo recently from the United States.

Briton to Stand Trial For Threat on Queen

LONDON (Reuters)—A 45-year-old London man today was ordered to stand trial for sending a letter threatening to kill the Queen.

George William Mead, now in custody, will be tried at London's Old Bailey central criminal court, a magistrate's hearing decided.

The chairman of the magistrate's court also asked prison medical authorities to keep Mead under observation so a report could be made.

Mead was alleged to have handed a letter to a clergyman at St. Paul's Cathedral here Nov. 17 threatening to kill the Queen by shooting her.

Prosecutor Philip Radcliffe said the letter was handed by Mead to the officiating clergyman at holy communion.

That same afternoon, Mead visited another clergyman and gave him a copy.

Rev. Joseph Robinson of St. Paul's Cathedral said he was administering holy communion when Mead handed him a piece of folded paper as he approached to give him communion.

At the end of the service Robinson said he read the paper, showed it to some of the cathedral clergy and then handed it to a cathedral official.

He read a statement alleged to have been made by Mead in which the defendant said that about five years ago he lived with a woman named Mrs. Chattaway who was the mother of his son.

The statement went on to say that later Mrs. Chattaway returned to her husband. About three weeks later people in her area were saying she was a prostitute.

"I made a promise that I would give my life if she was ever involved in trouble," the statement added.

The letter which contained the threat to the Queen was also read in court.

It said:

"O Heavenly Father, this nation has now forced me into a position whereby I have to openly commit myself in your name to shoot Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth The Second and shoot to kill.

"Because of the 'cowardice' of this nation in facing this issue between Mrs. Chattaway and myself. If I do not see Mr. and Mrs. Chattaway and their two children this year, 1963, according to your covenant, O Heavenly Father, this nation shall be destroyed."

'ENGLISHMAN'S HOME IS STILL HIS CASTLE'

LONDON (UPI)—It's all right for an Englishman to punch a policeman in the nose, under certain circumstances, according to Lord Parker, the lord chief justice.

Lord Parker cleared Sir John Barton Wednesday of a charge of assaulting a policeman who came to take him from his home for observation at a hospital under the mental health act. The policeman, acting on a request by Sir John's wife, received a broken nose.

"If a householder is not to submit to his liberty being infringed in his house, I cannot see that to hit out with his fist is an unreasonable use of force," Lord Parker said.

Taxpayer 'Happy' He Says To Foot Bill for Colleges

VANCOUVER (CP) — James Cairnie of Victoria, president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, says that in California taxpayers foot almost the entire cost of two-year colleges and are happy to do it.

Just returned from an inspection tour of California junior colleges, he told interviewers Wednesday night that California taxpayers pay 100 per cent of capital costs and 75 per cent of operating costs.

Junior college boards in that state could assess up to five mills of local taxes for college capital costs, plus 3½ mills for operating costs. If they need more they go to the people and "never have any trouble getting voter approval."

He said glowing reports he heard about two-year colleges made him tend to view them with some suspicion that they couldn't be "that good."

But he said he came back convinced that everything he had heard was true—that "two-year colleges offer a range of educational opportunities undreamed of a few years ago.

(Vancouver voters will be asked to approve a two-year college for the city at next Wednesday's municipal elections).

Columbia Deal By Year End

OTTAWA (UPI)—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin today expressed hope that Canadian-American negotiations on the Columbia River treaty will be completed this month.

He hinted that the final outstanding issue — the price for disposal of Canada's downstream power benefits — might be settled at a negotiating session here next Monday and Tuesday.

Final agreement between the two governments would open the way for the three-year-old treaty to be submitted to parliament for ratification. It was ratified by the U.S. Senate in 1961.

Martin told the house external affairs committee he had discussed the Columbia treaty in Washington Wednesday with U.S. interior secretary Stewart Udall.

"Subject to meetings here Monday and Tuesday, I would think you can anticipate progress on this matter," he said. "In fact, I am hopeful we can reach a conclusion at least on the executive level of government by the end of year."

U.S. Accepts 12-Mile Limit 'Right'

The Canadian foreign minister told the committee he also had discussed this country's plans to proclaim a 12 - mile fishing limit next spring during his Washington visit.

"There is now an acknowledgement by the United States of our right to establish this 12-mile limit," he said.

He said Canadian-American negotiations to protect "historic" U.S. fishing rights within the 12-mile area probably would be completed in January. "Similar discussions then would be held with France, Spain, Portugal and Norway," he said

Martin, opening the committee's examination of his department's 1963-64 spending estimates, also made these comments on current international problems:

Developments such as the Moscow - Washington "hot line," the limited nuclear test ban treaty and the ban on nuclear warfare in outer space represented positive evidence of a new "detente" in East-West relations. Optimism over these developments should be tempered, however, by the fact that the 1954 "Spirit of Geneva" quickly faded into new disagreement and disillusionment.

Hopeful About Disarmament Talks

There are grounds for hope that the 18-nation Geneva disarmament conference, scheduled to resume Jan. 21, might reach some agreement on such specific issues as non-dissemination of nuclear weapons, creation of nuclear-free zones, steps to guard against accidental war, and the establishment of limits on national military budgets. Real progress toward a general disarmament agreement, however, must await settlement of other outstanding political issues.

While it is impossible under current circumstances to obtain United Nations' agreement on a permanent UN police force, Canada hopes to join with other interested nations, including the Scandinavian countries, the Netherlands and an unidentified Asian country, to co-ordinate existing standby units on call for use by UN Secretary-General U Thant.

Canada has a moral obligation to assist Latin America economically whether or not it joins the Organization of American States.

"We have got to take an increasing interest in Latin America," Mr. Martin said. It is an area vital to the peace of the world and it is wrong to postulate that Latin America is an area of less consequence to Canada than other regions of the world.

Oswald Probe Seeks Power of Subpoena

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Earl Warren announced his commission investigating the assassination of President John F. Kennedy will ask Congress for subpoena power to pursue its highest level probe.

The seven-member commission named Friday by President Johnson met for more than 2½ hours behind guarded doors to set up its machinery and procedures.

At the close of the session reporters were admitted and Warren spoke briefly. He said the commission still has no reports on findings of the FBI or any other government agencies investigating Kennedy's slaying in Dallas Nov. 22.

"The information we have now is little more than what we have learned from the news media," Warren said.

The commission will meet again Friday at 3 p.m. EST, he said, but he declined to answer reporters' question in elaboration of his brief statement.

There was no immediate indication, however, that the commission actually planned to hold hearings.

'DISASTROUSLY LOW'

Crop Failure In 'Virgin Lands'

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A disastrously low grain crop in the "virgin lands" in the Kazakhstan district were underlined today by figures issued by the local Communist party secretary.

The figures showed a harvest of only 5,000,000 tons—less than the area needs for itself in an average year.

Harvests in the territory, which was plowed up after Soviet Premier Khrushchev came to power, have fallen steadily since the best year of 1958 when 14,300,000 tons of grain were produced.

The crop failure in the "virgin lands," mentioned in more general terms in earlier Soviet statements, is thought to have been a main reason for Russia's decision to buy grain abroad.

Western experts attribute the failure not only to this season's bad weather but also to the one-crop economy and erosion

Vancouver Stocks Closing Prices

VANCOUVER — Closing sales: Highland Bell 800 at $3, Jericho 500 at .15, Merill 2,000 at .41, Bethlehem Copper 100 at $6.70, Utica 1,500 at .33, Western Mines 600 at $3.80, New Indian 2,000 at .11, Peso Silver 3,000 at $1.06, A-1 Steel B 50 at $4.50.

Air, Sea Rescue Moving to Comox

B.C.'s share in Canada's defence picture was sharply cut today when Defence Minister Paul Hellyer outlined budget-trimming plans to the House of Commons in Ottawa.

Victoria's naval reserve division, HMCS Malahat, is to be eliminated, as will the reserve air squadron, VC 922, based at Patricia Bay.

HMCS Chatham, the reserve unit at Prince Rupert, is also to be dropped, according to the minister's announcement.

The RCAF station at Vancouver, along with those at Saskatoon and Hamilton, will be closed.

The RCAF's duties within the Pacific Coast Search and Rescue organization will be operated out of RCAF Station, Comox.

In making the announcements, Mr. Hellyer said the total defence budget would soon top $2,000,000,000 if the present establishment were maintained and adequate equipment provided.

Commenting on the cutbacks today, E. E. Pearlman, president of the Victoria chamber of commerce said: "We have to be realistic about defence expenditures and the need for economy. But it seems to me the west coast is bearing more than its share of the cuts. First the frigate program cancellation hurt the shipbuilding industry badly. Then the heavy water contract was given to Nova Scotia by the federal government. Now we are losing services installations."

The reduction in manpower, along with cancellation of other programs and establishments, will cut more than $40,000,000 from the defence department's $1,600,000,000 budget.

The main casualties will include the army's prized Bobcat armored vehicle program, under development for the past 10 years at a cost of some $8 million. Hellyer said the Bobcat had not met test requirements and would be dropped in favor of its United States counterpart, the M-113.

Militia Will Be Cut By 20,000 Men

The militia will be reduced to 30,000 from 51,000.

This would necessitate a major reorganization of the militia, better known as the reserve army, and a group of militia officers would examine the problem and recommend the best way of accomplishing it.

The naval reserve will be reduced to 2,700 from 4,000. Reserve squadrons at Toronto and Victoria will be disbanded as well as seven other reserve units at Prince Rupert, B.C., Victoria, Edmonton, Regina, London, Ont., Charlottetown and Halifax. The tender at Kitchener, Ont., will also be closed.

The RCAF reserve will be reduced to 860 from 2,200.

Other bases to be closed or moved include:

NAVY

Ammunition depot at Kamloops, B.C.

Armament depot at Longueuil, Que.

Fort Pepperell, Nfld.

Ten of the navy's 160 auxiliary vessels will be taken out of service.

The navy's two utility squadrons at Victoria and Halifax will be reduced.

RCAF

The air force will be withdrawn from Fort Churchill and Resolute Bay on Cornwallis Island.

RCAF Station Calgary and No. 10 Repair Depot, Calgary, to be closed.

No. 107 Search and Rescue Unit, Torbay, Nfld., to be disbanded and RCAF Station Torbay closed.

RCAF Stations Vancouver, Saskatoon and Hamilton to be closed. Vancouver Search and Rescue Unit at Vancouver to be transferred to Comox, B.C.

Annual savings will be $16,000,000 a year in the army, $8,000,000 in the RCAF and $7,750,000 in the navy.

Wheaton Ltd. Low Tender

A bid of $594,423 was the lowest of six tenders opened at 2:15 p.m. in city council for construction of the city hall addition and interior renovation of the existing building.

The lowest bid was entered by G. H. Wheaton Ltd., but it was still $48,000 above architect's estimates.

Tenders ranged up to $674,903 by John Laing and Son (Canada) Ltd.

The bids were referred to the civic precinct committee, consultants and city technical staff for analysis and a decision.

Ald. M. H. Mooney was unsuccessful in persuading council to change its usual procedure of giving the committee power to act. He said the entire council should make the decision on an expenditure of that size.

KOREAN KIDDIES FUND

Duncan Carols Earn Food

A festival of Christmas carols which will be heard in Duncan will be enjoyed even more by the children in Korea.

Warm response means food for the hungry.

The Mount Prevost Festival Singers, a group of Grade eight and nine students who are presenting a Festival of Carols next Wednesday in Mount Prevost Junior Secondary School have asked that the silver collection taken at the concert be donated to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund."

Concert will also include Duncan Elementary School Choirs and Queen Margaret's School Chapel Choir.

It is donations like this that help to swell the Times-sponsored campaign fund for Korean children, as well as the $200 anonymous donations and the contributions from old age pensioners who include one, two, five and ten dollar bills and then say, "sorry I can't send more."

And then there are the children who donate their piggy bank savings like Brian, Gregory and Ellen Dowell who donated $1.05, and Suzanne, Jennifer and Michael Rowland who gave $3.

All donations, no matter how small, should be sent to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund," care of the Times, 2631 Douglas. Contributions will be acknowledged in the paper and official receipts for income tax purposes will be sent later from USC headquarters.

Donations are also being accepted at the Bank of Montreal, main branch, Yates and Douglas.

NEGRO WARNS

Church 'Sit-Ins' Next?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Negro leader said today after meeting with President Johnson that church sit-ins might be the next course of anti-discrimination demonstrations if a Senate filibuster occurs over civil rights legislation.

A. Philip Randolph, fifth Negro leader to be invited to the White House to see Johnson in less than a week, told newsmen of possible "people's education filibusters" in churches, with round-the-clock meetings, in event a talkathon stalled the legislation.

Johnson breakfasted earlier with House Republican leader Charles A. Halleck who predicted House passage of the civil rights bill next month.

AID PLEDGED

This was the second successive day that Johnson had held a secretive session with a Republican congressional leader and got a pledge of help toward passage of the rights bill.

Randolph, who organized the "March on Washington" by more than 200,000 Negroes in August, told newsmen he did not mention the "peoples' filibuster" in his talk with Johnson.

He said these demonstrations would be sponsored by the overall committee of the Washington march and would be conducted in most major cities.

He said the sit-ins would be staged in churches by white and Negro supporters of the civil rights bill.

The signal for them to start, he said, would be a filibuster on Capitol Hill.

Randolph said he had a comprehensive discussion of the legislation with Johnson and added, "President Johnson has left no doubt of his recognition of the urgency of adoption of civil rights legislation and has given it the highest priority."

ROWDIES WANTED

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Wainborn, deputy chairman of the Vancouver Parks Board, wants to meet the 319 rowdies arrested in Grey Cup mob scenes in the city last weekend to see what can be done to prevent a recurrence.

Wainborn, a member of the Grey Cup committee which planned week-long festivities here preceding the B.C. Lions - Hamilton Tiger-Cats football classic last Saturday, issued his invitation today.

"I want to find out from the young people themselves what they have on their minds," he said, referring to the 319 persons who faced police charges of drunkenness, unlawful assembly and fighting.

WIRE BRIEFS

Laotian Assassinated

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) —Col. Leuang, chief intelligence officer for neuralist Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma, was assassinated today by unknown killers near his home here. He was the fifth Laotian official to die of assassin's bullets this year. The assassins pumped 18 bullets into Leuang's body.

Trial Going to Jury

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The murder trial of T. Eugene Thompson goes to the jury, probably late today, after closing arguments from opposing counsel and the judge's instructions on rules of evidence.

River Boat Shelled

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Communist guerrillas shelled a big river boat carrying two companies of Vietnamese troops in the Mekong delta today and killed 19. They wounded 69.

PEARSON DROPS BODYGUARD

OTTAWA (CP)—At Prime Minister Pearson's request, a special RCMP security agent assigned to act as his bodyguard has been removed.

A spokesman in Mr. Pearson's office said today the guard had been assigned following the assassination of President Kennedy "because this sort of example often prompts others to attempt the same thing."

The prime minister who had agreed to the guard only on a temporary basis requested Friday that it be discontinued.

Mr. Pearson will continue to have an RCMP personal guard on trips outside Canada and normal surveillance of his residence also will be continued.

26 Miners Die In Blast

BUDAPEST (AP)—Twenty-six Hungarian miners were killed in an explosion Wednesday night at a coal mine at Tatabanya, the Hungarian news agency MTI reported today.

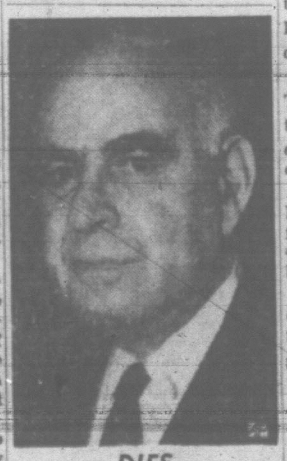

Four other miners were injured.

The agency said the blast was a dampfire explosion.

South Africa Out

ROME (AP) The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization voted today to exclude South Africa from all its future meetings or conferences in Africa.

DIES

Four-time governor of New York and former U.S. senator, Herbert H. Lehman, 85, died today. Lehman, a leader in his later years in a reform movement against Democratic party organization in New York, suffered a heart attack in his Manhattan home.

HARD HATS

"The' company says as a foreman I'm overweight . . . need more exercise . . . I'm thinkin' of takin' up golf!"

BOYS LEARN TREE FARM METHODS AS THEY EARN

Elk River Timber Co. put the group in the forestry and Christmas tree business with a donation of 10 acres of well-treed land just east of the municipal airport.

It is the second such acreage to be turned over to the Boy Scout movement. Last year, Crown Zellerbach gave Campbell River Scouts and Cubs a 10-acre plot in the same area.

"We are very pleased to be able to turn this land over to such a worthwhile group for their benefit," said Dan McKenzie, superintendent of Elk River Timber Co. Ltd.

Cubs and Scouts will be able to harvest a good supply of Christmas trees this year and for many years to come.

They will have to look after the land, cut trees with care and plant new seedlings, Mr. McKenzie said. The company will inspect the property once a year to see that it is being cared for properly.

TWO SHIFTS BEAT BOILER DEADLINE

CAMPBELL RIVER — Crown Zellerbach Elk Falls pulp, paper and sawmill complex near here has completed a new giant recovery boiler installation two months ahead of schedule.

The boiler, one of the largest in the pulp and paper industry, was ready for operation the week of Nov. 18 after a 45-day crash program.

Work on the unit was stepped up following the Oct. 6 explosion of a large recovery boiler system at the mill. One man was severely burned and five others suffered lesser injuries in the accident.

12 STOREYS HIGH

The new recovery boiler is as high as a 12-storey building.

The unit's function is to recover chemicals used in the sulphate or Kraft pulp process for re-use.

When the explosion damaged the older recovery boiler, the company was faced with two alternatives: reconstruct the blast-hit boiler which would take several months, or advance the start-up date of the new, larger recovery boiler which was 40 per cent complete.

A total of 300 men were put on the job. They worked two shifts a day.

Meanwhile crews are engaged in the reconstruction of the blast-hit boiler unit. It is expected to be finished in the late spring.

Company officials said there were no layoffs as the result of the explosion of the boiler.

Four of the six men who were injured in the explosion are also back at work, they said.

The remaining two are expected to be back on the job shortly.

Health Care Units Spread At Nanaimo

NANAIMO — The new $59,000 psychiatric addition on the Nanaimo Health Centre is now completed and council have just given consent for a 50-bed rest home to be built on Boundary Avenue.

The psychiatric unit is complete but it must remain closed for lack of a psychiatrist.

Applicants for the erection of a rest home are W. C. and K. Eccles who already operate three rest homes in Nanaimo.

Council approved of the home but pointed out that in the Rawson report it was suggested that homes for old people should be closer to the city so that pensioners could get downtown to parks and recreational facilities.

Ald. Bus MacDonald asked the proprietors if they would consider an alternative site nearer town.

In the report submitted to council by Dr. G. H. Bonham, director of the Central Vancouver Island Health Unit it was recommended that the Nanaimo water supply be fluoridated.

A fluoridation bylaw was presented to the voters in 1957 but was defeated by 1,925 votes to 1,315.

Winners Named

Five Vancouver Island students were awarded district prizes in the 1963 high school poster contest sponsored by the B.C. and Yukon Division of the Canadian Cancer Society.

Theme of the contest was "Smoking and Lung Cancer."

BROKE EVERY RULE

Shot at Moving Bush Man Killed His Son

KAMLOOPS (CP)—A father who shot his son to death was an experienced hunter who broke just about every rule in the book, Kamloops coroner Dr. Ivan Smillie told an inquest jury.

He was addressing the jury Tuesday before sending it out to consider a verdict in the death of Gordon Prigmore, 18, of Celista, on Shuswap Lake.

The youth was shot to death Nov. 23 while hunting with his father, Glen Harold Prigmore, 40, about 40 miles northeast of here.

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death and did not make any recommendations.

STALKING DEER

During the inquest, the father testified he was stalking a deer uphill when he saw movement in a bush and fired. A yellow hard hat flew into the air and Prigmore said he knew he'd hit his son.

Dr. Smillie said Prigmore fired without seeing his target, only moving bushes.

"The visibility was relatively poor," the coroner said, noting Prigmore testified he could see about 75 yards, and the shot that killed the boy was fired from about 100 yards away.

"Most of the clothing worn by Prigmore and his son was just so much camouflage," the coroner concluded.

Egg Price Supports Will Be Continued

OTTAWA (CP) — Egg price supports will be continued for a further year on the same basis as last year, Agriculture Minister Hays has announced.

A deficiency payment of 34 cents a dozen for grade A large eggs will be in effect for the period Oct. 1, 1963, to Sept. 30, 1964. Maximum quantities on which any individual producer may claim payment is 4,000 dozen grade A large and medium eggs.

EGG PRICES

| | Producer | Wholesale |
|---|---|---|
| Grade A Large | 41 | 53 |
| Grade A Medium | 35 | 47 |
| Grade A Small | 23 | 33 |

Teachers Now Back Grade 13

Teacher opposition to a Sooke school district plan for grade 13 next year was based on misunderstanding, a trustee said today.

Mrs. Isabelle Reader said today that discussion of board plans for 1964-65 at a special meeting with teachers Tuesday had overcome previous teacher opposition to Grade 13 being introduced next year.

Plans for both grade 13 and an entirely new course in commerce are being studied by district 62 trustees for post-high school students, Mrs. Reader said.

"They are fully behind the Grade 13 plan and if it is put into effect they would carry it out with enthusiasm," she said.

TEACHER PLAN

She said teachers had requested consideration be given to a commerce course that would offer subjects like shorthand and typing now available in private business schools.

It would be an extra course simlar to Grade 13 and would mean students would pay a fee of about $200 and provide their own transportation to classes, which would probably be at Belmont Senior Secondary School.

When teachers opposed grade 13 they were not aware that planning for it had been virtually settled and felt ttheir suggestion was being ignored.

"We feel we can put both into effect," Mrs. Rearer said.

As far as is known, the commerce course would be a first in B.C.

The board will take a survey in early January to determine the approximate number of students who would enroll.

Parents will be informed fully of regulations and costs involved, Mrs. Reader said.

Large Reward To Be Posted For Swan Killer

CAMPBELL RIVER — The weekend shooting of five trumpeter swans prompted the Fish and Game Club to collect a reward fund in the hopes of apprehending the killer.

The swans were shot in the area between Beavertail and Upper Campbell River.

Hard on the heels of this wanton shooting game warden George Taylor has discovered another serious infraction of the game regulations.

The still warm body of a big five-point bull elk was found in the bush near mile 30 in the Elk Valley Sunday. Two deer hunters are believed to have frightened off the culprit as he was attempting to skin and cut the animal up.

Elk season ended Nov. 3.

Life Membership Given Sheepbreeder

A life membership in the B.C. Purebred Sheepbreeders' Association was presented to A. W. T. (Bill) Evans, a prominent Cowichan sheepbreeder, at the association's annual meeting in the Tzouhalem Hotel Saturday.

Mr. Evans was secretary-treasurer of the association for many years and has done much to promote the sheep breeding industry. He resigned last year because of ill health but is still a director.

Directors elected were: Percy Oiley, Chilliwack; Pat Reid, Salmon Arm; Oliver Wells, Sardis; Len Higginson, Chilliwack; Bobby Sibbald, Matsqui; Dan Cadsand, Merritt; Roland Savage, Ladner; Jock Campbell, Abbotsford, and Bill Evans, Duncan.
